Couple Burn to Death in Auto Accident

Mr. and Mrs. Chester W. Sullivan of 7110 North Paulina street were burned to death late yesterday when their automobile overturned and caught fire on route 4 at Ellwood, 12 miles south of Joliet. The couple were returning to Chicago after a Christmas visit with Mrs. Sullivan's brother, E. W. Rollier, at St. Joseph, Mo.

The automobile was in flames and the bodies were charred beyond identification when F. L. Nolan of 7305 South Oakley avenue, returning to Chicago, drove alongside. How the machine caught fire could not be determined, but highway police of Joliet said it apparently skidded off the road and turned over.

Identify Burned Victims.

The state license number of the automobile had been issued to Sullivan. The identification of the victims was considered complete on the discovery of the initials C. W. S. on a gold watch carried by the driver. Neighbors said that the Sullivans, who left Chicago last Sunday, were expected to return yesterday.

The bodies were moved to an undertaking establishment at Joliet.

Mrs. Sullivan was about 45 years old and her husband between 50 and 60. Sullivan was employed by the William E. Dee company as a sewer pipe salesman until two weeks ago, when he resigned, according to Mr. Dee.

Dr. Chamberlain Injured.

Dr. Charles Joseph Chamberlain, noted botanist, author and professor at the University of Chicago for 32 years, was injured by an automobile yesterday while crossing 59th street at Woodlawn avenue. He was taken to the Billings Memorial hospital, where his condition was pronounced serious.

Dr. Chamberlain, who is 67 years old and lives at 6127 Greenwood avenue, was struck by an automobile driven by Mrs. H. L. Corcoran, 44 years old, 1452 East 66th place. Mrs. Corcoran was not held.

A man was killed and a woman and two other men were seriously injured when the automobile in which they were riding plunged off the Southwest highway at 84th street, overturned several times and came to rest against a house at 3735 West 84th street. The dead man was John Sundermier, 40 years old, 5610 Justine street, a foundry worker.

According to the police, L. W. Miller, 47 years old, 5706 South Ada street, the driver, tried to round a curve at high speed and the car toppled off the road. Miller, George W. Stewart, 38 years old, 5533 South Elizabeth street, and Mrs. Lucy Koler, 38 years old, 7138 Aberdeen street, were injured.

Toll Raised to 1,110.

Sundermier's death and three others raised the Cook county motor toll for the year to 1,110. The other victims:

John D. Wilson, 85 years old, 4501 Altgeld street. Killed by the auto of Ernest C. Krohn, 2736 Clarence avenue, Berwyn, in front of 440 North Wells street. Krohn was held.

Horace W. Smith, 38 years old, of Blue Island. Died in the Illinois Central hospital of injuries incurred on Wednesday when his car collided with a taxicab at Ellis avenue and the Midway. The cab driver, George Carpenter, 505 East 71st street, is being hunted.

Mrs. Jean L. Dalke, 62 years old, 5820 Oconto avenue, died in the Rogers Park hospital of injuries received Dec. 22 when the auto in which she was riding crashed into a street car at Clark street and Touhy avenue.

A verdict of accidental death was returned at the inquest yesterday over Miss Charlotte Rosenberg, 17 years old, daughter of Mrs. Rose Rosenberg, 401 Fullerton parkway, who was fatally injured early in the morning in a collision between two autos at 7th street and the outer drive.

Bedridden Priest, 80, Sees Vision and Is Able to Walk

BELFAST, Dec. 26.—(AP)—An 80 year old priest, the Rev. Samuel Connolly, is credited with remarkable healing powers. The story is related that Father Connolly, closely confined to his bed by a physical infirmity, saw a vision and was able immediately to walk. Since then he has been kept busy day and night by sufferers who visit his home.

New Cold Snap Travels South on Wide Front

Atlanta, Ga., Dec. 26.—(AP)—Overcast skies, momentarily threatening rain or sleet, and falling temperatures were the lot of the south tonight on the heels of bright Christmas weather.

Frost on parts of the gulf coast tonight and freezing weather in that section by Sunday morning were predicted by government forecasters.

The new cold wave made its first effects felt today in Virginia, with the winter's first sleet making highway traffic slow and dangerous in the southwestern portions of the state. Other parts of Virginia had cold rain that threatened to turn to sleet.

Only central and western Kentucky had any prospect of higher temperatures this week.

Rain and Clouds Due.

Meteorologists said the southerly breezes that gave Dixie bright and comparatively warm weather over Christmas would swing generally into the north and northwest tonight and tomorrow. The forecast of rain and clouds covered the whole area from northern Virginia to the gulf coast.

Western and northern areas of Dixie, forecasters said, would be the first to feel the cold. Freezing temperatures were predicted for tonight in Arkansas, northern Mississippi, Louisiana and Alabama, and still colder weather was in prospect in Virginia and North Carolina.

Only portions of the south had completely rid themselves of the snow blanket that covered several states last week.

Orange Growers Battle Cold.

San Francisco, Cal., Dec. 26.—(AP)—Carloads of crude oil for smudge pots moved into fruit and citrus belts of California tonight as growers sought to protect orchards from the continued cold wave forecast by the federal weather bureau.

Temperatures throughout the fruit belts ranged from 10 to 15 degrees below normal last night. Growers ran short of crude oil during the emergency and railroads sped assistance.

Orange groves in the Sacramento and San Joaquin valleys were reported damaged "considerably" by the weather, while at Oroville, in the heart of the northern California orange district, the mercury dropped to 26 above. Colusa registered 19 above and San Francisco experienced 42 during the night.

Find 1,600 Cases of Rum on Ship Aground Off Carolina

Norfolk, Va., Dec. 26.—(AP)—A cargo of 1,600 cases of liquor was found on the British schooner Albertine Adous, which went aground off Oak Island, North Carolina, the coast guard reported tonight.

FACTORY BLAST IN RAVENSWOOD INJURES THREE

Clark Street Cafe Also Is Target.

Two bombs exploded at almost the same instant at 11 o'clock last night in widely separated sections of the north side.

One bomb damaged the rear of a Chinese restaurant at 608 North Clark street. The other blast, which was so powerful that it was heard as far north as Evanston and as far west as the Austin district, shattered the rear of a cotton goods factory owned by Carson, Pirie, Scott & Co. at Montrose and Maplewood avenues. It broke windows and shattered plastering in a two flat building at 4415 North Maplewood avenue.

Three persons in the apartment building were slightly injured. The damage to the factory and the apartments was estimated at $10,000. The police were unable to obtain an estimate of the damage to other nearby dwellings where windows were broken.

Hundreds Throng to Scene.

The force of the Montrose avenue blast attracted hundreds of persons to the scene and police and firemen formed lines to hold back the crowds.

The bomb was placed against a steel door opening on the receiving platform at the rear of the factory. The explosion blew in this door and a section of the adjoining masonry. The factory is built of brick and is three stories high.

The damaged apartment building stands across an alley from the factory and is more than 20 feet away at the nearest point. Besides blowing out windows and plastering the explosion also loosened bricks in the rear wall of the flat building. A gold fish bowl in the kitchen on the first floor was demolished so that little else besides the water and dead fish on the floor could be found.

Three Slightly Injured.

Frank Erdman, who lives on the first floor of the flat building, and his 10 year old son, Robert, were the only members of the family in their home when the blast occurred. They were sitting in the dining room arranging toys Robert had received for Christmas. Falling plaster and broken glass struck them, but they were not seriously injured.

The second floor is occupied by the family of Frank Fasholz, whose mother, Bertha, 70 years old, was alone. She was stunned by the blast and covered with dust from the plaster, but also escaped serious injury.

Unable to Learn Motive.

Joseph Barbieri, 240 North Artesian avenue, superintendent of the cotton goods factory, hastened to the scene and inspected the damage. He declared there had been no labor trouble and said he was unable to account for the bombing.

John Peterson, a watchman employed at the factory, was in a wing of the structure on the Montrose avenue side when he heard the explosion and ran into the alley. He told the police that he did not see any one and because of this circumstance it was believed that the bomb was placed with a time fuse.

The police pointed out the similarity of the attack to the bombing of the Merchandise Mart at the same hour on Wednesday night, and earlier bombings of the Furniture Mart and the main plant of Sears, Roebuck & Co.

Walter Walker, investigator for the "Secret Six" of the Chicago Association of Commerce, pointed out that it was especially significant that this bomb and the ones placed at the Merchandise Mart and the Sears-Roebuck plant were all aimed at the receiving platforms of the shipping departments.

Bomb Damages Restaurant.

The Chinese restaurant which was bombed has been operated at 608 North Clark street for nearly fifteen years by the Joe Sing Lo corporation. The blast blew in the rear door and hurled a range and dishes across the kitchen but ten Chinese who were in the front of the place were unhurt.

The restaurant is next door to the Turkish Village, a cabaret, at 606 North Clark street, where about 20 couples were dancing. They rushed out at the sound of the explosion but soon returned to the dance floor.

Joe Fook, manager of the Chinese café, and Sam Silverman, manager of the Turkish Village, were questioned by Sergt. Harry Penzin of the Chicago avenue police, but neither was able to offer any explanation of the bombing. Fook said that he was a neutral in the flareups between the Hip Sing and On Leong tongs and was a member of neither. The damage was estimated at about $400.

Hoover Ready to Dedicate Harding Tomb

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 26.—[Special.]—The beautiful $700,000 Harding memorial at Marion, O., may be dedicated by an American president.

White House officials stated tonight that "if and when" a definite invitation is extended, fixing a specific date, President Hoover will go to Marion to dedicate the gigantic tomb erected to the memory of Warren G. Harding, twenty-ninth president of the United States. No definite date, however, has been set, although it is considered possible the President may go to Ohio for the ceremonies in the spring.

If President Hoover goes to Marion to honor the late President Harding, whose administration was shadowed by the Teapot Dome and other exposures, success finally will crown the efforts of friends of the dead president who for years have been vainly attempting to find a president or ex-president of the United States willing to dedicate the memorial.

Coolidge Shied Away.

It is common knowledge that Calvin Coolidge has been approached by representatives of the Harding Memorial association, both during his term of office and since.

On several occasions there have been reports that President Hoover had been requested to dedicate the memorial. According to the latest story the executive committee of the Memorial association sent a high official to sound out President Hoover last April. On April 30 a news association carried a dispatch from Washington stating that it was indicated at the White House that the President would accept an invitation to dedicate the Harding tomb if invited. However, Marion was not included in the itinerary of the President's western trip, announced a month later.

Last summer a resolution inviting President Hoover to dedicate the memorial was introduced in the Ohio Republican convention, but quickly was squelched by Senator Fess [Rep., O.], now chairman of the Republican national committee.

Newspaper Takes Up Fight.

A little later the Gallia Times, at Gallipolis, O., published an article stating that the failure of Republicans leaders to honor the dead President represented an affront to the state.

Indications today are that Senator Fess has talked the matter over with the President and an agreement has been worked out. As chairman of the Republican national committee, Mr. Fess is understood to have urged the President to take the time to go to Marion.

Ambassador Charles G. Dawes laid the corner stone on Memorial day, 1926. It was completed in 1928.

It's News to Secretary.

Marion, O., Dec. 26.—(AP)—Hoke Donithen, secretary of the Harding Memorial association, said tonight he had received no word from Washington regarding a White House statement that President Hoover would accept an invitation to take part in the dedication of the Warren G. Harding memorial here. He added that the association had made no new plans for the ceremony.

WARN AGAINST FORGED FOX CERTIFICATES

An attempt engineered in Chicago to float forged temporary certificates for Fox Film corporation class A stock led to warnings being sent out yesterday by the Better Business bureau of New York. While the temporary stock certificates no longer are negotiable, financial houses were cautioned against receiving them.

So far as could be learned yesterday, the forged certificates represented only 900 shares. They were turned over to Stein, Alstrin & Co., Chicago brokers, by a customer on Wednesday to cover a previous short sale of the stock.

"A man who gave the name of Percelli explained that he had bought 900 shares of Fox stock from a secondary dealer and wanted to sell it pending delivery of the certificates," L. M. Stein, senior partner, explained. "He deposited the proper margin and delivered the temporary certificates on Wednesday, taking a check in payment.

"However, the forgery was discovered and our surety company was immediately notified. Their men arrested the man when he tried to cash our check at the National Bank of the Republic. He then gave the name of Louis Lissman. We then telephoned the Bankers Trust company, New York, and verified other Fox certificates but no other forgeries turned up. We are protected against forgeries by the surety company but in this case there was no loss to them, as Lissman was arrested and jailed before he could cash our check."

G. O. P. MAYORAL ALLIANCE NEAR RIFT OVER LYLE

Deneen Battles for 4th Candidate.

BY PARKE BROWN.

The entry of Judge Lyle into the Republican mayoralty race, it was admitted yesterday, threw the Republican alliance up against a new problem that may wreck the negotiations which have been in progress for several weeks.

The Snow-Brundage-Deneen-Robertson subcommittee of the alliance met in the morning to consider the new situation and face the question of the effect of the entry of a fourth candidate, the three already in being Lyle, Mayor Thompson and Charles V. Barrett.

After a short consultation the meeting recessed until today with a noncommittal statement by County Chairman Snow that some of the participants had asked for time to consult with their political associates before proceeding further.

Differ on Fourth Candidate.

This fact was supplemented later by information that the conferees were nearing the point where they would agree to disagree in one way or another. They were said to have split immediately over the question of a fourth candidate. Chairman Snow and Edward J. Brundage, former attorney general, were reported as holding that such a complication could have but one effect only, that of aiding Thompson by splitting up the vote against him.

Senator Deneen, on the other hand, was said to have implied that his group could not support any of the three candidates and to have conveyed the impression that his organization is deeply interested in maintaining its separate entity by avoiding the amalgamation of its ward units with the units of other camps in the same wards. It is understood that those who heard him left with a strong impression that the Deneen group would have a candidate of its own.

Dr. Robertson's Stand.

Dr. John Dill Robertson, who asked for time to consult other chiefs of the Illinois Republican council for which he is the spokesman at this time, was said to have been noncommittal as to Judge Lyle, but firm in his opinion against increasing the field of candidates if that could be avoided.

Unless there is an agreement in today's meeting the subcommittee, because of the lack of time for further prolonged negotiations, may decide to report to the plenary conference, consisting of about a score of leaders, some time early next week. If a disagreement is reported a new effort may be made to establish harmony, but the chances for it are considered slight since the leaders comprising the subcommittee are accepted as speaking with full authority for their groups.

The only added factor that might contribute toward an attempt at unity in the full conference is the possibility that Attorney General Carlstrom, President W. R. James of the west park board and other members of the state Republican groups, may add their voices for harmony in pleas for the welfare of the party.

Report Move for Albert.

Early reports during the day were that if Deneen enters a fourth candidate his choice will be Prof. Charles E. Merriam of the University of Chicago, former alderman and twice a contender for the mayoralty. But before evening it was reported that a conference of German-American leaders had determined to urge Ald. Arthur F. Albert to become a candidate and to insist that he be the Deneen candidate.

The first day for filing mayoralty petitions is next Wednesday, but it is said the Deneen leaders feel there is no hurry about filing their candidate if they have one as they would have no "luck" in the race for first place on the ballot. Therefore their decision might be delayed if the alliance breaks up.

Far different from this description of Republican mayoralty discord was a county judicial convention of the party at the Hotel Sherman in the afternoon. The term of Superior Judge Harry A. Lewis expires next year and Republican and Democratic nominees for his seat will be chosen the day of the mayoralty primary, Feb. 24. There was apparent unanimity in the convention. The name of Judge Lewis was the only one proposed and he was nominated by roll call.

The Democrats, who announced that they had reached the acme of harmony when the managing committee last week unanimously indorsed A. J. Carmak for mayor, became even a few degrees more harmonious during the day. The campaign committee which had placed M. S. Szymczak, clerk of the Superior court, in the race, had a luncheon at the Hotel Sherman and, with Szymczak in the lead, warmly indorsed Cermak.

The Democratic favorite will be the guest of 3,000 enthusiasts at a notification luncheon at the Sherman this noon. No predictions or wagers that he would decline the organization's support were heard in the loop or elsewhere.

LYLE TALKS TO CLUB

At a meeting which had been spoken of as his first campaign appearance but which, it was explained during the program, had been arranged for three weeks, Judge Lyle last night declared that if he were mayor he could annihilate the Capones, the Morans, the Nittis, and the Rios.

He spoke at Shotwell hall, 1440 East 55th street, before a meeting of the Fifth Ward Regular Republican club. He was presented by John Leonard East, committeeman for the ward, a lieutenant of George F. Harding.

"If I, with my slight power as judge of the Municipal court, can do what I have done," Judge Lyle asked, "what could I do with 6,000 policemen and other law enforcement officers? I'd have a good civil service commission and I'd get some good—call them coppers—to lather 'em a plenty and I'd wear 'em out before they got to court.

"The so-called big shots are yellow. You ought to see them in court dodging a photographer's flashlight. Some of them fall on the floor. The gangsters are not brave. That's why they travel in gangs."

FILE FOR ALDERMAN

Entries for aldermanic contests in Chicago's fifty wards began yesterday with the filing of nineteen petitions. Inasmuch as the names rotate on the ballots of each ward and all candidates run as nonpartisans, there is no advantage in first filings, a fact held responsible for the few first day petitions.

Only three present aldermen—John J. Hoellen [47th], Robert Jackson [2d], and Joseph Smith [32d]—submitted their nominating papers. All present members of the council, with the exception of two or possibly three, are expected to seek reelection. Ald. Edward Kaindl of the 34th ward is a candidate for city treasurer. Another exception is Ald. George Maypole of the 28th ward, who becomes a state senator on Jan. 1.

Congressman Thomas J. Doyle filed for a seat in the council from his old ward, the 13th, which he represented for several terms before going to the state legislature and then to congress. He retires voluntarily from congress on March 4 in the expectation he will succeed to the place vacated by the election of Joseph B. McDonough as county treasurer.

Those who filed yesterday, and their wards, are:

CRITIC OF CITY HALL CLASHES WITH ALDERMAN

Argue on Efficiency of License Bureau.

While attacking the appropriation for the city license department last night before the council finance committee, Douglas Sutherland of the Civic Federation clashed in an argument with Ald. Oscar F. Nelson [46th]. The alderman declared that the statement read to the committee by the Civic Federation representative was "as false as any document that I have ever read."

Nelson was particularly vehement against one portion of the statement which said: "In other words, for every dollar collected in license fees in 1929 over and above the amount collected the year before the license department was created—eight years earlier—the taxpayers paid 60 cents."

Calls Statement Unfair.

"That statement is not fair," countered Ald. Nelson, "as the license department is responsible, probably, for the collection of $1,000,000 of the vehicle tax fees; but the statement does not mention that. It doesn't instill confidence in the representatives of the civic organizations when they do not present all of the facts."

"How can we have confidence in the department head [B. O. Romin] who came up here last July and said he had two more men on his payroll than the appropriation permitted?" interrupted Ald. John S. Clarke [30th], chairman of the committee. He said if we would fix it so he could pay their salaries out of salvage he would not put on any more men. But later on he added between 40 and 50 men to his force. If Henry Wilson, the assistant superintendent, was allowed to run the department we wouldn't have so much criticism."

Sutherland explained that he had not mentioned the work done by the department on vehicle tax licenses because his statement dealt only with the corporate fund. He said that his first look at the figures on the department's collections for the vehicle tax fund had revealed such a deplorable condition that he wanted to look them over again to make sure they are right.

$291,466 Salary Increase.

In the statement Sutherland said that while the collection of corporate fund license fees in 1929 was $223,507 less than in 1921, when the license department was established, the salary appropriations for the department had increased by $291,466.

"An explanation for the continued existence of this unnecessary and uncoordinated department may be found in the report that for the pay roll period ended Oct. 15 last, 70 out of 148 license investigators were only temprorary appointees and were not under civil service," the statement said.

"In view of the foregoing figures and especially in view of conditions confronting taxpayers, and of your revenues for clearly needed activities, revenues for clearly needed activities, I feel sure you will agree that to continue this $300,000 appropriation in 1931 would be absolutely indefensible."

Action on the license department which has been allotted only $35,000 in City Controller Schmidt's estimates although it had $312,000 for 1930 was deferred by the committee until this morning.

To Sell Water Certificates.

Earlier in the meeting the aldermen were informed that Schmidt had decided to sell $7,000,000 worth of water certificates at a discount. The certificates are part of an issue of $10,997,090 on which Halsey, Stuart & Co., on Monday withdrew its option to purchase at a premium of $85,000.

Authority to sell the issue expires on Dec. 31 and as it was too late to advertise for new bids the controller received informal ones. In the new bids yesterday for the purchase of $7,000,000 of the certificates Halsey, Stuart & Co., bid a price of 95, which would mean a discount of $350,000. C. W. McNear bid 94½. The certificates will be sold today.

DUTCH MAY FREE REMBRANDT FROM 1669 BANKRUPTCY

Two months is the limit fixed to lodge claims with the Amsterdam court.

$300,000 Asked to Increase Grade School Teaching Staff

Prof. Nelson B. Henry of the University of Chicago, chairman of the superintendents' advisory council on the public schools budget, yesterday outlined nine projects for the coming year at a meeting of the school board with the request that $582,000 be provided in the 1931 budget to finance them.

The most costly item on Prof Henry's list was the council's recommendation that enough elementary school teachers be added to the present staff to change the present average of 46 pupils a teacher to 45 or less. It was estimated that $300,000 would be needed to make this change.

Bogan Adds His Plea.

William J. Bogan, superintendent of schools, said he deplored the elimination of appropriations needed to carry out Prof. Henry's recommendations from the preliminary draft of the budget submitted by Harry H. Brackett, school auditor, several weeks ago.

"More teachers are needed," Mr. Bogan said. "This list merely includes educational necessities and no needless or overly expensive innovations."

Members of the board did not appear to favor a $65,000 appropriation asked by Prof. Henry to provide "a readjustment of the administrative organization of the school system to accommodate a bureau of exhibits, publicity and public relations."

A publicity representative was employed during the administration of J. Lewis Coath as school board president, but the department was discontinued when his term expired. It was during Coath's régime that the famous school board trial resulting in the ousting of Supt. William McAndrew because of his alleged pro-British leanings was held.

Seven Other Projects.

Other projects for which appropriations were asked were:

The opening of 50 gymnasiums for 100 nights during the coming year at a cost of $75,000.

The establishment of a bureau of research, $35,000.

The expansion of experimental studies of teaching and the extension of the truant school program, $35,000.

Provision for the appointment of a president for Crane Junior college and necessary secretarial assistance, $9,000.

Provision for a superintendent of visiting teachers, $4,000.

The appointment of special teachers for music, art and physical education, $24,000.

The hiring of additional clerical help for the junior and senior high schools, $35,000.

The trustees took no action on these suggestions and were not inclined to comment on them. Further action on the budget will be taken at the next regular meeting on Jan. 7.

NAMES BOARD TO PROTECT LANDS OF MORO TRIBES

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MANILA, Dec. 26.—The first step to carry out the program of Governor General Dwight F. Davis to afford the Moros protection against the land grabbers in Mindanao island was taken today at a conference to select a site for a special Moro reservation.

The conference was attended by John C. Early and Maj. George F. Lull, advisers to Mr. Davis, Secretary of Agriculture Rafael Alunan, Director of Lands Serafin Hilado; Ludovico Hidrosollo, non-Christian tribes director, and Arthur F. Fischer, forestry director.

The conferees named the last three as a special committee to go to Mindanao and study the best sites for a reservation. The idea was originally conceived by Mr. Davis as a means to end the exploitation of Moros.

FRENCH TROOPS ADVANCE POSTS IN SOUTH MOROCCO

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Dec. 26.—The ministry of war today announced an advance of French troops in the Atlas mountains in southern Morocco, opening the way toward the penetration of the rich magnesium and phosphate deposits.

Striking forward along the Tadla front, the colonial and native troops occupied the mountainous region of Djebel Ogha, commanding the valley of the El Abid river. The important strategic point was taken without a shot being fired and immediately consolidated by a series of machine gun posts.

Further south another column, starting from Quasegart, advanced in the Dades valley, where a road 18 miles long is under construction, and occupied the village of Bou Malen, where a military post was installed.

STRAWN GROUP'S REASSESSMENT VIEWS SOUGHT

Members to Attend Tax Board Hearing.

William H. Malone, chairman of the state tax commission, yesterday announced that the Citizens' committee headed by Silas H. Strawn, which worked out the plan for the financial relief of Cook county, had been invited to attend a meeting next Tuesday at which the petitions regarding reassessment of county property will be considered.

A long hearing was held yesterday before the tax commission. The Association of Real Estate Taxpayers presented arguments in behalf of its request for a reassessment of personal property. The Civic federation opposed this request.

To Hear Arguments Tuesday.

At the end of the meeting, Mr. Malone announced that additional arguments would be heard on Tuesday. He also revealed that the members of the Strawn committee at the hearing would be asked to comment upon the petitions.

George Fairweather chairman of the joint commission on real estate valuation, was one of the speakers at yesterday's meeting.

"It is useless to hope for any clarification of the situation," he asserted, "until there is a change in the personnel of the board of review and board of assessors. Permitting the present assessors to handle the big problems they face is like asking an elevator starter to manage a hundred million dollar bank."

Malone Meets Committee.

Mr. Malone conferred yesterday with an advistory committee which he had appointed to investigate the petition of the Association of Real Estate Taxpayers. Recommendations of this committee will be made known Tuesday. The committee consists of Sidney Gorham, former president of the Chicago Bar association; Mark Levy, president of the Chicago Real Estate Board; Dr. Simeon Leland, Robert C. Duncan, Herbert Simpson, T. R. Gerlach, and Victor Olander.

7 JAILED ON CHARGE OF ROBBING FARMERS OF THEIR LIVE STOCK

Five men were in jail in Geneva and two others in cells in Palatine last night, charged with stealing thousands of dollars' worth of poultry, calves and lambs from farms throughout Cook, Kane and Du Page counties during the last four months.

The first five are Wayne Bell, 22 years old; Preston Clement, 23 years old; Louis Palillo, 31 years old; William Landwehr, 27 years old, and August Humbracht, 40 years old, all of Elgin. The two arrested in Palatine are Jesse Pointer, 51 years old, and Frank Herrick, 24 years old.

The arrests resulted from confessions made by Bell and Clement after they had been arrested in Oak Park. Their car was found to be loaded with poultry. The Oak Park police called Sheriff Harry Crawford at Geneva, who has been working with Farmers' Protective associations in an effort to catch the raiders. The chickens and ducks found in the automobile were identified by Philip Kelly of Gilbert, Ill., as having been stolen from his farm.

Bell and Clement said a butcher shop on California avenue had been buying the stolen meat, but they said they could not remember the address or name.

ENGLAND FREES LAST PRISONERS OF "IRISH WAR"

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

DUBLIN, Irish Free State, Dec. 26.—The last two Irishmen detained in English prisons for offenses committed during the Irish war with England have been released.

Frank Breen and Patrick Gavan, sentenced to life imprisonment in 1922 for robbing a bank at Prestwich, Lancashire, were liberated on Tuesday. In recent years, the Labor government had been pressed to grant them amnesty, but only now has Home Secretary Clynes been able to comply.

Breen was given a ticket for Dublin where he was welcomed by the most advanced section of Republicans. He hopes to return to work in England, where he was once employed as a miner. While in jail he attempted to escape and got several terms of solitary confinement and other punishments. Gavan, who was released at the same time, is visiting friends in northern England.

OMPLETE TOWN OF STONE AGE FOUND IN BRITAIN

[Copyright: 1930: By the New York Times.]

LONDON, Dec. 26.—One of the most complete stone age villages discovered England has been unearthed near Essex, by H. J. Cheney, a local archaeologist. It is believed to be of great importance to the archaeological world because traces of ironworking were found. The discovery is expected to shed new light on the habits and in- stinct of stone age men.

A fourth soil which had been plowed by the years scores of arrowheads and other flint implements were unearthed together with fragments of neolithic pottery, tiny pieces of charcoal, lumps of clay and a small piece of bone, which doctors have agreed is human. Mr. Cheney began excavating after noticing that the smoothness of the land at the top of a field was inter- rupted by an almost imperceptible ridge, which suggested a prehistoric fort. Fragments of oak, believed to be the remains of the walls of a pit dwelling, also were found.

RABBIS INVOKE MOSAIC LAW IN WAR ON RACKETS

Ban Fowls to Reform Poultry Killers.

By solemn decree, the Chicago rabbinate, the governing body of orthodox Jews in the city, has declared a ban on poultry, effective Monday, and ordained that no fowl found in orthodox Jewish markets shall be kosher after that date. The ban will be preached from synagogues today.

The order was issued in a war on the shochtim, who are the authorized killers of poultry under the Jewish laws. Many of the shochtim, it is charged, have violated the holy laws of the Talmud, and defied the rabbinate by racketeering, terrorism, and other infractions of the holy books.

The fight will be pressed tonight at a meeting of the rabbinate with other leading Jews at the Hebrew Theological college, Douglas boulevard and St. Louis avenue.

Rabbis Sit in Judgment.

In solemn setting the rabbinate met on Thursday at the college, and sat in judgment on the shochtim when the Kehilath or the Union of Orthodox Hebrew congregations, made the formal complaint. The Jewish laws, it was cited, require each shochet, or killer of poultry, to appear before the board of examiners once every 30 days so that he may be tested as to his obedience to the Mosaic law in the killing of fowl. Also each shochet's knife is examined to see that it is in perfect order, for the shochet's blade must be keen, and smooth, and not burred. The shochtim, it was charged, had ignored these duties.

There were other transgressions charged—terrorism, sluggings, racketeering. Shochet Noah Grenberg, it was stated, was slugged last week. Officials of the shochtim, among them Joe Etkins, business manager, have been tried in the Criminal court, and acquitted. The shoctim, the rabbinate was told, are not permitted to kill if they are racketeers, for the Talmud demands clean and pious men for holy killings.

Defiance of Board Charged.

It was charged that part of shochtim failed to abide by the dicta of the board of arbitration to which they submitted themselves some months ago, and were flouting the board's efforts toward settlement of disturbances.

The rabbinate considered and, in Mosaic dignity, adjudged. It declared the ban, that no poultry found in Jewish markets after Monday shall be eaten by faithful Jews. It ruled that any shochet who kills poultry after Monday will be barred forever from his holy profession and branded unfit to kill.

Presidents of congregations have been asked to coöperate so that no shochet will be asked to kill during the boycott period.

MISSOURI BOYS PLAY MARBLES WITH GOLD NUGGETS, TEST PROVES

Hollister, Mo., Dec. 26.—(AP)—Schoolboys near here have been playing marbles with gold nuggets. Authorities believe the nuggets were found near the home of Jake Fleagle, western bandit, who was shot to death at Brandon, Mo., several months ago.

The boys refused to divulge the location of their cache. Clyde Chapman, a railroad station agent here, said his son was one of those who found the nuggets. A test proved the nuggets were gold.

At the time Fleagle was killed by officers, there was much speculation here as to a cache in which it was believed he had hidden loot taken in a number of robberies.

Chapman said there was as much as a double handful of the nuggets in possession of the boys.

CUBA THWARTS REVOLT; HIGH OFFICIALS JAILED

[Copyright: 1930: By the New York Times.]

HAVANA, Dec. 26.—The Cuban government revealed today that a revolutionary movement in various provinces had been planned to start on Christmas eve but that the plot had been thwarted by the arrest of prominent leaders of the Nationalist party. A search is being made for others.

Col. Aurelio Hevia, who was secretary of the interior in President Menocal's régime, was arrested today and confined to the military prison at Cabanas charged with being one of the leaders. Orders were issued for the arrest of former President Mario Menocal and Dr. Francisco Carrera Justiz, chairman of the retirement and pension fund of all railroads in Cuba and dean of the school of science and law at Havana university. Lieut. Nin of the national army was also confined at the Cabanas prison. The government announced tonight that Col. Hevia, Lieut. Nin and all the others to be arrested will be tried by court martial.

Officials say the plot failed because several leaders refused to support the movement at the last minute. The first attack was to have been made on the Havana city jail, where large stores of munitions are kept under army custody. Revolutionary outbreaks, says the government, were to have taken place simultaneously in all provinces.

Los Angeles, Cal., Dec. 26.—(AP)—Gilbert H. Beesemyer, confessed embezzler of nearly $8,000,000 from the Guaranty Building and Loan association, of which he was secretary-manager, was sentenced in Superior court today to serve 10 to 100 years in San Quentin prison. He pleaded guilty last Tuesday to an indictment charging ten counts of grand theft.

Beesemyer was sentenced from one to ten years on each count, the terms to run consecutively.

In reviewing the case, the district attorney's office said Beesemyer had stolen $7,661,793 from the Guaranty company and $866,450 from the North American Bond and Mortgage company, a subsidiary, making a total larceny of $8,528,243. The money "was used by him," the review said, "in more than 30 corporations, syndicates or partnerships."

Beesemyer will not be eligible for parole or pardon until he has served ten years.

RESCUE 11 BOYS BECALMED THREE DAYS ON OCEAN

Long Beach, Cal., Dec. 26.—[Special.]—After nearly three days on the ocean between Catalina island and the mainland, eleven Sea Scouts, ranging in age from 14 to 20 years, were rescued today, becalmed in a twenty-foot sailing boat. They were rescued by a coast guard patrol boat which was invoked by anxious parents.

The Sea Scout party set out from the mainland for a camp at Emerald bay, on Catalina island, and arrived uneventfully the same day, but a storm came up when they started to sail back to the mainland and they were until early Tuesday beating their way back to the island camp. Then, when another three days passed after their second departure for the mainland, an alarm was sent out.

The youth had only one jug of water aboard and were on short water rations after Wednesday.

HYDE OPENS UP NEW MARKET TO CORN FARMERS

Lifts Bars on Sugar Made from Grain.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington D. C., Dec. 26.—[Special.]—Secretary of Agriculture Arthur M. Hyde threw open a new and important market to farmers of the corn growing states today in an order removing the discriminations against corn sugar from the federal food and drugs act.

The secretary struck out of the regulations a provision that when corn sugar is used in canned and packaged food products it must be declared upon the label. His order officially recognized corn sugar, or dextrose, as "a clear, clean, white granulated sugar," which is "wholesome and healthful," and placed it on a par with cane and beet sugar, or sucrose, under the law.

As a contribution to the prosperity of the producers of Iowa, Illinois, Indiana, and other states in the corn belt, and to the corn products industry, Secretary Hyde's action was considered one of the most significant steps taken by the government in many years.

Opens Up a New Market.

As a result of the order, Mr. Hyde stated, the annual consumption of cash corn is expected to increase possibly 100 million bushels—a factor that will be reflected in corn prices. Spokesmen for the Domestic Sugar Producers' association, which advocated the change, estimated that the consumption would at once increase at least 30,000,000 bushels. They also declared that the order will mean an immediate expansion of corn products refineries and will double their output within six months, giving employment to thousands of men.

In making his ruling, Secretary Hyde took issue with several of his predecessors, who had rejected the plea of the corn sugar interests for equality under the food and drugs act.

Opposed by Canners.

The action resulting in today's ruling formally started last spring when the Corn Products Refining company of Kansas City filed a petition asking for such a change. Public hearings were conducted in July, at which both sides were heard. Appearing in opposition to the ruling were the heads of several state departments of agriculture and spokesmen for wholesale canners and grocers, and beekeepers. The canners argued that corn sugar shrinks and discolors fruit and vegetables and would hurt their products.

Secretary Hyde took the position that these fears were unfounded.

"When the federal food and drugs act was passed, twenty-three years ago, corn sugar was a muddy, brown product, less than fifty per cent sweet," he said. "Under conditions existing then, a prejudice existed against it.

Now Greatly Improved.

"In the last ten years, great progress has been made in refining corn sugar. It is now a clear, clean, white granulated sugar. It is a wholesome and healthful food.

"There is, also, an affirmative economic reason for this change in departmental rulings. American agriculture is overproduced. The fact that production runs ahead of consumption is responsible for most of the ills of agriculture.

"We produce annually about 2,700,000,000 bushels of corn. Only about 275,000,000 bushels of this ever reaches primary markets. The sale price of this small amount fixes the farm prices for the whole crop.

"There exists a potential market for corn, through corn sugar, variously estimated at from 5,000,000 to 100,000,000 bushels per annum. Be the percentage large or small, the opening of this potential market for additional corn is a step in the right direction."

MILWAUKEE RAILROAD CUTS FARE 1.6 CENTS A MILE ON 4 LINES

Passenger service at 2 cents a mile, a reduction of 1.6 cents from the usual rate, will be inaugurated Jan 1 on four minor divisions of the Chicago, Milwaukee, St. Paul and Pacific railroad, it was announced last night. According to H. E. Pierpont, vice president in charge of traffic, the new rate is an experiment to compete with motor buses. If successful, it may be eventually extended to the main lines, he said.

The four divisions affected, none on the main line, are: The Wisconsin Valley, in central Wisconsin; the Racine, from Racine to southwestern Wisconsin; the Southern Minnesota, and the Des Moines, running north from Des Moines.

Accommodations for the new service will be day coach. The experiment will be continued indefinitely until final results are obtained. According to Vice President Pierpont, the 2 cent rate is primarily to gain the local traffic which the motor bus has caused railroads to lose.

NORRIS DECLINES AN INVITATION TO LEAD THIRD PARTY

Calls Hoover Friendly to "Power Trust."

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 26.—[Special.]—George W. Norris, Nebraska's radical Republican senator, today politely refused the invitation of Prof John Dewey of Columbia university to lead a progressive parade toward the formation of a third political party in 1932.

Replying to the letter sent by Prof. Dewey, as head of the League for Independent Political Action, Senator Norris made it clear that he entertained no roseate delusions concerning a progressive movement.

Might Become Callous.

Under present political conditions, he explained, a third party, once in power, might become as callous to the people's rights as, he asserted, the Republican and Democratic parties now are.

The row stirred up by the exposure of the activities of Robert H. Lucas, executive director of the Republican national committee, in opposing Senator Norris in Nebraska, has quieted down, at least temporarily. It undoubtedly will flame up again when the Nye committee gathers, following the reconvening of congress Jan. 5.

But the only event even approaching the inflammatory today, was the assertion by Senator Norris that not only was President Hoover friendly to the "power trust," but that the power trust was trying to obtain control of the Democratic party, as well, by seeing that Owen D. Young was the next Democratic candidate for President.

Little Change in Sight.

Beyond his allusions to the "power trust's" influence, Senator Norris' discussion was temperate and philosophical. He saw little chance of remedying present conditions to suit persons of his belief, he said, until party control has been restored to the people through the abolition of the electoral college, and the establishment of presidential nominations and elections directly by the people.

The senator stated that, as soon as the first session of the new congress convened he would submit a resolution calling for a constitutional amendment to abolish the electoral college.

BUILD PLANES TO VERY LIMIT, MOFFETT URGES

Calls Our Treaty Fleet Hazardously Weak.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 26.—[Special.]—Admission that American naval construction was so restricted by the London treaty that the United States may be forced into a position of "permanent inferiority" at the next arms conference, was made today by Rear Admiral William A. Moffett, chief of the bureau of aeronautics and one of the strong supporters of the naval agreement.

In a communication sent to the house naval committee at the request of Chairman Fred Britten [Rep., Ill.], the admiral said that only by rapid expansion of the fleet's air forces—the one combat naval arm not completely restricted by treaty—could the United States overcome the limitations placed on surface warships.

The new Moffett statement was sent to supplement testimony given a week ago by the admiral before the committee in support of the navy's 134 million dollar construction program.

Says Speed Is Vital

Moffett urged construction within five years of all aircraft carriers needed to bring the fleet up to the treaty maximum of 135,000 tons. He advocated construction of cruisers equipped with landing decks as rapidly as possible, warning that further restrictions could be expected in both these classes at the next conference unless this country builds up to the limits permitted.

The admiral recommended installation of aircraft on all surface vessels where possible, asserting that in the next war that nation "will be victorious which has the greatest number of vessels that can operate aircraft and the greatest number of aircraft that can be transported at sea."

The naval veteran, himself an adviser at the London conference, asserted that Japan had gained "marked concessions in cruisers, submarines and destroyers at London, because she had vessels built and building," while the United States' lack of completed vessels had proved "embarrassing."

Situation Hazardous.

"The treaties have definitely limited all classes of naval vessels," the letter said. "The offensive power of the United States fleet in conventional types of vessels has been so restricted by the treaties that, even after building up to the limits, the small preponderance of our fleet in surface vessels will make an overseas campaign a very hazardous undertaking.

"The only remaining means of materially increasing the striking power of the fleet is by means of aircraft. Thefore I believe that unless aircraft are added in the greatest numbers possible, the nation will have neglected to provide itself with weapons permissible under existing commitments, and which can be obtained without any sacrifice in other categories.

"One of the difficulties encountered at the London conference was preventing the reduction in the aircraft carrier category. Certain powers desired to reduce the carrier tonnage from 135,000 to 100,000, their representatives stating that, since the United States had not built up to its limits, it was apparent that so high a limit was unnecessary.

Fears Same Thing in 1936.

"My strong belief is that unless all this tonnage is actually on the stocks in 1936, or, at the very least, authorized, it will then be frozen out by the new conference and we will find ourselves in a position of permanent inferiority.

"Japan obtained marked concessions at London in light cruisers, destroyers, and submarines, because of her large effective tonnage, built and building, while the 'paper' cruiser navy of the United States was a real embarrassment.

"In 1936 we may expect additional limitations in categories that still remain unfilled. There is no question whatever, that, unless our aircraft carrier tonnage is filled by the time of the next conference, we will stand grave risk of having it reduced.

Sees Limit on Aircraft.

"We have no limit, as yet, on numbers and types of aircraft. At the next conference we may expect limitation of aircraft, and this type of craft, which is of such great importance to us, will have limits put upon it in exact proportion to the number of airplane carrying ships we will have on hand at that time."

Even should Great Britain and the United States have the same carrier tonnage, Rear Admiral Moffett said Britain would have the advantage, due to the fact that she has fifty merchant ships that could be converted into fast plane carriers, compared to fourteen for this country.

HYDE TO ASK RELIEF MONEY RIGHT AWAY

Washington, D. C., Dec. 26.—[Special.]—Congress will be asked immediately after it reconvenes following the holidays to appropriate the funds for emergency drought and unemployment relief which it authorized in legislation passed prior to its Christmas recess.

Secretary of Agriculture Hyde made this announcement today, explaining, at the same time, that the $51,000,000 of the 134 millions to be distributed by the agriculture department will not be allocated by states or districts.

"Because of the fact that this money must be spent in six months and used where it will relieve unemployment," he said, "we have decided not to make any definite allocations, but to take up the projects in order of urgency and availability."

The department of agriculture was voted $80,000,000 for federal aid roads and $3,000,000 for roads in the public domain. Both of these funds have been allocated according to law. There are no legal restrictions, however, upon the $45,000,000 for drought relief, $2,000,000 for forest roads and $3,000,000 for forest trails. The latter three funds will be distributed without regard to state boundaries.

Secretary Hyde said that his department is preparing application forms for the drought loans.

SEEK SMALLER COMPANIES' AID FOR JOB FUND

Only 58% of Quota Raised.

With daily contributions from the bigger business concerns falling off, Philip R. Clarke, chairman of the drive for the $5,000,000 relief fund sought by Gov. Emmerson's unemployment committee, yesterday planned to launch a vigorous campaign for subscriptions among the "little fellows," the companies which have ratings of $100,000 or better.

These business houses will be asked to adopt the employé pay deduction plan and match dollar for dollar the subscriptions of their employés. Chairman Clarke hopes by securing small contributions from this greater number of companies to boost the lagging relief fund drive.

Only 58 Per Cent Raised.

Only 58 per cent of the $5,000,000 fund has been raised. The contributions received by the committee the day after Christmas totaled $27,832, a small amount compared with other days. The grand total now has reached $2,929,678.

"We are hoping that the final days of 1930 will witness a big increase in contributions," Mr. Clarke stated. "But it is obvious that the many hundreds of business concerns and their employés that have not been within the scope of our soliciting groups will have to do their bit if the campaign is to be a success. These concerns, if they enter into the spirit of the undertaking, can just about solve the problem—they and our well-to-do individuals who have not contributed."

New Subscriptions Received.

Among the subscriptions received yesterday were the following: Morton Salt corporation and employés, $11,301; Otis Elevator company employés, $4,344; Hinckley & Schmidt, $1,200; Mitchell, Hutchins & Co., $1,000; Lamson Bros. & Co., $1,000; James E. Bennett & Co. and employés, $1,000; L. Fish company, $1,000; W. C. Ritchie & Co. employés, $1,700; employés of weighmaster's office, board of trade, $1,366.

Jobs have been given to 544 unemployed men and women in 22 Illinois cities, according to Wayne Hummer, chairman of the statewide activities committee of the governor's relief commission.

West park board employés will give a total of $23,465.12 to the relief fund instead of approximately $12,000, as announced by the campaign committee on Wednesday. Robert R. Daly, secretary of the west park board, notified President W. R. James yesterday that the total contributions of the employés, who are giving one day's pay a month each, plus donations made by the commissioners, aggregate $7,116.28 a month. The employés will continue their donations for four months.

A SUCCESS STORY AS TOLD TO THE GOOD FELLOWS

Jobs Found, Family Is on Its Own Again.

BY KATHLEEN McLAUGHLIN.

There is Scotch flavor to chapter five of the success stories being written these days into the records of THE TRIBUNE Good Fellow bureau. In an atmosphere where day by day there is more of condolence than congratulation there was jubilation yesterday at word that the G—— family is once more self-supporting.

Taking this name off the list will make it possible for the bureau to aid one more family to whom it has not heretofore been able to extend a hand. Previously four families had reported their periods of necessity past, the breadwinners having found jobs or some income having been obtained that released the Good Fellows from the obligation of providing further for them. A call at the G—— home on South Trumbull avenue, south of 26th, yesterday was an illuminating demonstration of the good the bureau has already accomplished.

Six Children in Family.

They are eight in all. Six children, beginning with Annie, who is 23, the eldest child, and ending with Catherine, who is 5, and is more often called "Cawthy." A year ago they were living in their modest, unpretentious way, just outside Edinburgh in their native Scotland, a comfortable, thrifty group, with a nestegg in the bank against a rainy day. Christmas day ended for them a two months' term of the first charity they ever had received, when the Good Fellow truck stopped at their door to deliver a basket.

Mrs. G——, whose blue eyes still smile, but whose face has acquired lines older than her years in the last few months of stress, told more than she guessed as she stood beside her kitchen stove, where a wood fire crackled cheerily, and said in a voice with a rich Scotch burr:

"Ah, we couldna take help longer—there'd maybe be them needing it more than we."

Income Only $135 a Month.

Yet the total of the resources with which the family faces the future in this strange country is $135 a month. The Millard Avenue Presbyterian church engaged the father a month ago as a janitor at a salary of $75 a month. Just before Christmas Annie, who had three years' training in nursing in Scotland, found a position as helper at a social settlement at $60 a month.

"If only Jawn could get something," Mrs. G—— said, "we could do all right. It won't be easy, but we'll see. Jawn has tried so harrd, and he's a good education, does all sorts of office work, but he couldn't find anything.

"Jawn" is a ruddy cheeked young man of 21.

The G—— family is quiet spoken, dignified, not apologetic for its plight.

"How did you happen to come to America?" the mother was asked.

Save 10 Years for Trip.

"Annie wanted to come," Mrs. G—— replied, with a quick glance at the girl. "She had a friend here who said we could all get jobs and would be better off. So we came—300 pounds [$1,500] it cost to bring us. We'd saved for it for ten years. I couldn't go to the employment agency but the man and Annie and Jawn went and for a long time they couldn't get a job. I'm only here since June. We might hae been better off in Scotland, but this depression's world wide, they say."

The father, sitting beside the window, is philosophic about the family's misfortunes.

As Mrs. G—— said, there now are other families much worse off than this one. Funds still are needed, and needed badly, to carry on the work and to tide others over the unemployment period. Employés of the circulation department of THE TRIBUNE were the Good Fellows who had been providing for the G—— family. Their contributions were transferred yesterday to an Irish family in distress.

Your check sent to the Good Fellow department in care of THE TRIBUNE is devoted entirely to the support of these families, with no deduction for overhead or operating expenses.

Nuggets in Turkey's Crop May Start Gold Rush

FORT WILLIAM, Ont., Dec. 26.—(AP)—A Christmas turkey may start a gold rush to the Lakehead district. This one brought in two gold nuggets in its crop, one the size of a pea and the other slightly smaller. W. Kilson, who sold the bird, has excited the countryside. He is trying to trace the shipment of birds that probably have been grazing on a farm where the gravel most likely is peppered with gold.

SEEK BOND SALE TO RUSH WORK IN COUNTY FORESTS

Plan to Be Placed Before Board Next Week.

A resolution for immediate sale of bonds to provide adequate sanitation for the forest preserves under the $2,500,000 bond issue approved by the voters last November was prepared yesterday by George A. Basta, chief attorney for the forest preserves. The resolution is to be presented to the forest preserve board next week, so that the bonds may be sold early in 1931 to permit the work to get under way.

The program was prepared by the advisory commission under Brig. Gen. Abel Davis, who has described present conditions in the forest preserves as a danger to the personal safety of the thousands of picnickers who spend their Saturdays, Sundays, and holidays seeking recreation in these woods. The bond issue was voted as a five year issue to make the preserves safe playgrounds. Work is to begin as soon as the bonds are sold.

The Proposed Improvements.

The suggested improvements under the advisory commission program are as follows:

Three large pavilions, or shelters at $60,000 each. These are to have comfort accommodations for large crowds, large shelter rooms, water supply and sewage disposal, heating plants, kitchens, cafeterias, district and police headquarters, and facilities for winter storage of equipment.

Thirteen shelter and comfort houses at $50,000 each which are to have comfort accommodations, water supply and sewage disposal, rest rooms, first aid facilities, check rooms, boat storage, and shelter rooms.

Twenty large comfort stations at $25,000 each, with women's rest rooms and limited shelter stations. The list is completed with twenty small comfort stations to cost $10,000 each.

Other Works Planned.

These improvements would consume $1,655,000 of the bond issue. Other works contemplated under the issue include fifty parking places—ten large ones at a cost of $10,000 each and forty small ones at $5,000 each.

Ten dams, lakes, pools, and lagoons are estimated to cost $480,000. Of forest trail structures, such as bridges, tunnels, and highways, $35,000 is to be spent. The final item is one of $60,000 for playfields.

"Metropolitan Chicago now owns one of the greatest natural recreation centers in the world, almost 25,000 acres of forest preserves in Cook county," General Superintendent Charles G. Sauers said. "During the summer hundreds of thousands of persons visit these centers. It is imperative that the improvements be completed as soon as possible."

During the last year the commissioners voted bond issues of more than $1,000,000 for the acquisition of new land by the preserve district.

FRANCO-ITALIAN NAVAL BUILDING RACE ON IN 1931

Both Nations Lay Plans for Construction.

BY HENRY WALES.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Dec. 26.—Early in 1931 the French ministry of marine proposes to start construction of the following naval units: One 10,000 ton cruiser, six destroyer leaders, eleven submarines, one mine layer, and one net layer, a total of 45,000 tons.

Italy's program for the coming year, apart from the cruiser Gorizia, which will be launched Sunday, includes another 10,000 ton cruiser, two 5,300 ton cruisers carrying six inch guns, four destroyers, and 22 submarines, a total of 43,000 tons. This is the greatest annual crop of submarines any nation has constructed in a single year, except German during the war.

No New Naval Holiday.

It is learned that the pourparlers which are going on among the French, British and Italians in an effort to solve the Franco-Italian differences, do not envisage another naval holiday between the Paris and Rome governments, since the French consider that a further delay in building would seriously jeopardize their entire program.

Instead, the conversations are hinging on an ambiguous settlement which attempts to limit the big 8 inch gun cruisers to seven apiece, thus totaling 14, the number which Great Britain maintains under the London treaty.

Hope is held out that the league of nations disarmament conference will produce a solution for the deadlock over Italy's demand for parity with France.

Italy Is Optimistic.

ROME, Dec. 26.—(AP)—Prospects for a naval agreement between France and Italy are "a bit more optimistic than at any time since the London conference," a foreign office spokesman said today.

The present "naval holiday," accepted by the two countries last summer, expires in five days. The government representative declined to make any statement as to Italy's plans for construction if an agreement is not reached by Dec. 31.

Negotiations between Italy and France, halted several times, are again going on and it is considered possible they may reach a definite stage by the time of the meeting of the council of the league of nations Jan. 19.

The recent visit here of Robert L. Craigie, British naval expert and foreign office representative, created a hope of drawing the two countries together along compromise proposals.

BANDIT KILLS SELF

LEON ROWELL.

ROBS SO HE CAN WED; TRAPPED, HE KILLS SELF

A prospective bridegroom, who sought to obtain money for his wedding by holding up a store in Gary, shot himself through the head yesterday and died two hours later after he had been trapped by his victim.

The dead man was identified by a letter in his pocket as Leon Rowell, 25 years old, 724 Broadway, Gary, said by the police to have been a minor hoodlum.

The shooting occurred in Weiner Brothers' clothing store at 920 Broadway, Gary, where Rowell had made a small purchase, then produced a gun and obtained $9 from the cash register when David Weiner started to wrap the package.

After obtaining the money Rowell ordered Weiner to come from behind the counter and walk toward the open front door. Weiner did so, but as he neared the door he suddenly dashed outside shouting for aid. About 25 men gathered. Seeing the crowd in front, Rowell ran to the rear in search of a back door or window. Finding none, he raised the gun to his temple and fired.

The letter found in his pocket was signed by Miss Anna Meichen, box 39, Newport, Ind. It said she would arrive in Gary in a few days for their wedding.

INDIAN "MESSIAH" SICK FROM DIET OF BALKAN TOUR

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BUDAPEST, Hungary, Dec. 26.—His stomach greatly disturbed by Balkin foods and his contemplation perturbed by rabid anti-semetic students who heckled his lectures at Bucharest, Jiddu Krishnamurti, the theosophist "messiah," arrived in Budapest tonight a very disheartened young man.

His first act was to visit the hospital where the doctors ordered him to bed and announced that he would have to stay there three weeks if his stomach is to recover from the Balkan ordeal. The "messiah" was accompanied by two women, one Mrs. Liget, who registered as an American, and Mrs. Helen Lazar, a Hungarian.

Meanwhile Hungarian clerical papers have begun a violent campaign, calling for popular demonstrations against the young theosophist who dares "to masquerade as the new savior," as one headline put it.

Indio, Cal., Dec. 26.—(AP)—Frederick Schnell, a federal immigration officer, was in jail here today, charged with smuggling aliens into the United States over the Mexican border. Schnell's auto crashed into a bridge guard rail yesterday, and R. W. Little, deputy collector of internal revenue, found Schnell in uniform near the wreckage of his car and four Chinese hiding nearby. Fletcher Amhardt of Los Angeles, riding with Schnell and the Chinese, also was arrested.

RUSSIA IGNORES PROTEST; CLOSES JAPANESE BANK

Charges Illegal Money Deals of $35,000,000.

MOSCOW, Russia, Dec. 26.—(AP)—The commissariat of finance today charged the Vladivostok branch of the Bank of Corea with illegal trading in soviet currency in a statement explaining why the bank was ordered closed on Dec. 18.

The soviet action in closing the institution drew a protest from the Japanese foreign office, which said it considered the closing an unjustifiable and unfriendly act.

The commissariat's statement today declared the bank had been illegally dealing in soviet currency from Jan. 1, 1927, until Aug. 9, 1930, involving a total amount of about $35,000,000. The commissariat stated that rubles were sold at much lower prices than fixed by the soviet government, giving a profit to the bank of about $1,600,000.

Accuses British Firm.

The statement also charged that the British silver mining concessionaire, the Tetuhka Mining corporation, in addition to a number of Japanese companies had been dealing in illegal currency transactions with the bank. Tetuhka was the only western foreign company named.

The commissariat stated that the Japanese institution, which is known as the Bank of Chosen, "instead of carrying out normal operations and assisting in developing the financial and economic relations between Japan and the soviet union," carried on almost exclusively the sale of soviet currency in violation of the law.

The commissariat also charged the bank with smuggling both foreign and soviet currency abroad through illegal methods, concealing the profits of its currency operations, illegal printing in soviet territory of Bank of Chosen bank notes, and making false entries of these transactions.

Orders Bank Liquidated.

The commissariat's statement ordered its far eastern department to proceed with the final liquidation of the bank; impose a fine for illegal concealment of profits, establish the loss to the soviet government and finally to file suit for damages.

It is understood here that in view of the commissariat statement the foreign office will make no reply to the Japanese embassy's complaint.

STALIN SEIZES NEW OFFICE FOR RULE OF RUSSIA

MOSCOW, Dec. 26.—(AP)—Joseph Stalin, whose last office in the soviet government was membership in the old commissariat of nationalities seven year ago, today holds another office—ordinary membership in the council of labor and defense.

Chairmanship of this important body is vested in Viacheslav Molotoff, who is president of the political bureau and also of the council of commissars. Andre Andreieff, who is president of the central control committee and of the peasants and workers' inspection commissariat, is deputy chairman.

Stalin continues as head of the communist party and the newspapers make no comment upon his motives in accepting this new government post. The council of labor and defense is one of the three interlocking groups which govern Russia. The others are the state planning committee and the central executive committee of the Communist party.

EXPLAIN FIRING OF THREE POWER BOARD EMPLOYES

Washington, D. C., Dec. 26.—(AP)—Chairman Smith of the power commission said today the dismissal of three of its employes had been decided upon by a quorum of the commission members, and Frank R. McNinch of North Carolina and Ralph B. Williamson of Washington had not been consulted, because they had not taken the oath of office.

Smith's explanation came after the dismissals drew a demand from a group of Republican independents that the confirmations of the commission appointments be reconsidered by the senate.

The discharge of Charles A. Russell, Frank E. Bonner, and William V. King was the first official act of Smith, Marcel Garsaud, and Claude L. Draper after they took the oath.

Smith said the three commissioners had power to act, since McNinch and Williamson had not taken the oath and were not, therefore, members.

Chairman Nye of the senate public lands committee said today that if his committee orders an investigation of the Ralph S. Kelley charges of irregularities in the disposition of oil shale lands he would employ Russell as an investigator.

NEW EARTHQUAKE HITS ANDES; HUNT VICTIMS IN RUINS

33 Known Dead; Village Is Total Wreck.

SALTA, Argentina, Dec. 26.—(AP)—In the little village of La Poma, hidden in the rugged foothills of the Andes, the crude adobe huts which were homes of its families were piles of wreckage tonight and men went about turning over the debris looking for the bodies of their neighbors.

Disaster in the form of an earthquake took at least thirty-three lives there on the day before Christmas and sixty more persons were seriously injured. Most of the bodies have been recovered, but it was almost impossible to make a definite tally of the number of casualties.

Another strong earth shock this morning demolished several additional houses, but there were no casualties because the population was living in tents.

U. S. Engineer Tells Story.

An American engineer, J. N. Stone, came out of the La Poma district today, reporting that inhabitants of the vicinity still feared to return to the villages lest another landslip bring new danger. Many who fled to the open fields at the first shock remained there for the last two days.

The quake began with a rumbling in the earth which grew louder until it sounded like the hoofbeats of hundreds of horses. La Poma was abed and most of those who were killed were pinned under the heavy adobe blocks of which their houses were built.

This village, like all others in the region, was composed entirely of one story adobe buildings, whose walls were a yard thick and whose roofs were made of mud and grass.

Walls Tumble Inward.

The roof beams were great cactus stalks on which were laid alternate layers of grass and mud until the whole thing was a foot thick and weighed about 300 pounds to the square yard.

The first severe shock sent the heavy walls tumbling inward and flung tons of mud roof on the householders before they had time to leave their beds.

It has been difficult to get relief expeditions through to the stricken area because of the rugged nature of the terrain. The government already is making plans for rehabilitation of the victims.

Dishes Rattle in Alaska.

KODIAK, Alaska, Dec. 26.—(AP)—Three distinct earth shocks were felt here early today, the last of such intensity that buildings were shaken and dishes fell from shelves. The buildings were undamaged. The quakes began at 2:59 a. m.

FIRE NAVAL ACADEMY STUDENT FOR PLAYING WITH ELECTRIC WIRE

Annapolis, Md., Dec. 26.—(AP)—Discovery of a labyrinth of wires radiating from his room controlling clocks, telephones and elevators in a wing of Bancroft hall, home of the midshipmen of the United States Naval academy, has resulted in the resignation of a member of the second class, it became known today. The name of the student, whose quarters had been converted into a conning tower for the dormitory, was not made public. His roommate was given demerits for failing to report his companion's eccentricities.

Following the multitude of wires authorities discovered the solution for many recent irregularities in dormitory life. Among them was why the elevator used by first class men shot to the fourth floor when the third floor button was pressed and then dropped the seniors suddenly to the first floor without warning.

The discovery was made by an officer who heard the click of an electric clock behind the door of the student's quarters. It was found the timepiece in the room was connected to the master clock on the first floor.

Other wires dropped to the second floor telephones. Other wires caused the lights in the corridors to burn brightly for a few minutes and then grow dim.

FRANCO-BELGIAN SECRET TREATY STIRS UP A ROW

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BRUSSELS, Dec. 26.—An important cabinet meeting is scheduled for Tuesday, when the Belgian government will decide whether the military accord with France obliges them to go to war against Germany in case of trouble between that country and Poland and whether Belgium would be forced to go to war with Italy in case of Franco-Italian hostilities.

A majority of the military and political opinion here agrees that the secret military convention signed with France in 1924 is merely aimed at combined defensive operations against another invasion and that the only other further commitment of the Brussels government is what is undertaken by all signatories of the Locarno treaties.

The exact scope of the treaty has been focused in the limelight through an English press attack against the secret alliance, which the newspaper considered significant in view of the league of nations council meeting on Jan. 19, when Germany is preparing to make grave accusations against Poland which may develop into Germany making a formal demand for revision of the Versailles treaty.

19 Year Old St. Louis Man Fired On by Gunmen

St. Louis, Mo., Dec. 26.—(AP)—William Lombardo, 19 year old gangster, was shot and seriously wounded today by gangsters who fired on him from an automobile as he stood on the sidewalk in front of his home. Wounded in the chest, left side and right arm, Lombardo was found by a relative.

SAY JUDGE HAS COURT AT HOME TO AID BONDSMEN

New York, Dec. 26.—[Special.]—A magistrate charged with turning his home into an annex of his court and keeping it open all night to oblige his bondsmen friends and their runners who wanted bail bonds signed has been called to the attention of Isidor J. Kresel, special counsel for the Appellate division's investigation of the sixty Magistrates' courts. The as yet unnamed judge is the sixth magistrate to be investigated.

The Brooklyn Court of Special Sessions took a hand in the situation created by alleged "framing" of women on vice charges today, and ordered a new trial for Mrs. Mary Grow, a nurse, who was arrested last June by vice squad policemen on apparently fictitious evidence.

It reversed the decision of Magistrate George Curtis Jr., who found Mrs. Grow guilty, and the sentence of Magistrate Jacob Elperin.

GAMBLING YIELD IN FRANCE DROPS; YANKEES BLAMED

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Dec. 26.—The 169 gambling casinos in France yielded a revenue of 112,480,000 last year, according to figures just published and the state tax amounted to $6,840,000. Last year the revenue totaled $16,200,000 and the state garnered $8,480,000. The maximum year was 1928 when $16,520,000 was collected.

The serious diminution of the number of American visitors accounts for the falling off of the receipts last year and further reductions are expected for the coming year. In order to bolster up the gaming receipts parliament's budget commission proposes to establish licensed gaming halls in Paris and the suburbs.

CRIME AND THE MAYORALTY.

Inasmuch as Judge Lyle was already prominent in the public mind as mayoralty timber and is one of those under consideration by party leaders for the nomination, his announcement introduces no novel factor into the situation, though it will not have the immediate effect of emphasizing it. Discussion of his strong claims may be postponed until the deliberations of the Republican leaders have reached a more definite stage or a conclusion.

Meanwhile Judge Lyle's characteristic statement is an excellent summary of conditions and of the real elements of the problem before our citizenship. We think the most timely and useful of his remarks are those which emphasize the responsibility of the mayor for police integrity and efficiency. It is, of course, by no means an exclusive responsibility. The interrelations of organized criminality and corrupt politics are wider than that. But the mayor is really the key of the situation, and it has been one of our expensive futilities that public opinion has allowed itself to be distracted from the fact. We have talked vaguely about getting an army officer for chief or some other strong and independent man. The chief of police is as strong and straight as the mayor and not a jot more so. He will be as efficient as the mayor permits him to be. He will act as the mayor wants to act or not act, or he will get out. Until the law establishes complete independence of the police the only remedy is in a strong and honest mayor.

When Judge Lyle says it is ridiculous to assume that all these officers of the law—that is, 98 judges, 1,500 bailiffs, clerks, deputy sheriffs, and attachés of the courts and about 6,000 policemen—cannot suppress and almost totally annihilate the little bands of skulking assassins, he says what is in every citizen's mind. It is ridiculous, but in the present domination of the alliance between organized criminality and corrupt politics it is and will continue to be true unless the alliance is smashed. That job is under way, and we are confident it will be done, but not until we have a mayor in the chief seat of power who can be depended upon to do his part.

The conditions, which in their present culmination endanger the safety of person and property of the citizens and made the city's name notorious throughout the world, have their roots in old evils of our politics. But at the moment when prohibition brought crime resources hitherto unknown we have had the misfortune to find the public defense mainly in the keeping of a régime more unscrupulous and incompetent than has ever before occupied the city hall. The first duty to ourselves and Chicago is to get rid of that régime and to replace it with an administration which will have some conscience in public affairs, some regard for the duties to which the voters have called it, and some vigor and competence in the protection of decent citizenship, to say nothing of the faithful conduct of public business.

GANDHI AND THE LIBERALS.

English liberalism may be wincing secretly as it follows the course of events in India under the benevolence of the Labor government and its professed concern for the under dog, but if it has its embarrassed moments they are concealed in the closet and outwardly the Liberals are standing up as stoutly as crusted Tories against the cause of man and the higher humanities.

It is hard to pin turpitude on the idealistic Gandhi, who reproaches violence as earnestly as he desires liberty, but he is nevertheless a bad egg. A violent character, a passionate rebel who believed in using sticks, stones, and gunpowder, would be, in Liberal English opinion, a more creditable figure in this Indian revolt. The Manchester Guardian, for instance, makes this point, and much of it to sustain the moralities of British repression. The Guardian is usually tender on the subject of the humanities, but it can find here that Gandhi is essentially reprehensible. He is responsible for the terrible assaults the British and the native police make upon unresisting natives. All the correspondents who have been at one of these scenes agree that it takes the highest degree of insensibility to be an onlooker when the police beat in the faces of the passive Nationalists, who merely maintain their positions until they are pounded into the relief of unconsciousness and taken away to the hospital. Whatever reluctance the police may have when they first charge seemingly disappears in a fury against the motionless victims.

They will not obey and they will not fight. Such obduracy is maddening. It is not altogether hard to understand the English feeling. Conventional rebellion allows the rebels to fight. If they do not choose to obey they may grab their weapons. If they think themselves justified the world grants them their day on the battlefield? British propriety could understand that. The rebels using violence would be classified as impudent rascals, but deep down it would be understood that they were respectable in their methods. They wanted a fight and they got it. Furthermore, they would justify the repression of their rebellion by violence.

The British raj would seize the cudgel or the gun and dust the hides of the malcontents or blow them into eternity, and this violence would be respectable. It would have benefit of clergy and could be mentioned in the prayers. It would reflect credit on the repressors and might bring them glory, distinguished mention, medals, and new titles. All Gandhi allows the military arm of the empire is the consciousness of a bad job brutally done and a troubled conscience. It must tire more than the arms to beat up unresisting people.

The English Liberals try to calm themselves, and very well succeed, with the reflection that if these infatuated Nationalists will not fight they ought to obey. The alternative is plain, and respectable people would choose one or the other. Gandhi's followers will do neither.

They will assemble in places where their gathering has been forbidden. Thus they break the law, and the police must carry out instructions to clear the area. To do so they must beat in the faces of natives who merely keep the face upturned to the blow until they fall in their tracks. It might be a little more sensible not to be so quick to forbid the assembling, but the apparently bewildered government is forever stepping out to cause for itself just the trouble which the prohibited assembly makes.

The nonresistants thus prove that abstention from violence is worse than violence. It does not serve the purposes of peace, but invites the more brutal consequences of oppression.

Gandhi has chosen a powerful weapon and even the English Liberals damn him for it. He is breaking down the moral justifications of the empire which have always waved bravely in the face of malcontents and critics. Occasionally a passionate Nationalist breaks away from his restraints and takes a shot at an official, but the heaviest blows are dealt by the inert arms of passive victims. They may not conquer the military, but they are destroying the moralists.

RED FLANNEL SENATORS.

It may be unusually exasperating for the radicals in the senate to observe on the part of the administration a determined and resolute effort to get their own congregations away from them. President Hoover quite apparently has never taken his political eyes off the oddities and curiosities which swelled his vote two years ago. These marginal vagaries may have impressed him as constituting the core of Republican strength. Greater political experience would advise him that they were entirely vagarious and useless in Republican councils. However, it seems to appear otherwise in Washington.

The administration bid for radical-dry populace evidently has provoked the radical senators into more fitful wildness. Usually they must taunt an administration for not being with them, but when they see signs of an encroachment upon their preserves they will take to the wilder open places. Mr. Hoover cannot keep up with them. They will never let him agree with them. They will always go higher and further with more reproaches because he is following them.

The ultimate test is the wearing of the radical emblem, red flannel underwear. Parlor radicals such as Pinchot and Cutting may trim it with lace, but wear it they must. If it should appear on the White House line it will only be evidence that the administration is making the last futile effort for a coalition which would blow up rather than merge.

RIGHTS OF REPRESENTATION IN ILLINOIS.

When the legislature meets next month it will have on such conscience as may be exercised for the occasion the figures of another census pointing to the mandate in the constitution for the redistricting of the state to preserve the system of representative government. The present representative districts, both for the general assembly and for congress, are based on the census of 1900. The growth of thirty years is indicated by the new census figures, with the redistribution and increase of population in that time.

To preserve representative government the districts must be adjusted to the movement of population. Otherwise there is lack of proper representation in one area and another area has votes to which it is not entitled. A legislature elected in such conditions is a fraud. It is composed by disfranchisement of some of the people and by the equivalent of ballot stuffing by others. The elections are fundamentally dishonest. The assembly is not a constitutionally organized body even if the courts must uphold its acts as valid. Legal expedience may regard this as necessary, but it remains true that such an assembly is based upon nullification of the constitution and on betrayal of public oaths of office.

Unfortunately no remedy has been found for conditions created by nullification. Rural legislators, falsely swearing to obey, try to justify their act by a theory of balanced representation between country and city. It is unsound theory. Now less than ever is it possible to defend the disfranchisement of American citizens in the election of legislatures. The people need their full political rights for the protection of their possessions and their interests. One section of a state cannot be made inferior politically without injury to it.

Rural Illinois has been warned before and may be warned again. It will either restore full political privileges and rights to the people of the metropolitan areas of the state or these areas will combine to take over administrative government and keep it, excluding from it all persons not resident in the cities. This will be an undesirable thing, but it will be forced upon the cities by their own needs. If they cannot have a square deal in the legislature they will need the protection of the governor's veto and they will have to have control of the administrative offices.

Editorial of the Day

PITY POOR CHICAGO.

[Columbus Dispatch.]

William Hale Thompson, now nearing the close of his third term as mayor of Chicago, has given notification that he will be a candidate for reelection. Unfortunately, the chances seem to be in favor of his success. It is a bad fact that his strength lies just in those qualities which unfit him for that or any other official responsibility. The gangsters, hoodlums and other vicious and disorderly elements alone could not elect him; however, there are hosts of Chicagoans who pass as respectable and orderly citizens, but who are likely to lend "Big Bill" all the aid he will need to pull him through. Why will they do this? Simply because they see chances, in one way or another, to make personal profit out of situations which might cease to exist if the Thompson machine were crushed by his defeat. The ramifications of grafting and vice protecting politics often penetrate into quarters where they are least suspected.

HIGH BLOOD PRESSURE.

THE significance of certain phases of high blood pressure comes to us by reason of a study of a large number of convicts in a penitentiary, made by Drs. Alvarez and Stanley. Among their conclusions are the following:

The systolic pressure, commonly called the blood pressure, is normal over a range between 90 and 140. As a rule, any pressure between these limits calls for no special consideration.

The blood pressure is not a proper measure of age. Nor is age a proper measure of blood pressure. The theory that the expected blood pressure increases about one point for each added two years of life is wrong, at least in certain of its phases. Other things being equal, the blood pressure is the same at ages twenty and forty. If a man has a high pressure at forty years of age the probability is that he had one, and about the same one, at twenty years of age.

In a study of blood pressure in young people made several years ago Dr. Alvarez established that a pressure of 120 at age 20 was far from being constant among healthy young people. Increase in blood pressure after age forty is of much more importance than it is in younger people.

In persons over forty years of age overweight is a factor in high blood pressure.

Thick, stocky, short necked men are no more liable than young people of other builds to develop high blood pressure and to die from apoplexy. This interests me because when I entered a certain medical college the first lecture I heard was by a thick, stocky, short necked professor, and his subject was apoplexy. He told us that men of his build could expect to pass out by the apoplexy route. He proved his point by dying of apoplexy eight hours later.

Drs. Alvarez and Stanley could not find evidence that indulgence in alcoholic beverages or having had syphilis was a cause of high blood pressure. The use of tobacco did not get a clean bill of health from them. Mexicans are not much troubled by it, but Negroes pay a higher penalty to it than white men do.

It was less prevalent among convicts than Alvarez has found it among free citizens of the same age and of fairly comparable groups. Convicts, with bed, board, and work assured, seem to be better adjusted to life and less disposed to worry than are men who engage in the competitions and strife of community life.

Blood pressure tends to rise in cold weather and to fall in warm.

SMITH CURE.

W. C. S. writes: I notice inquiries in your column concerning cures for poison ivy. I am not a doctor, and yet I unite broken and worn parts. I am a blacksmith. One having poison ivy should go to his blacksmith and bathe the parts in his "slack tub." I am 76 years old and have followed the business for more than fifty years, and have known of many cures and with no expense.

REPLY.

Adair thinks a solution of a certain iron salt is almost a specific for ivy poisoning. Your "slack tub" is certainly rich in iron. You may be a pretty good blacksmith as a doctor as well as the other way around.

COLD FINGER TIPS.

Mrs. L. F. S. writes: The tips of some of my fingers become white and numb, as if the circulation is gone, even when the weather is only moderately cold.

REPLY.

These are symptoms of Raynauds' disease. Keep your hands warm and dry. Wear warm, loose gloves. Some people with this disorder spend the winter in hot climates. A surgical treatment is on trial. Ordinary medical treatment is ineffective.

NEW SIGNS FOR OLD.

Chicago, Dec. 17.—[Friend of the People.]—Since the opening of the new Ashland avenue between Fargo and Birchwood avenues there has been no end of trouble in locating the buildings facing old Ashland avenue. Many families suffer nondelivery of parcels from this. If we could have a street sign we believe it would relieve this condition.

A. C. B.

Report is made by our sign division that street sign has been ordered and will be placed at the southwest corner of Ashland and Rogers avenues, as per request.

Superintendent of Streets.

"FOR ADULTS ONLY."

Chicago, Dec. 22.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—In Chicago a child of 12 years is forced to pay the same admission to a moving picture theater as an adult. Then along comes a picture "for adults only" and the child of 12 years is not admitted, and the sign reads "no children admitted." 2. Isn't the party referred to classed as a child? 3. If so, shouldn't the child only have to pay half price and not the price of an adult's admission? 4. Can one make a theater admit a child of 12 years for half price to a performance when this child has been refused admission to a show marked "for adults only"?

K. F. B.

1. The picture shows are under no legal obligation to serve the public generally. They can make unreasonable discriminations and refuse to deal with persons to whom they object because of a mere whim, provided the objection is not based upon race, color or one of the other grounds specified in the Illinois civil liberties act. If you intend to ask, not as to the law but as to what is wise and fair, we would say that the restrictions on children's entering are for the protection of the children and, hence, should not be regarded as a privilege of adults.
2. Yes.
3. They can charge such price as they choose.
4. No. TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

BITS OF LIFE I'VE MISSED.

While walking down an avenue I came upon a shop;
'Twas small, exclusive, quiet, dim, what could I do but stop?
I saw an ivory elephant up high upon a shelf.
"I'd like to have that elephant," I murmured to myself.
I priced the ivory elephant and sadly sighed to see
That little ivory elephants were never meant for me.
Sometimes I pause before the shop and there upon the shelf
The lonely little elephant still stands all by himself.
For you, O Unattainable, my love is much the same;
I know I dare not love you, but I thrill to hear your name.
I dream of your lips pressed to mine, although we've never kissed.
You and my ivory elephant are bits of life I've missed.

P. S. McDONALD.

GOOD OLD Los Onglaize broke out on the front page yesterday proudly boasting that for the first twenty-four days of this month it had had 290 first class, A1 holdups and 509 burglaries. Gosh! It's the climate.

"DRY LAW KEEPS 50,000 in Jail Christmas Day."—The Trib. Do you remember away back when the orators told us with terrible solemnity and impressiveness that if prohibition was made a law of the land all the jails could be immediately torn down, there would be no further use for them? And now, twelve years or thereabouts since the noble experiment began . . . 50,000 in jail. . . . Tck, tck, tck!

ARE YOU BORED STIFF with Your Job?

Why, you poor egg, you ought to be tickled to death you've got a job; but that's neither here nor there. What we're out to do is to sell you the idea of getting some new work, some nice, cushy white collar job where you sit at a desk and push buttons and hold conferences. How do these jobs look to you? Pretty soft, what! Well, are you ready to step into them? Let us prepare you by mail. Look 'em over, kid, and pick out what you want!

(1) UNITED STATES SENATOR. A nice classy job permitting you to wear a silk hat even when not going to the opera. Good chance of making the front page every day or so, besides getting with a lot of swell guys. One of our best courses.

(2) PRESIDENT OF SOUTH AMERICAN REPUBLIC. Nice clean work, with opportunities of quick turnover and chance to see the world and retire early from position. Also very quickly and about three jumps ahead of a bayonet. However, three jumps is plenty.

(3) DICTATOR. Dictators have become so numerous lately we have started a special course of instruction in Dictatorology. New jobs are opening all the time; it looks as though there might be a fine opening in Spain very soon, and that's a lovely place to live—what with the Alhambra, bull fights, and fiestas all over the place.

(4) FOOTBALL COACH. Be a football coach and have the professor of astronomy bring up your breakfast to eat in bed every morning. Have the professor of ancient languages mowing your back yard and doing the chores, and the college trustees washing your clothes and doing the mending, and the alumni spading your flower beds and whitewashing the woodshed. Now, folks, this is good; get in on it.

(5) POET. We guarantee to make you a regular poet—Spring, Lyric, Sob Stuff, Comic, Heart Throb—any kind—in just a few lessons. A poet doesn't make much money ordinarily, but he has lots of social prestige and doesn't have to comb his hair or wash his face, and can wear old clothes all the time and get away with it.

Our mail order course is better than attending class personally. And, besides, we don't want you hanging around. Pick out the job you want and then buy a Linebook of 1930, 10 cents in person, 12 cents with a stamp.

JUDGMENT.

I had revenge—
My soul shrank up
A cubic inch or two—
Love had to get His stretchers out,
'Twas all that he could do
To pull the shriveled thing to shape
Presentable to view.

FROM THE TRIBUNE'S COLUMNS

16 YEARS AGO TODAY

DECEMBER 27, 1914.

BERLIN.—An attack by British cruisers, destroyers, and hydroplanes on the German naval base in the North sea, of which Wilhelmshaven and Cuxhaven are important centers, is reported in a statement from the admiralty. The hydroplanes convoyed the ships and hurled bombs at the anchored vessels of the Germans in the bay, according to the statement, but the invaders were driven off in one of the most thrilling actions of the war, with ships, hydroplanes, and balloons involved.

CHICAGO.—Chicago is the healthiest city in America, according to statistics for the fading year of 1914 compiled by the department of health. The death rate for the year was 14.17 out of every 1,000 of the city's residents.

CHICAGO.—Carter H. Harrison, five times mayor of Chicago, may be mayor for four years more—granted the requisite number of votes are cast for him. The only other obstacle between the city's chief executive and retention of his title has been removed. Mrs. Harrison has absolved him from the promise not to run again which he made to her four years ago.

30 YEARS AGO TODAY

DECEMBER 27, 1900.

CHICAGO.—It was formally announced that Harlow N. Higinbotham would retire on Jan. 1 from the house of Marshall Field & Co., with which he has been connected as an employé and partner since 1865. The fact was made public at a dinner given for him by Marshall Field at the Field residence, 1905 Prairie avenue. The following business associates and intimate friends of both Mr. Field and Mr. Higinbotham were present: Byron L. Smith, John Barton Payne, Cyrus H. McCormick, Elbridge G. Keith, Marvin Hughitt, John J. Mitchell, William A. Fuller, W. J. Chalmers, John G. Shedd, Charles L. Hutchinson, Harry G. Selfridge, Norman B. Ream, H. H. Kohlsaat, Robert M. Fair, A. C. Bartlett, and Thomas Templeton.

CHICAGO.—Mrs. Lula C. Jenkins, now of Chicago, has been awarded $4,000 for the lynching of her husband in Ripley county, Ind., three years ago. The money will be paid over by the eight bondsmen of former Sheriff Henry Bushing as the result of a private settlement of a suit brought by the widow after the murder. Jenkins was one of five men lynched in September, 1897, for alleged complicity in the stealing of a horse at Osgood, Ind.

CHICAGO.—Edmund J. James, professor in the University of Chicago and president of the American Academy of Political and Social Science, after working for twenty years in an effort to obtain a well authenticated instance of death from rattlesnake bite, reports that at last he has been successful. The case is that of Edward Swanson, who was bitten in Fort Valley, Ga., on Dec. 8, this year, by a "diamond rattler." He declares that this is the only instance in two decades in which positive proof has been obtained.

50 YEARS AGO TODAY

DECEMBER 27, 1880.

ST. PAUL.—N. D. Harwood, gifted financier of Minneapolis, who recently went bankrupt, has been absent from that city since Dec. 24, but the fact was only learned last night. His friends say he has gone to Chicago for rest and to restore his health, but it is believed by many that he has gone by a circuitous route to join his family in New Orleans and to go with them from there to Europe. It will be remembered that it was charged when Mrs. Harwood left that she secretly took with her a considerable part of the assets of the broken dry goods house.

DURBAN.—The Boers fired on a detachment on the Pretoria and Sydenburg road under cover of a flag of truce. At Potchefstroom the greatest excitement prevails. Four persons have been murdered. The Sixth Dragoons will be sent to Natal from England in response to a call from the commandant here.

CHICAGO.—The coffee cart made its appearance at Clark and Twelfth streets—a location selected by the promoters for the first trial of their enterprise because of the large number of lager beer saloons in that neighborhood. The coffee cart project is the result of the charitable inclinations of a Chicago citizen who hopes by distributing free coffee and bread to promote temperance.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE

Writers should confine themselves to 200 or 300 words. Give full names and addresses. No manuscripts can be returned. Address Voice of the People, The Tribune.

FUNNY COLLEGIANS.

Chicago, Dec. 22.—This is just a word in self-defense. I am home from college for the holidays, and I resent the picture of myself presented to the public by your Mr. McCutcheon in his cartoon, "Junior Is Home for the Holidays," in this morning's TRIBUNE.

Lord knows we are funny enough. But we do not wear battered old hats turned up in front, thank you, on the back of our heads, nor do we run up and down stairs tooting saxophones, nor do we play ukuleles any more generally than any other section of the public, including journalists.

Quite the contrary. We have become sophisticated. Ask any sophomore. We are more neatly and conservatively dressed than so many bank clerks. We call ourselves intellectuals, with a capital I. We Know About Life. We read Proust, too.

We would even get rid of rah-rahism if the newspapers and some other merchants would give us half a chance. Dr. Butler's proposal that seems to have stirred up such an excitement on your sports staff would be opposed not by college sophomores but by the gentlemen who make their living out of selling pennants at our stadia and selling poisonous liquor to our alumni, and by press gentry of the Irving Vaughan clan. We prefer Westbrook Pegler.

I admit we are funny. Excruciatingly funny; but we are not the healthy young naïve animals Mr. McCutcheon would have us, and I doubt if we ever were, even in the days when we affected old shoes and lumberjack coats and smoked pipes. And even that day, in which Mr. McCutcheon's cartoon would be at least superficially true, is long past.

I wish you newspaper people would leave us alone. We malign ourselves enough in our own "humorous" press. But if you must talk about us, I wish you would satirise a more contemporary set of poses. WISCONSIN '31.

CROWDED CARS.

Chicago, Dec. 19.—I see that the surface lines were short 10,124,350 revenue passengers in November compared with November of 1929. Why shouldn't they be short? There were over 600 runs pulled off in the last six months, all over the system. The cars that are in the streets can't carry the big loads. You take Crawford avenue coming south at Lawrence avenue in the morning. The cars are five minutes apart. When a car leaves Lawrence avenue they are hanging on the step. Now that is the first cross line coming south, so you just think of the poor passengers that are standing at Elston, Irving Park and the rest of the cross lines.

S. J. YOUNG.

SENATOR GLENN.

Newark, N. J., Dec. 22.—If you are a Republican paper and a supporter of Lincoln, McKinley, Coolidge, and Hoover, you will let the people know that the Republican party has one real senator at least, in Washington.

He is Senator Glenn of Illinois, who almost single handed defended President Hoover, publicly, on unemployment relief, and again who has defended party loyalty so established by Lincoln and promoted by Coolidge.

Senator Glenn of Illinois in the last three weeks has, virtually represented the whole Republican party of the United States on the floor of the United States senate. EVERETT H. HOLMES.

SHOOT ME, TOO!

Arlington Heights, Ill., Dec. 22.—Public affairs in Spain have taken one turn that is delightful and reassuring. I refer to the short document voluntarily signed by the known and the previously unknown members of the defeated democratic revolution, and deliberately divulging their names and active membership in the revolution, thus inviting death for their principles [printed in THE TRIBUNE in Sunday's issue, page 1]. These little declarations may accomplish what the military revolt failed to accomplish.

That document is, in spirit and letter if not in actual world importance, entitled to rank along with Magna Charta, the Declaration of Independence and the words of such men as Patrick Henry. Its sentiments and its voluntary self-accusation alike exhibit in its many signers an actual instance of that rare quality of "moral perception" and self-respect that President Hoover alluded to in his recent King's Mountain speech, but which is seldom, indeed, witnessed in public life.

I think that that document proves at once the righteousness and the moral inevitability of their cause, and, by contrast, leaves the ancient theocratic monarchy of Spain standing stark and black, condemned as morally incompetent, as every democratic adherent knows it to be.

The situation ought to remind us that the Spanish régime of 1930 remains exactly the same as it was in 1808—as theocracy and monarchy always are when not restrained by democracy. It also ought to admonish us to "look to our laurels" lest we fall back into "ways that ever yawn and beckon." Spain would certainly constitute one of THE TRIBUNE'S "backward states" if it belonged to the Union, yet from her travail comes this clarion note of unmistakable prophecy and leadership in fundamental social things, a note that strikes a distinctively religious chord.

W. L. BALLARD.

FALSE ECONOMY.

Chicago, Dec. 21.—I was greatly pleased to read your editorial on "Big Schools." There is no doubt in my mind about the correctness of your attitude, and you will find that the great majority of Chicago teachers will say "amen" to it.

It may seem cheaper in dollars and cents to build large schools than a number of small ones, but the return for the money in educational output is insignificant when compared with that resulting from the investment of the same money in smaller units, such as you suggest in your article.

Keep up the good work. The influence of a great paper like THE TRIBUNE will do much toward helping the teachers realize an ideal which they have often expressed. I am sure they welcome the sound of a voice that will pierce even the deafest of ears.

Principal Morgan Park High School.

THOUGHT FOR NEW YEAR'S EVE.

Davenport, Ia., Dec. 22.—The cost of a single pint of liquor will buy a pair of shoes, stockings, and underwear for some barefoot child, or a basket of groceries for some father out of work, with a brood of hungry little children that are crying for the bare necessities of life. H. E. W.

STATE OFFICIALS DENY HOARDING HIGHWAY FUNDS

Tell Status of Accounts.

Springfield, Ill., Dec. 26.—[Special.]—Recent charges reported to have been made by Mayor Thompson of Chicago that the state administration is hoarding $25,000,000 of road funds instead of spending it on highway improvements were denied today by Harry H. Cleaveland, director of public works and buildings, and Frank T. Sheets, chief highway engineer.

"Thompson is in error if he made the statements," the officials said. "Monies collected by the state can be used only for the purpose designated by the general assembly. Every dollar of the highway funds in the state treasury available for state road construction has been obligated under contracts."

Tell Amounts in Funds.

The officials analyzed the balance of $21,326,913 in the several road funds of the state as follows:

"When vouchers and warrants in transit are deducted there will be left only $18,310,983. Of this sum $96,500 was held by the state treasurer to pay interest on outstanding highway bonds payable during December, 1930; approximately $95,000 was reserved for the department of finance to make refunds on nontaxable gasoline, and $11,575,847 belongs to the counties as their share of state motor fuel taxes.

"Part of this sum is composed of unused balances in the county allotments and approximately $9,300,000 is their share of the 1930 collections, which will be alloted as prescribed by law and made available immediately after Jan. 1, 1931."

Balance Is Only $6,543,636.

Thus, the officials stated, the state's share of present road balances is only $6,543,636, out of which must be paid current expenses, such as policing, snow removal, construction payments, etc. Action by the department in letting emergency work to help the unemployed and drought sufferers has overobligated the 1930 revenues by more than $5,000,000, the officials said.

"The state is not warranted in letting contracts anticipating 1931 gasoline taxes until litigation brought by the city of Chicago and now pending before the state Supreme court has been disposed of," said Engineer Sheets. "The department therefore has been forced to limit its contract letting so as to obligate only 1931 license fees available for construction and so as to preserve funds to complete the program of highway widening, grade separations, and other construction for the Chicago metropolitan area pledged by Gov. Emmerson."

Wife Slays Husband After They Quarrel Over Woman

New York, Dec. 26.—[Special.]—Policeman Francis P. Kiernan, 52 years old, was shot and killed today by his wife in their home in Brooklyn. She told the police she had shot her husband after they quarreled over his attentions to another woman. Neighbors heard the Kiernans in loud argument for an hour before the five shots were fired.

BAIL BOND INQUIRY TO BE CONTINUED BY SPECIAL GRAND JURY

The special grand jury to be impaneled on Jan. 7 to investigate the police department also will continue the bail bond investigation, it was announced yesterday by Assistant State's Attorney A. C. De Witt. The December grand jury, which is expected to make a comprehensive report on the bond situation when it adjourns on Wednesday, already has indicted 13 professional bondsmen and is debating on impeachment action against two Municipal court judges.

"The bond investigation goes hand in hand with the police investigation," said Prosecutor De Witt. "We have investigated conditions in four police stations as they pertain to bond matters. We intend to investigate conditions in every station before the new jury.

"If we find that the conditions are the same in other stations as they are in some we have already investigated I predict that some policemen and maybe even a judge or two may be involved."

The December grand jury will not go into session again until Monday.

JUDGE PROPOSES LICENSING PLAN FOR BONDSMEN

Chief Justice John J. Sonsteby of the Municipal court proposed yesterday at a meeting of Municipal judges that individual bondsmen be licensed in the same manner as surety companies. Judge Freeman LeRoy Fairbanks was appointed chairman of a committee to work out the plan.

The chief justice proposed that each bondsman file a petition setting forth his record, financial ability and a schedule of his property. On filing of this information the bondsman would be given a rating under the plan. The certificate of rating would also contain the maximum amount of money and property which the bondsman can furnish.

BUSES TRAVEL 202,617 MILES WITHOUT MISHAP

Drivers for the Chicago Motor Coach company established a new safety record during the last five days of the Christmas shopping season by operating their buses through a maze of traffic for a total of 202,617 miles without an accident, J. B. Pepperman, safety superintendent of the company, announced yesterday. In this period more than 800,000 passengers were carried. One man operation of the buses accounted for the safety record, Mr. Pepperman believes. This operation, he says, has virtually eliminated the most common of all bus transportation accidents—"the boarding and alighting type."

Plane to Bring Out Bodies of Flyers Missing 15 Months

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MONTREAL, Que., Dec. 26.—A plane will leave here tomorrow to bring back the bodies of W. H. Cannon of Montreal, pilot, and Leon Lizotte, mechanic, which were found by Indians in the forest near Lake Chibougamou, after being missing for nearly fifteen months. The men left St. Felicien, Que., on Oct. 9, 1929, to fly to Chibougamou with supplies and equipment for mining prospectors. Two Indians came into Roberval yesterday with the wing fabric of the plane containing its registration letters.

CONTRACT IS LET FOR BUILDING OF OGDEN AVE. LINK

Great Lakes Dredge-Dock Co. to Bridge Gap.

The contract for completion of the Ogden avenue improvement project was awarded yesterday by Michael J. Faherty, president of the board of local improvements, to the Great Lakes Dredge and Dock company, the lowest of four bidders, on a bid of $4,349,668. The contract specifies that the work is to be completed in eighteen months.

The project, which will link two previously widened stretches of Ogden avenue, also will provide a traffic artery from Lincoln park to the west side. It calls for the construction of two bascule bridges, one across the north branch of the river and the other across the Ogden canal, and a viaduct structure across Goose island.

Nearly Mile of Bridging.

The entire structure, the viaduct and the two bridges, will run between Cornell and Rees streets, a distance of nearly one mile. The viaduct will have a roadway 78 feet with two 15 foot sidewalks. The bridges, each approximately 209 feet long, will have roadways of 60 feet with two 15 foot sidewalks.

The bid of the Great Lakes company was $190,200 lower than that of the Ketler-Elliott company, which built the Wabash avenue bridge. The difference between the lowest and the highest bids was $380,757. The bids were as follows:

Great Lakes Dredge and Dock Co.	$4,349,668
Ketler-Elliott company	4,539,968
W. J. Newman company	4,664,538
Fitzsimons & Connell company	4,730,425

The contract for the Ogden avenue project is the first to be let under the $20,000,000 bond issues approved at the Nov. 4 election.

Funds Await Council Action.

Money for the contractors will not be available until the bonds are sold and the city council sets up and adopts appropriations from the bond fund, but the work will be started, according to Faherty, as soon as legally possible.

The difference of $1,050,332 between the contract price and the bond issue of $5,400,000 will be used, according to Faherty, to construct bridgetenders' houses at the bridges, to perform electrical work in connection with the operation of the bridges and to purchase land as sites for the tenders' houses.

FOUND HANGED IN HOME.

John Lesniak, 42 years old, a shoe repairer, yesterday was found hanged from a rafter in his home at 3047 Kimball avenue.

U. OF I. ROMANCE BRINGS $25,000 SUIT, FILED BY THE GIRL

Monticello, Ill., Dec. 26.—(AP)—Declaration of a $25,000 breach of promise suit for Miss Rosemary Johnson, 21, of 6417 Kenwood avenue, Chicago, former University of Illinois coed, was filed in Piatt county Circuit court today against William Lodge III. of Monticello, graduate of the university.

Miss Johnson withdrew from the university in March, 1927. She is a member of Theta Phi Alpha sorority.

Lodge is the son of William Lodge, wealthy Monticello contractor, and a grandson of the late Judge William Lodge. He graduated from the university last year and is a member of Zeta Psi fraternity.

HERALD-POST AT LOUISVILLE PUT IN RECEIVERSHIP

Louisville, Ky., Dec. 26.—(AP)—The Louisville Herald-Post was placed in voluntary receivership today with its vice president, Ben S. Washer, appointed as receiver to continue it publication. His bond was fixed at $75,000. He said the paper would be published as usual.

The petition filed late today by the Herald-Post company, publisher, of which James B. Brown is president, said the paper owes debts it cannot pay. It has ten days in which to file a schedule of assets and liabilities and the law allows ten days more for appointment of a trustee to arrange for its sale unless some other arrangement is made with the creditors.

The petition in bankruptcy followed upon the closing in November of financial institutions of which Mr. Brown is head and his own act is going into voluntary bankruptcy.

BRITISH SOLDIERS PURSUE KILLERS IN BURMA JUNGLE

Hack Through Forests to Drag Machine Guns.

RANGOON, Burma, Dec. 26.—(AP)—British soldiers swinging the native machete hacked a way through the tangled jungle of the Tharrawaddy district today, dragging machine guns along with them in pursuit of embattled natives who have murdered a government forest ranger and killed at least four policemen in the last two days.

Villages in the vicinity of Weya have been terrorized by the rebels, whose activities were attributed to discontent with the burden of taxation in a year during which the rice crop has been pitifully slim.

Vanish in Jungle.

The marauding bands, which have appeared out of nowhere to battle the skeleton police guards, disappeared quickly again into an almost impenetrable forest and their pursuers have had the greatest difficulty catching up with them because of the difficulty of making any progress through the jungle and across the rice swamps.

The center of the disturbance is about 70 miles north of Rangoon. At the village of Weya H. V. M. Fields, a government ranger who returned only recently from a furlough to England, was overpowered in his lonely bungalow as he returned from an inspection tour and slain by the natives. Reports of the attack have created bitter feeling throughout lower Burma.

Employ Best Regiment.

The Seventh Mountain battery of Royal artillery, the first battalion of the Buffs, known as one of the finest regiments in all India, and the Second battalion of the Oxford and Bucks light infantry have gone into the district.

Field dressing stations have cared for a score or more of the police who were wounded in skirmishes with the attackers, and it is believed that at least that many of the natives were killed or wounded in the series of engagements.

The killing is supposed to have resulted over disputes between members of the confederation and the Union of Free Workers.

KIN HUBBARD, 62, CREATOR OF "ABE MARTIN," IS DEAD

Hoosier Wit Succumbs to Heart Attack.

Indianapolis, Ind., Dec. 26.—(AP)—Frank McKinney Hubbard, whose witticisms have been given to newspaper and magazine readers through the medium of a tall, gawky character known as "Abe Martin," died suddenly at his home here today. Death followed an attack of heart disease.

After his death his close friends and associates learned that he was 62 years old. He would never tell them his age.

He disliked personal publicity, but was prevailed upon several years ago to prepare an autobiography. In this he told of his boyhood at Bellefontaine, O., the place of his birth, of his yearning to be an actor or showman and of his ultimate development into a newspaper artist and humorist.

Character 26 Years Old.

It was 26 years ago that he drew his first "Abe Martin" for the Indianapolis News. It has been a regular feature of the News since that time and in recent years more than 300 newspapers and many magazines have printed some of the quaint remarks of this character whose habitat was supposed to be the Brown county hills of Indiana.

Only a few weks ago Mr. Hubbard published his last annual book entitled "Abe Martin's Broadcast."

In this book "Abe" and his neighbors made some remarks about current events.

"Abe" said: "When we do see a nice, well kept, prosperous lookin' farm we find it's the plaything o' some town pluticrat."

He also remarked that "Constable Plum has padlocked Joe Means' auto till he buys some coal an' shoes for his family."

Known as "Kin."

Mr. Hubbard was known to his associates as "Kin." He is survived by his widow, a son, Tom, a daughter, Virginia, and a brother, Horace K. Hubbard, and a sister, Miss Ada Hubbard, publishers of the Bellefontaine Daily Examiner, Bellefontaine, O.

The brother and sister were en route to Florida when he died. Funeral arrangements have been held in abeyance pending word from them.

LLOYD GEORGE THREATENS TO OUST M'DONALD

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Dec. 26.—Hints of impending trouble between David Lloyd George and the Labor government were contained in a statement issued tonight by the Liberal leader. He threatens that he may turn the government out unless the members toe the line on the question of dealing with the unemployment situation. The Liberal party recently entered into an agreement with the Laborites not to turn the government out.

In his statement Mr. Lloyd George said:

"The Liberals wish the members of this government to be given another chance in pulling themselves together. Unless they do so, even with the best will in the world for their continuance in office, they cannot be kept there much longer by any parliament possessing any sense of responsibility."

The Liberal leader also referred to the Labor ministers as being "fatuous and complacent," and challenged them to produce accurate information as to the number of persons actually employed in state aided unemployment relief schemes in addition to those employed under the last government.

FRANCO, HERO OF OCEAN HOP, SAILS IN THE STEERAGE

LISBON, Portugal, Dec. 26.—(AP)—Maj. Ramon Franco, in striking contrast with his triumphal arrival in Lisbon after his flight to South America a few years ago, left here tonight for Antwerp as a steerage passenger. With him was his inseparable friend and mechanic, Pablo Rada, who with Franco escaped from Spain after their abortive revolutionary attempt ten days ago.

There were few friends at the quay to say farewell. Clad in a shabby tweed suit, a khaki military overcoat and a gray cap, and with no baggage except a small bundle of necessities, Franco looked the typical emigrant. He said he had no plans for the immediate future, but would probably seek employment in the Dornier or Zeppelin works in Germany, failing which he would take sanctuary in Paris.

JOIN NAVY, SEE WORLD, SIGN TO BE PUT OUT AGAIN

Washington, D. C., Dec. 26.—(AP)—The "Join the Navy and See the World" sign is to be hung out again early next month.

The navy department announced today it would resume recruiting after New Year's day and by March be accepting the full quota of first enlistments.

Recruiting stations throughout the country are to accept approximately half the normal number of first enlistments in January, three-quarters the normal number in February and resume full quota in March.

Recruiting was suspended in October after a revised fleet operating plan became effective, reducing by 4,500 the necessary enlisted personnel.

Jane Addams Tells Chicago's Human Story

Neither Glorifies Self Nor Parades the Great.

BY FANNY BUTCHER.

"The Second Twenty Years at Hull House," by Jane Addams [Macmillan].

Twenty years ago Jane Addams, then fifty years old, and the leading woman social worker in America, wrote a history of the two decades since the founding of Hull house. It was a record of achievement in the greatest of all values—the adjustment of man to his fate. It also was the record of the growth of character in a great woman, although the author in writing her autobiography made less of the heroine of the book than did any of her readers. But her story was there, tacitly.

The same thing is true of "The Second Twenty Years at Hull House." They were not happy years, by the external fact of the great war and its aftermaths. Also, Hull house was by that time not only a completely going concern, but one which had proved its helpfulness and its necessity in the life of the city. It thus was in a period of "carrying on." And while carrying on has its compensating dignities and its powers of success, it lacks the thrill and the excitement of the founding and the breasting of the first difficulties. The first joys of youthful dreams and their achievements were past by the time that Miss Addams wrote her first book about Hull house. What she had to record in her second might have been a series of misunderstandings. It might have been, with reason, a slightly bitter record of man's inhumanity, not only to his fellow men but to one woman in particular, for we know that she was badly treated during the war and immediately following it, when to be a pacifist—even one who worked ardently and ceaselessly, as Miss Addams did, for the betterment of mankind and her own people without in the least revising her hatred of war—was to be reviled.

But "The Second Twenty Years at Hull House" is not bitter. It does not even make as much of what must have been terrific spiritual suffering as any outsider would have made. It again tacitly—by those very omissions, pictures the growth of character.

Only a great woman could have lived through the last twenty years at Hull house and write of it with such wise and gentle kindness and tolerance for all of mankind's foibles both small and great.

For those who expect a series of anecdotes of the great "The Second Twenty Years at Hull House" will be a disappointment. Miss Addams' second chapter of her autobiography is concerned, as her life has been concerned, with mankind and not with the individual bon mot artist. Miss Addams probably has known as many of the great as any Chicagoan—any American, for that matter—but her autobiography is not a panorama of those meetings. It is a record of the flow of events rather than the impact of individual human beings.

There are rare flashes of humor. She says "what the prohibition situation needs, first of all, is disarmament," or, in speaking of her being given an honorary membership in the D. A. R. because during the Paris exposition she was able to secure a grand prix for them, and later being put on their black list. "I supposed at the time [1900] that it had been for life, but it was apparently only for good behavior."

Young German Author Tells of Alexander the Great's Emotions

"Alexander" (Brewer & Warren) is Klaus Mann's second book to be translated into English. Klaus Mann is the son of Thomas Mann, Nobel prize winner, and the nephew of Heinrich Mann.

In his story of the great Macedonian general, the central tragedy lies in Alexander's early and continued admiration for his friend Clitus, who rejects the overtures of friendship. It was this rejection which first determined Alexander's passionate and fiery personality and fixed it into fierce and ambitious independence.

Against the background of Alexander's campaigns, his battles with the Amazons, entry into India, etc., Klaus Mann has told the story of Alexander's tragedy, a tragedy of the emotions rather than of the senses.

Short Stories Run Gay, Grave and Freakish

With Something for Almost Everybody.

BY EDITH WEIGLE.

One of the most amusing volumes of short stories of the year is "The Little Dog Laughed," by Leonard Merrick [Dutton]. It is the first group of short stories to come from the pen of this famous raconteur for several years and is even better than "A Chair on the Boulevard." Sophisticated to the nth degree, the stories are nevertheless written with a disarming simplicity and naiveté. They seem absolutely French and are done with a light touch that extracts a bit of humor or satire from the most tragic situation.

"The Elevation of Lulu" is a perfect delight, and you will laugh aloud at "The Crime of Olga Jibinsky." Mr. Merrick's consummate skill is evident in each story in the book.

Zona Gale is the other extreme from Leonard Merrick in literary temperament. Hers is a quiet, serious, simple way of telling things. In "Bridal Pond" [Knopf] you find pictures of the American scene done with a directness and sincerity that clothes them in truth. You will not forget the workman's family and the episode of the church in the first tale, nor the remarkable confession of the life weary farmer in "Bridal Pond."

Kay Boyle, on the other hand, needs much puzzling and knitting of brows to comprehend in "Wedding Day" [Cape Smith]. She's a couple of leaps ahead of the most modern of the moderns. She believes in traveling light, apparently, for she dispenses with all quotation marks, most periods and many commas. You have to read a sentence over several times to find where a quotation begins or ends and then several times more to discover what all the shooting's for. Only a positive genius can offer fruits worthy such continued labor, and Miss Boyle, I am sure, is not a genius.

It's the vogue, of course, to liken every clever new writer, nowadays, to the great Katherine Mansfield, but here's an instance where the comparison is deserved. "Shrimps for Tea," by Josephine Blumenfeld [Doubleday-Doran], is a fascinating book with much of the crystal clarity and sensitive perception that made "The Dove's Nest" and "The Garden Party" real contributions to modern literature.

For the most part the author deals with unexpressed emotions as much or more than with actual events in the lives of her characters. The desire of a toil worn office worker for romance furnishes the plot of a story that, in its very brevity and simplicity, makes an indelible impression.

Some of the stories are mere sketches, fleeting glimpses of the minds and hearts of people. I think Katherine Mansfield herself would like this collection.

Ben Ames Williams has written an imaginary history of a section of land just off the Georgia coast and extending to the Florida line in "Great Oaks" [Dutton]. With its great live oaks, some of them 300 years old, for a background, he traces the lives of the inhabitants from Spanish days to the era of the plantation owner and the civil war epoch. Each era is described in a separate episode, or story, independent of the others.

The subject matter is more interesting than Mr. Williams' manner of relating it. Cloying sentimentality at times obscures the beauty of the narrative. He is at his best when he talks about nature; at his worst when he talks about people.

"Tales Told by Simpson" [Macmillan] will charm the many devotees of May Sinclair, who, in this book as in all her others, is literarily preoccupied with psychology. Although this is a collection of short stories, a feeling of unity is attained because one character, Simpson, the painter, moves through them all. The tales concern the trials and tribulations as well as the joys of his friends and even his models.

Most of the stories are studies of women. While cleverly and in most cases mercilessly exposed, these ladies do not move you to deep emotion, however much they may intrigue your interest.

For his book, "The Wings of Adventure" [Doubleday-Doran], Philip Gibbs has written thrilling tales of many different incidents; a murder in Egypt; stories of the war and of the post-war period; a trans-Atlantic flight, etc. What is lacking is the usual carefully planned ideas of his other works he has made up in stimulating movement and interest. It seems a shame that such a facile pen as Mr. Gibbs', however, should trace the old, hackneyed themes it does in several of the stories. If they could be made to live surely he could revive them, but at least in one case the plot is simply threadbare with use.

Those readers who enjoy E. M. Delafield will buy "Women Are Like That" [Harpers], although it, too, does not present anything particularly new in ideas. It concerns itself with the actions and reactions of women none of whom seems to have average intelligence. But stories of women, rich and poor, in comparison with almost any other subject, no matter how presented, always seem to have an appeal, and this collection is no exception.

Dale Warren has gathered together sixteen remarkably fine pieces in "A Modern Galaxy" [Houghton Mifflin]. He has chosen a thumbnail sketch by Mary Austin; an utterly beautiful thing, called "Double Birthday," by Willa Cather; a haunting lyric prose bit about an Indian who is whiter than the white men who cheat him, written by Oliver La Farge, and stories by Margaret Ayer Barnes, Phyllis Bottome, Anne Douglas Sedgwick, James Norman Hall, and others. A consistent excellence characterizes the entire group.

Each year the O. Henry memorial committee chooses what it considers the best short stories written by

NEW CIVILIZATIONS RISE ON RUINS OF OURS; THAT'S STORY

BY FRANK SWINNERTON.

LONDON. — [Special Correspondence.]—Without any preliminary puffing a book has just come out here which is the talk of the men whom Punch calls "the higher critics." It is called "Last and First Men." The author is unknown, but his name is W. Olaf Stapledon, and so far as can be ascertained he is a native of Lancashire — perhaps of Liverpool. The book itself is a really extraordinary performance.

EDITH SITWELL.

It pretends to be told, through a man of today, by a very much "improved" man living two thousand million years hence. And it contains in brief the astounding experiences of mankind in the intervening period. How civilizations fell, and other civilizations rose; how these in turn passed, and were succeeded by others; how man, when he found that the world was in imminent danger of destruction by the moon, managed to emigrate to Venus, and thereafter to Neptune; and a host of other things are related. The relation is calm.

It is detailed. It seems to be well founded upon a basis of scientific knowledge, so that one does not all the time sniff and snort at incredibilities. And it is being taken seriously, as a real work of imagination. Even those who do not as a rule care for books about the distant future are admitting that they find this "Last and First Men" absorbing. It will be a most widely discussed novel among certain people.

Having finished her book on Alexander Pope, which was published earlier in the year, Miss Edith Sitwell has enlivened three tedious months of illness by making a collection of her favorite poems. This collection is being brought out in three volumes, of which the first is ready. It contains Pope's "Dunciad," complete—a matter of sixty pages or so; and Miss Sitwell says that only the refusal of her publishers prevented her from including the whole of "Paradise Lost." The publishers said that "Paradise Lost" was too long. Miss Sitwell did not see how that could be, but was persuaded not to insist upon reprinting the whole poem.

The anthology really is an individual affair, and the preface which Miss Sitwell has contributed is full of originality and understanding.

A very slight but subtle and charming French novel, called "Eva," written by Jacques Chardonne, has just been translated into English by Miss Viola Garvin. Chardonne is the author of a greatly admired novel, "l'Epithalame," which was published about ten years ago. Miss Garvin is the daughter of J. L. Garvin, the editor of the London Sunday newspaper, the Observer. Miss Garvin acts as literary editor of that paper, and the very individual comments upon forthcoming books are from her pen. It will be found that the translation of "Eva" is as graceful as one would expect it to be, coming from Miss Garvin, while the book itself [though by no means for the many] is for those of thoughtful and delicate minds. It tells the story of a man and his wife, from the husband's point of view, and shows him making endless sacrifice for his wife's happiness, only, however, to create disaster after disaster, until the final disaster arrives, and his wife is faithless to him.

American writers and published in American magazines. Blanche Colton Williams, the editor of the book in which they are collected, "O. Henry Memorial Award Prize Stories, 1930" [Doubleday-Doran], explains in a long introduction why each narrative was chosen by the judges. While such well known authors as Marc Connelly, Roark Bradford, Julia Peterkin, and Elizabeth Madox Roberts are represented, several interesting newcomers appear.

W. R. Burnett, who wrote "Little Caesar," and William M. John tied for first prize, so it was shared equally. Elizabeth Madox Roberts won second place with "The Sacrifice of the Maidens," and Marc Connelly's "Coroner's Inquest" was named the best short short story. The prizes are $500, $250, and $100.

"Dressing Up," the Burnett piece, is another exciting bit about Chicago's gangdom and a killer who spends his loot buying the most expensive clothes he can find, only to die in them as the Thompson begins to sputter.

Edward J. O'Brien's selections of best American and best British stories of the year are widely known and appreciated. This time he makes the interesting statement that a period of transition in this country is just over and one of integration has begun. He gives credit for all that is good in this change to the small magazines which are giving young writers, who represent the future, a chance. The older publications kept them out, he says, so they went to the lesser ones, and there he has found most of his material for the "The Best Short Stories of 1930" [Dodd Mead].

In his British collection "The Best British Short Stories of 1930" [Dodd Mead], however, Mr. O'Brien sticks to such well known writers as Norah Hoult, Padraic Colum, Naomi Mitchison, Kathleen Coyle, Sylvia Townsend Warner, and Lorna Rea, with a sprinkling of new names.

Sidelights on Victoria, Done by Ponsonby, Entertains

"Sidelights on Queen Victoria" is a most amusing memoir of Queen Victoria written by Sir Frederick Ponsonby, who is at present the secretary of King George V. His father was Victoria's secretary for many years, and Sir Frederick, who succeeded him for the last few years of her reign, was brought up in the royal household. The book is full of amusing episodes, customs, daily doings of the royal family, and contains many heretofore unpublished notes, letters, etc., of the queen.

Poetry's Muse Tunes Lyre to Careless Notes

While Stock Ticker Feeds Guileless Poet.

BY ALTA MAY COLEMAN.

NEW YORK.—[Special Correspondence.]—Roy Helton is a poet who sings his songs, like the little birdie in the tree, for his own pleasure, sharing them casually with all who have time to listen, but not dependent upon an audience for his inspiration. How does he differ from other lyric poets? In respect that he is content.

ROY HELTON.

"Lonesome Waters," his new book of ballads and folk songs from the Kentucky mountains, was not written for fame or for money.

"A writer who knows he won't make money," said Mr. Helton in the course of tea table talk at the Prince George on Wednesday, "is independent of the demands of the public. As for fame—nowadays it means too many acquaintances, no time for the real intimacy that makes friends." "It doesn't matter," he added, "whether your friends like your verses or not so long as they like you."

Good talk with friends—hearty wrangling argument without malice, long contemplative hours companioned with a pipe, summertime rambles over mountainous country, bending the wind to your will in a sail boat, pleasuring in the beauty of fog and a softly shaded climate—these are numbered among the things Mr. Helton counts greatest in life. His songs reflect the temper of his mind.

Now and again a bit of fame seeks him out. "Mary Jones of Filbert Street," one of the poems included in "Lonesome Waters," received The Nation prize for poetry. As for money rewards, the returns from his prose tale, "Early Adventures of Peacham Grew," bought him a boat. But since even a lyric poet must eat, Mr. Helton has acquired the wherewithal for his luxurious simple life from the stock market during the last year. Before that he taught English in a Philadelphia high school, wrote articles for newspapers, and lectured on literary and scientific topics.

In the modulations of his voice he bears the stamp of Kentucky, as also in his well proportioned yet roughly hewn features and in his rangy loose limbed figure. Though he was born in Washington, D. C., Kentucky has been the home of his family since early settler days and he has spent much time in its hills.

For lunch on Wednesday we had bacon and eggs and coffee, because we were sharing Maurice Colburne's breakfast. This blue-eyed Briton, who writes and lectures on books and the theater, who is an actor and also one of the governors of the Shakespeare Memorial theater at Stratford-on-Avon, is author of an entertaining little volume entitled "The Real Bernard Shaw."

Why does Shaw pay cash for his groceries? Why did he refuse the money when awarded the Nobel prize? These and many other questions are authentically answered by Mr. Colburne in his lively intimate picture of the great Irishman.

SYNOPSIS.

Robert Chandos and his wife, Leonie, former grand duchess of Reichtenburg, are visited at their estate near Littal, in Austria, by George Hanbury, companion of Chandos in many adventures. Marya Salm, countess of Dresden, an expected guest, wires that she does not come.

Prince Paul, ruler of Reichtenburg, had hoped to marry Leonie and was incensed at her marriage to Chandos. Fearing for Marya's safety, because of her friendship for Leonie, Chandos and Hanbury, with their servants, Bell and Rowley, depart for Vigil, capital city of Reichtenburg, where Marya resides. Because of the enmity of the prince they must enter the country in stealth. A peasant named Ramon whom they befriend leads them over the border by a secret path.

They reach the home of Marya unseen and learn from her that she sent no message. Realizing the telegram was a ruse to lure them to Vigil, they are preparing to flee with Marya, when the prince appears. The men hold the prince and his servants at point of pistol and escape in the royal car. The border is so closely guarded that crossing is impossible.

Their friend Ramon agrees to hide Marya and Carol, her trusted servant, in his home. Chandos and Hanbury join a traveling circus. Marya sends them a message stating she is waiting for them in Bariche, across the border, where Carol is to take them in a car he has waiting. They recognize the car as Grieg's, the chief of police. Arrived at the inn in Bariche they receive another message from Marya, stating that she is to be followed but she must remain in Reichtenburg and not communicate with them.

Knowing that Marya, endeavoring to save them, has made some impossible arrangement with Grieg, they return to the border. Hanbury and Rowley pass, but Chandos is captured. He proves to the inspector that Grieg has betrayed his trust. Grieg, who has learned of the arrest, arrives. He orders two detectives from Vigil back to prepare a cell for Chandos and takes his prisoner alone in his car. Hanbury and Rowley, knowing their friend's plight, post themselves along the road and hold up and capture the chief's car. They drive to the estate of Baron Sabre, where they find Marya. Grieg they left tied to a post along the roadside.

Marya tells them that she cannot leave with them as she was married that morning to Grieg—her price for their freedom. Hanbury, who is in love with Marya, is stunned by this news. Chandos sets out to find Grieg and kill him to free Marya. Grieg has been freed from his bonds, and while Chandos is searching for him he lays Rowley out and drives on to Baron Sabre's. Chandos and Rowley return to the Sabre estate, and while walking on the grounds they see a car drive up and three policeman alight. Shortly after Prince Paul arrives. He has Grieg arrested and brought out to his car. Chandos, hiding near by, hears their conversation. Grieg is forgiven when he tells the prince he has a trap set to catch his prey that evening at the secret border pass, as well as Leonie, who is to meet them there. The prince departs. Chandos returns to the house. A servant who tells him his friends have departed and expect him to join them that night at the border. Chandos goes back to find Rowley, who warns him in time to escape Grieg's police. Chandos and Rowley start to overtake Hanbury. The servant girl meets them and tells Chandos she will lead them to their friends. She tells him that Grieg has been receiving telegrams from Littal.

INSTALLMENT XXX.

INNOCENTLY BETRAYED.

"I think it is true," Leila said, "for Leonie lives at Littal, and that is where the telegrams come from twice in the day. Why did you want to see the last one I brought?"

"O, Leila," said I, laughing, "must I tell you the truth?"

"Why not?" says she, with her big eyes full of surprise.

"Well, then, I have a message for Leonie—a message from you."

"From me?" cried the girl, staring.

"You gave it to me just now. I was to tell her that though you were hard to please, you liked her man."

She started violently. Then——

"For heaven's sake!" she breathed. "O, my lord——"

"I am no lord. I am plain Richard Chandos."

Leila lowered her eyes, and the blood came into her face.

"I am very sorry," she said humbly, "and very much ashamed. I—I have made very bold."

"You have been very sweet and natural." I took her hand and kissed it. "If I did not respect you, I should not do that."

"You must not tell her highness," said Leila. "She would be very wrathful."

Brown and white in the sunshine a little old mill.

"Not she," said I. "She will write you a letter of thanks for being so good to 'her man'."

Leila stared at the sky.

"She is very lovely," she said irrelevantly. "I do not wonder that you have eyes for nobody else. She never goes barefoot, I suppose."

"No," said I, smiling.

Leila sighed.

"I do not always," she said. "I look much better in stockings and bright leather shoes."

"Never wear them for me," said I. "If Leonie lived as you do, she would never put on a stocking from one year's end to the next. Besides, I—I like your bare legs."

"I am glad if they please you," she said.

Since now she knew who I was, I told her the rest of our tale, only suppressing Marya's marriage to Grieg. At once she declared, as had Ramon, that the prince was afraid of his throne, for that all the country loved Leonie and would be only too glad to have her to reign in his stead.

"Be that as it may," said I, "I'm afraid she's leaving Littal. I cannot believe she will come by the smugglers' way, but Grieg may have information which I have not. But he cannot have known that we were to take that path and take it tonight. That was pure——"

Leila let out a cry and clapped her hands to her face. In her eyes there was plain horror.

"O, my lord, I told him. I never gave it a thought. When I took the last telegram, I could not find old Andrew and so I went into the hall. Grieg was there—on the stairs in his shirt sleeves, with a towel in his hands. He asked me if I had seen any one by the way. And I said I had met your friends and was looking for you. And he said he would give you the message, if I would give it to him. And so I did—I betrayed you. Mother of God, forgive me! I meant no ill."

As well as I could I brushed her reproaches aside.

"How could you know, Leila? Besides, if you did any ill, you have made it good. I feared that my friends would walk clean into a trap; but now it is not that have saved them by showing me where they are."

For all my logic she would not be comforted till I said she should help to kiss us until we could make our escape some other way.

"Will I not?" she cried. "You shall lie in the Great Bear barn. I will watch the livelong night, and you shall sleep like a child."

"Not tonight, Leila. Tonight I must take the path in case Leonie comes."

"But they will take you," she cried and caught at my arm.

"Not they," said I. "Forewarned is forearmed. I shall be there before them; and the odds are on him who comes first to a place like that."

"I cannot recall it," said Leila, knitting her brows. "I know the path, but I cannot remember the fall."

I told her again of the by-pass and how easy it was to find it for such as had ears to hear the water come down.

"But you will return?" says she. "Even if her highness is there, you will come back?"

"O, yes," said I. "I must return for the countess. If Leonie comes, I shall send her back to Bariche. But I do not think that she will."

"And then you will let me help you and watch while you sleep?"

"Indeed I will, Leila. I shall be very tired."

"Then that is settled," she said. "I am very glad. And please tell me more of her highness. Does she have a great many dresses? And is there always a servant behind her chair?"

If her talk was downright, she was as naïve and eager as the first breath of spring upon the year; Eve herself cannot have been more natural, and I have seen many women that bore big names, yet had not a ghost of her charm nor a tenth of her dignity. About her fancy for me she said no more, but was so frank and friendly that all my embarrassment fled and I felt an ease and comfort that I had not known since I left Littal six days before.

She would, I believe, have questioned me till bedtime, but ten minutes after we came to a sudden valley with a falling stream at the bottom, and, brown and white in the sunshine, a little old mill. Its water wheel was gone, and the place seemed derelict; ivy was scrambling up to its chimney stack, and tall grass leaned over the path which led to its door; but it was by no means a ruin, and the bulwarks of foliage about it made it so lovely a picture that I think, once he had seen it, a painter would never have rested until he had done what he could to capture the scene.

"There are there," said Leila, pointing a slim, brown arm. "I left them in the old parlor that looks out upon the pond. I will not go with you now because I must go to the village to get the file, but I shall be back in an hour. If you would bathe, I think you may do so safely, for nobody comes this way. But you will please be careful to bathe below the mill. I do not want to be drowned, but——"

"You are very sweet," said I. "I will not bathe in the pond. And now——"

"If you should be asked, you took the telegram to the house, and found no one you left it on the mat in the passage for Grieg or Andrew to find."

She nodded intelligently—with her eyes fast upon the mill.

Then——

"Good-by," she said softly, speaking half to herself.

"Good-by?'" said I. "But you are coming back, Leila?"

"O, yes, I am coming back to you—and your friends."

With that she was gone.

When she was out of sight, I went down to the mill, and when I reached the doorway, I turned and looked back. Instantly Rowley appeared at the head of the dell.

As I might have expected, the telegram made me a message I could not read.

Good morning!

More shenanigan re: Those old Spanish grants!

In the present instance the handsome nephew of a courtly old don decides to take the law into his own hands and revenge himself upon those who have done himself and his family wrong. He becomes the daring bandit El Puma, who robs the rich to help the poor and is greatly feared throughout the state of California.

This little yarn, based on the history of old California, is nicely photographed, directed, and acted. Some of the scenery is lovely and the package is prettily tied with the tinseled ribbon of Romance. Dialogue gets by.

Not a world beater, "The Lash"—but it's rather charming.

Comedie Francaise Refuses to Retire Cecile Sorel, 60

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Dec. 26.—An application asking that Cecile Sorel, 60 year old star of the historic state theater, La Comedie Française, be allowed to retire was refused late tonight by the management committee. Her retirement, which is desired by the young bloods in the theater troupe and by their political backers—for the Comedie is nothing if not a political institution—was successfully resisted by the conservative element in the theater organization. They pointed out Mlle. Sorel's 30 years' record of distinguished service with the Comedie troupe, during which she spread the glory of the French classical theater through Europe, the United States, and elsewhere. The fact that Mlle. Sorel is the theater's chief box office attraction played a direct part in making the management refuse to cancel her life contract.

Illinois Athletic Club Will Give Orphans Party Today

Children of members of the Illinois Athletic club yesterday gathered at the club for a Christmas party, the principal feature of which consisted of bringing toys to be distributed today to orphans.

More than 175 orphans will be brought by bus to the club today for the presents, which will be distributed from a tree by Santa Claus. A children's circus, a ventriloquist performance, a marionette show and a juggling demonstration by clowns, the same program that was given the members' children yesterday, will be given today, followed by refreshments.

RHODES SCHOLARS' 'UNCLE FRANK' SOON TO QUIT THAT JOB

OXFORD, England, Dec. 26.—(AP)—"Uncle Frank," known to Rhodes scholars throughout the world as an unfailing guide, philosopher and friend, is to retire.

Since 1903, when the Oxford colleges opened their doors to streams of students from all parts of the British dominions, the United States and Germany, Sir Francis J. Wylie has been secretary to the Rhodes trust.

His retirement at the end of the academic year will remove the last link connecting the day of the establishment of the scholarships with the present. Viewed at first as a doubtful experiment, the scholarships during Sir Francis' administration have become a fixture at the university.

The high esteem in which he is held was strikingly shown last year when a painting of Lady Wylie, the daughter of an American, was presented to him by old scholars and he was knighted by the king. He will be succeeded by Carleton Kemp Allen, professor of jurisprudence at Oxford.

'Spain Holds World's Hope' —Keyserling

He Blames America for "Machine Age."

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Dec. 26.—"South America has what North America lacks—heart, soul."

From the lips of Germany's most popularized wise man, between the Mongol-looking beard and mustache that grace these lips, have issued new pronouncements about America and the world.

Count Herman Keyserling speaks during an interview in the lobby of a hotel in Berlin.

In America, the count said, he had spoken freely and handed no bouquets—"I also told them things that they certainly did not hear with pleasure.

"But I presented it all in a light, satirical form, reflecting mostly on the contradictions. So I didn't shrink from sketching sharply the stupidity of the entire prohibition movement, or taking up cudgles against the domination of women (in the unfavorable sense of the terms)."

The philosopher-psychologist, author-lecturer count then proceeded to characterize the present machine age as though it were aired and dammed by America alone. He had a name for it: "The North American Period of History."

"It is unmistakable that we live in the so-called North American period of history, a time of mechanization and rationalization that continually, inexorably progresses.

"My last year's trip to South America revealed to me quite clearly the difference between the two continents. The South American is the complement of the other, and has the qualities that the other lacks: heart, soul, a real lack of interest in money matters and, above all, an exuberant temperament."

The new "Emotional Era" is to come in from 50 to 100 years. The forerunner of this renaissance is to be found already in the emergence of the Spanish-American world, he declared.

"It is today already clear to me, as the characteristic sign of a cultural development—that Spain is in and of itself a renaissance. The renovation does not show itself outwardly yet, it is true, but it is slowly expressing itself outward from the spiritual realm."

"To the Spanish culture epoch [he is just back from a year in Spain] with its so-to-speak emotional force, the future belongs. For certainly man determines his period, not the economic values which he has himself made," he added.

"One must consider Germany today from a two fold perspective," he declared. "From within it seems to be a tangle of obstructions and hardships. Seen from the outside, it seems to be the rising fact that the German nation today has much more credit, morally, than it had in the days of Wilhelm II.

"And it is my strong conviction that this land will be larger and stronger than it was before 1914."

Better Church Buildings Urged by Bishop Stuart

A move to raise the standard of church architecture in Chicago was started yesterday by Bishop George Craig Stewart of the Episcopal diocese of Chicago. He appointed a commission on architecture to study various styles of church edifices and to make recomemndations.

The commission members are to be Alfred Granger, Elmer C. Jensen, John N. Tilton, Angus S. Hibbard, and three clergymen as yet unnamed.

Bishop Stewart pointed out that an orchicturally correct structure not only is an aid to worship but also helps attract nonchurch as well as church members.

Lawrence of Arabia Now Translating Homer in Verse

[Copyright: 1930: By the New York Times.]

LONDON, Dec. 26.—[Special.]—Col. Lawrence of Arabia is occupying his spare time in the royal air force retranslating Homer's Odyssey into English verse. His great book, "The Seven Pillars of Wisdom," contained fragments of delicate and beautiful poetry, but otherwise Lawrence has confined himself to prose. If his translation of the Odyssey is ever completed it is unlikely Lawrence will allow it to be published.

New York's Orchid Bill Called $100,000 for Xmas

New York, Dec. 26.—(AP)—New York's Christmas bill for orchids was $100,000. Twenty-five thousand of those fragile blossoms were sold by florists and last minute prices in some shops went to $12 an orchid.

NEW YEAR PLANS HELP SALLY GET SOME EXTRA JOBS

New Year's festivities were keeping Sally Joy Brown busy yesterday. Preparations for the festivities caused a number of calls on Sally yesterday for girls or women to help with house cleaning, cooking, or the serving of meals.

"It's marvelous how this helps," Sally said. "We've just had one call for ten girls to wash dishes and to serve, for which they'll get a dollar an hour, and another for eight girls for the same work, for which the man was willing to pay only seventy-five cents an hour.

"Mrs. W. P., in the 9100 block on South Loomis, also called for a girl to help out with a New Year's party. R. M., on North Latrobe, wanted two women to do cleaning. The wages were less—fifty cents an hour—but if they last long enough the few dollars they can make will mean so much to the jobless women. It was just the same at Thanksgiving and at Christmas. We sent out so many and they were delighted to go.

"I can't think of anything that would make the New Year really a happy one than to give a job to some of these poor, deserving ones who have waited and hunted so long for something to do. There must be literally hundreds of mothers who will want to get away from home for that evening, who can't leave their children. If they'd only call us, we'd be glad to find them a girl to stay at the house that night, and who'd appreciate the money she would earn so much.

"There are all sorts of such jobs that can be created if people would only stop to think about it—it isn't that they haven't the spirit of helping. I'm sure the man who called yesterday to tell me of a temporary job for a stenographer at $25 per week, and the one who reported that he wanted a machinist at a good salary, are going to experience a happy glow, knowing that they've made somebody easier in mind and more comfortable in body. Having a job does make all the difference in the world in one's outlook for another twelve months."

To reach Sally Joy Brown and tell her of any work you have to do or that you know is available, call Superior 0100 and ask for her.

Spanish Novels Slighted by Prof.'s List, It Is Charged

Boston, Mass., Dec. 26.—(AP)—The list of sixty novels selected last summer by Prof. H. E. Lamont of Rutgers as the world's literary masterpieces was attacked today by speakers at the meeting of American Association of Teachers of Spanish. Prof. Lamont failed to include the work of any Spanish author in his list.

About 200 delegates are attending the annual convention of the association.

Dean Henry Grattan Doyle of George Washington university, president of the association, presided. Other speakers were Prof. C. E. Kaney of the University of Michigan, C. P. Wagner of the University of California, Esther J. Cooks of Goucher college, and John D. Fitzgerald of the University of Arizona.

Chicago Ready to Bid 1930 Glad Farewell

Dry Chief Here Warns of Open Drinking.

BY VIRGINIA GARDNER.

Chicagoans will bid farewell to the year of 1930 without much regret, according to word from hotels and clubs concerning plans for New Year's eve festivities.

The usual thousands of persons bent on making merry in the conventional New Year's eve manner will do so this year. Some hotels reported that their reservations were coming in faster than last year. All reported that they were making arrangements for crowds as large as last year's.

"There seems to be a feeling abroad that when 1930 goes, the worst of its companions, bad business, lack of faith, and so on, will begin riding away," one hotel man said. "It may be superstition, it may be based on facts, but it's a common feeling, I find."

J. F. J. Herbert, prohibition administrator for the Seventh district, issued a little advice to managers of hotels and night clubs in the form of a letter. Part of it follows:

"The approach of the season of the year when festivities are characterized by unbridled hilarity, carefree, incautious and bibulous practice, suggests that I address a word of warning to you.

"You and your place of business may become involved in a nuisance complaint by the possession and consumption of liquor by a patron, even when the liquor is not sold or served by you, if attaches of your establishment do not suppress display and drinking."

As to the price of booze, it was learned that due to the depression of business, which has affected the business of bootlegging as well as any other, prices so far have not been raised. Little of it is coming into Chicago this holiday season, in contrast to the wholesale entry of booze by truck, boat and box car last year, because at present there is a lot on hand, it was said.

In addition to large parties at the Hotel Sherman, Hotel La Salle, Edgewater Beach hotel, Stevens hotel, Congress hotel, Drake hotel, Morrison hotel, and Bismarck hotel, smaller parties at the Blackstone hotel, and dances at the Granada and Blackhawk cafes, Lincoln Tavern Town club, Golden Pumpkin, Casino Moderne, Four Seasons and other cafes and night clubs, many private clubs will have parties.

At the Illinois Athletic club there will be a few small private parties, but the word has gone out that the club will frown on other than a quiet, sedate New Year's eve on its premises.

A capacity crowd is expected at the Opera club, it was said there. The club has been decorated for the affair. Again a background of midnight blue silver stars are seen, an enormous Christmas tree decorated only in silver standing in one corner of the room. Silver lanterns hung with icicles supply the light. A number of theatrical stars playing in Chicago will be guests of the members.

Among those giving parties there will be Maj. Robert A. Widdicombe, Elmer Rich, E. R. Swift, Mr. and Mrs. Owen West, Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Maxwell and Mr. and Mrs. Edwin W. Sims. Tables will be reserved for Leeds Mitchell, Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Marshall, George Woodruff, Robert Upham, Weymouth Kirkland, and others.

The first New Year's eve party to be given at the Exmoor Country club will be a young persons' party for unmarried members. On New Year's day, in the afternoon, a party for children will be given for those under 12 years old.

At the Onwentsia Country club in Lake Forest, 145 reservations have been made for New Year's eve parties. Farwell Winston will be host to a party of 60 persons; John McIlvaine, to 30; L. S. Hammond, to 20, and H. N. Rowley, to 20.

More than 1,000 reservations already have been made for New Year's eve celebrations at the South Shore Country club, where there will be dancing in the main dining room, solarium, and main ballroom. That is a record reservation list for so early in the season, it was said, and an attempt will be made to limit the list to 1,200. It was said that the festivities would be made "as dry as possible."

A party will be held in the Skokie Country club for 300, to be given by a dance club made up of members of the country club. At the Indian Hill Country club, Mrs. Edwin H. Clark will give a debut party New Year's day for her daughter, but no parties are scheduled for New Year's eve.

SOMETHING OUGHT TO BE DONE ABOUT THIS—

FARM and GARDEN
BY PAUL POTTER

GREENHOUSE WATERCRESS.

Greenhouse space in the winter time can be made profitable by growing watercress, according to Lee A. Somers of the horticultural department of the college of agriculture of the University of Illinois. This is a crop which he says will grow rapidly under glass just as it flourishes in the outdoors in running water in the summertime.

The cress is used as a garnish, primarily, but also finds a place in mixed salads and in mixed greens. His estimate of production is that two or more pickings can be made from the same plant, and that two to two and a half bunches can be expected at a picking from each plant, with the bunches worth probably 75 cents to $1 per dozen.

The seeds are sown shallow in flats about four weeks before they are to be set in the bench in the greenhouse. Seedlings are pricked out in two inch pots and later set six by six inches in the bed. Care is about the same as that for winter grown lettuce, according to Mr. Somers, except that more water is required by the watercress.

One warning he issues is that the plants are especially subject to attacks by aphids, but that this can be watched and proper treatments applied. The crop grows fast and harvest usually begins in 35 to 40 days after the plants have been set in the bench. The stems are picked much longer than those of the outdoor crop and are put up in little bundles from eight to ten stems in each. The crop occupies the greenhouse bench from 50 to 60 days.

A FRIEND IN NEED
BY SALLY JOY BROWN.

An Urgent Case.

"Could you help a man who is hard of hearing to secure some warm underwear, a suit and overcoat, size 42? He is short and stocky. It is urgent that he secure something to wear soon. A. M."

In addition to his inability to hear well, this unfortunate man also is having trouble with his foot and has no employment.

Princeton Club Show Adds to Holiday Spirit

BY THALIA ——.

THE large audience, predominantly youthful, that graced the Opera house last night for the Princeton Triangle club's "The Tiger Smiles" was vastly becoming to its rose velvet reaches. And during the intermezzo, the foyer was jammed with the pretty young things, apparently the majority of the youth of the town, all chattering gayly and looking lighthearted and pretty in fluffy party dresses.

The show, of which there was a great deal, had the vigorous calisthenic quality that characterizes the popular undergraduate musical comedy. Dancing, singing, and wise cracking with energetic vim, the boys showed the contemporary idea of Princeton as it was in the times when "hipcles flourished and when "scorcher" was an approved expression, and also their prophetic conception of their alma mater in 1990 when the professors steal the "no parking" signs instead of the students, and when Old Nassau will be threatened with amalgamation with a chain of colleges called the Higgledy-Piggledy Units of Learning, Inc. The Chicagoans in the show, James Breasted Jr. and Cyrus H. Adams III, got a big hand in their home town.

College Play Delays Dance for Three Debutantes

The debut ball Mr. and Mrs. Ralph C. Otis and Dr. and Mrs. William N. Senn gave for their respective daughters, Miss Florence Otis and Miss Barbara and Miss Dorothy Senn, had to wait until almost midnight to begin because the Triangle men and many of the young people in the audience composed a great part of the guest list. The buds went to the play, but they left early to change into their ball dresses. The Senn girls were garbed alike in sea green moire and Miss Otis was in ruffled pink tulle.

The long entrance hall to the ballroom, where the receiving line took up its stand, was illuminated with blue light emerging from tall urns filled with silver foliage. The ballroom had a fringe of silver tinsel around the balcony rail and the crystal chandeliers, great Christmas trees with red and blue lights in the four corners, festoons and silver poinsettias. A cloud effect played across the ceiling and was reflected in the mirrors, and snowflake lights played over the dancers. Two silver cloth canopies hanging from the ceiling precipitated a shower of silver balloons on the party after the dancing [to two large orchestras] was under way.

More About Festivities of the Christmas Time.

With the holiday parties going on at such a merry pace, the debutantes won't be able to catch up on their beauty sleep until well after New Year's.

Then the school boys and girls settle down again to algebra and French verbs. There will be about 200 young people at the dinner dance that Mr. and Mrs. John A. Chapman are giving at the Casino tonight to introduce their daughter, Miss Eleanor Chapman, who is home for the holidays from Bryn Mawr. After that they'll all go to the Blackstone for the ball that the Gustavus F. Swifts are having for their debutante daughter, Miss Gertrude.

This afternoon Mr. and Mrs. Louis Talmadge Jaques and their oldest daughter, Miss Anni Ri Jaques, will give a tea and reception at the Drake to present Miss Lois Thurley Jaques.

Miss Lois came home for her debut from the Finch school in New York and will hall on Jan. 9 to continue her studies at the Finch school in Paris. The baby of the family, Miss Abbie Jane Jaques, is missing all the holiday social parties because she had to be rushed to the hospital on Tuesday for an appendicitis operation.

Christmas Flashbacks, Including Much Good Cheer.

Christmas flashbacks . . . . the John Wentworths' and Larry Callahan's afternoon party was a very gay one—it was held in the vacant apartment on the second floor of the building they live in, and loads of people came festoons of balsam and pines and wreaths hung all about, and a darky orchestra strummed away all afternoon while the guests visited the various refreshment rooms. Mrs. Wentworth looked unusually lovely in a white tunic dress banded in gold, and Bertha Palmer was there with her silvered fingernails causing quite a stir. . . . Dr. Shirley and Cyrena Van Gordon Munn's party was cute and bohemian, with lots of singers, foreigners, and interesting personalities present [there was great ceremony about drinking the punch from an ancient crockery mug, its handle tied with holly and red ribbon, that belonged to the Ferdinand Peck establishment some 25 years ago]. . . . Newton Perry Jr. is the object of greatest envy amongst the masculine youth on Astor street with his miniature automobile, a very special kind of one that really runs—by electricity—and has all sorts of fascinating gadgets on it. . . . the John D. Hicks also had people in during the late afternoon, and the Moissaye Boguslawskis had a Christmas party at the Merchandise Mart restaurant. Nine year old Lawrence Heyworth Jr. had his desire to entertain a party of grownups at the opera gratified on Christmas night—his guests were his dad and mother, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Decker Kuhns, and William Wittmeyer, and he had a beautiful time playing host, although it was a little hard for him to keep his eyes open later in the evening.

Harris, Mrs. Hal Crompton Bangs, Mrs. Louis K. Boysen, Mrs. Erich Gerstenberg, Mrs. Bowman C. Lingle, Mrs. Henry H. Reuss, and Mrs. Lyman T. Walker.

Weddings which brides describe beforehand as "very small and simple" frequently turn out to be rather elaborate affairs, but Miss Emily Fentress evidently means to make her marriage this afternoon to Robert Stocking as informal as possible. She says it is to be a purely family affair and that she will have no attendants. To eliminate further any of the customary fuss and feathers she is to wear her going away costume for the ceremony. The groom's mother, Mrs. William A. Stocking Jr., and his brother, William Stocking, who will act as best man, have come from Ithaca, N. Y., for the ceremony. The bride and groom will spend the winter at Lake Placid, Fla.

More Holiday Events with Air of Colleges.

More holiday happenings with a collegiate air—The Chicago Smith College club announces a holiday luncheon next Wednesday at 1 o'clock at the Palmer house, with Prof. Julius S. Bixler of the department of religion and biblical literature as guest of honor and speaker, to be attended by many of the undergraduate students home now. . . . Miss Honor Merrell will give a tea party at the Merrell apartment at 209 Lake Shore drive on Monday afternoon for alumns and students of Wells, with Miss Alice Barler, president of the Chicago-Wells club, assisting. . . . the Chicago Rockford College association is having a matinée party for its holiday event this afternoon (they made reservations for "Berekeley Square," but they'll probably have to be switched to something else) . . . and alumnæ of Trinity college at Washington, D. STOCK'S ORCHESTRA PLAYS NEW RUSSIAN COMPOSER'S SYMPHONY

BY EDWARD MOORE.

Mr. Stock devoted part of yesterday's program to the introduction of some new music from Russia and the United States, the remainder being left to works that classify as well approved.

The Russian work was a symphony by one Dimitri Szostakowicz, a composer whose name Mr. Borowski has tones to explain in his admirable program notes has not yet been taken up by the musical biographers. The reason is obvious. He is twenty-four years old, and knowledge of what has been going on in Russia has not been easy to acquire for some time past.

Young though he may be, the symphony is labeled as opus 10 of the Szostakowicz output. It is a curious and in many ways an interesting work. The most curious part of it is that it is remarkably unradical for a youthful composer. He is well acquainted with the modern idiom, but he does not strain himself to be different with it. He is not afraid of a tune, not even afraid of letting a conventional chord get into his score once in a while. He is a little more modern than Rachmaninoff, but not so much so as Scriabin.

More important, he shows imagination, the power to invent striking and notable music. The symphony is perhaps a little more inspired in dealing with rapid, dashing figures than with sustained melody, but it has so much real music in it that one is likely to remember the composer's name when his next composition is made public.

The American work was a suite, "Streets of Pekin," by Henry Hadley. It consists of seven little pieces of varying design and mood, played with only the slightest of pauses to separate them, all good humored, some almost light minded, all in Mr. Hadley's unfailing melodic fluency. The suite will without doubt classify as amusing and entertaining.

Because of the illness of Mario Laurence and Cesare Formichi their parts in tonight's performance of "Il Trovatore" at the Civic Opera house will be taken by Antonio Cortis and Richard Bonelli.

Can Woman Love Her Mate and Lie, Too? Wotta Question!

BY DORIS BLAKE.

"During the time that I was engaged my girl did things I asked her not to do and then lied to me after I found out that she did these things. She also continues to lie now, after we are married. She is holding several things from me now. I know this for a fact. Will you sell me through your column if a woman can love and lie to a man at one and the same time? Also, if most women are capable of lying?—FRANK."

Er-er-hem-hem! Wotta question to ask a woman. Hellup, sisters, hellup! Are we capable of lying? Can we love and lie in the same sweet hour?

Dare we expose ourselves? Or should we prove a little capability by insisting we wouldn't tell a small white one, not if it were the one thing that would maintain peace in the household?

Or, should we give the whole secret away and say that we started out with every intention of telling the truth and nothing but the truth, so help me Adam, but we found that that sometimes got us into a peck of trouble. So, we began manufacturing alibis, harmless little ones invented especially to please or cheer, as the case might need. We never intended becoming so proficient in the art that we'd be called in public. But if it is out it's out and we'll have to invent a new scheme for avoiding hurt feelings, injured egos and damaged prides.

At least my experience with women is that they wouldn't tel la deliberate lie, but if one that isn't so important is going to make everybody happy, well, they ask, why shouldn't everybody be happy?

I'm not speaking for all women, understand. Many of them, indeed, hew to the line of truth no matter how much it hurts. Some of them with husbands, do not always get the appreciation that would seem to be the dessert of truthfulness. That is, if in the course of wifely affairs it becomes necessary to tell the good man something he ought to know for his own benefit. They're not our best loved wives, really!

A woman who can mix a bit of blarney into her "dressing downs" comes off much more beloved, though the blarney is concocted of one part fiction to two parts of putting it over suavely. Of course, there are lies and LIES. Of the latter, I think possibly women achieve no higher average than men. The decent in either sex have a wholesome respect for the other's right to believe in them, as they love them.

'Can Students Keep Religion?' to Be Discussed

BY THE REV. JOHN EVANS.

How can religious goals be kept in sight by college and university students as they tackle—or are tackled by—theories of economic determinism?

Can religion of the student withstand joustings with behavioristic psychology and come through unscathed?

Is it possible for that senior to bootleg his religious fervor today past a sort of Veisteadian philosophical determinism?

These are serious questions in the minds of religious workers in American colleges and universities. Next Wednesday and Thursday nearly 400 members of the national conference of church workers in colleges and universities will meet at the Edgewater Beach hotel at their third triennial meeting. The questions cited will be among the most important to be discussed, according to Milton C. Towner of the faculty of the University of Chicago. He is president of the conference.

Prof. Towner declared students nowadays face unprecedented conditions as they endeavor to retain and express religious faith. They are met at once as they enter campus life with a depersonalizing influence, he said, that now is a campus characteristic. As home influences fade and as the student "looses himself" in the new atmosphere, Mr. Towner pointed to the grave doubts that soon arise in the student mind concerning the reality of anything whatever in spiritual realms.

Mrs. H. L. Doherty Explains Daughter Merely Is Debutante

Washington, D. C., Dec. 26.—(AP)—In the whirling vortex of the most stupendous holiday party of many a Washington season, Mrs. Henry L. Doherty of New York took time tonight to do a bit of debunking on the subject of her debutante daughter, Helen Lee Elmes Doherty.

To be mother of one whose debut had doubled and tripled in the making, assuming the proportions of a record-smashing event, apparently had been somewhat disconcerting to Mrs. Doherty, despite an ever evident sense of humor.

She expressed her surprise at the tremendous stir caused by Helen Lee's night-after-Christmas ball at the fashionable Mayflower hotel in which she made her formal bow to society.

She attributed the swelling crowds to her daughter's recent artistic and literary game which, she said, had grown somewhat out of proportions to actuality.

Mrs. Doherty said her daughter did not handpaint the king of Spain's sport car—that her work on the silhouette sports automobile has been that of thinking out the idea and planning the designs.

There's Something of Decided Chic to Exposed Ears

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

"Wonderful is the value of self-esteem."

So said my cynical companion of the matinée performance!

A head or two up front of us was the target. Maybe there was a lot of wisdom beneath that startling dome. You can't ever tell from the outside what's going on in the inside. A woman with iron gray hair, more black than gray, however. A heavy heavy head squatting on a thick neck. The hairdress dated back to the most virulent male bob stage. Well, that was all right with us. But the ear that was exposed was shocking. An ear a Heminway might hang a prize fight tale upon.

"Cauliflowerish, I calls it," says my mate. "Awful," says I. "Why in the name of heaven expose it full force and why drape an earring on it!"

"Providence IS kind," further quoth my sidekick. "He never tells 'em. And they NEVER know!"

And sometimes I pause to wonder which is worse off—the one who recognizes no defeects or the one who is bowed down with hers!

The incident has no moral because you don't see many women like that any more. I mean who'd shamelessly expose a worst feature.

But it did bring up the subject of ears and how many girls could expose pretty ones who choose to drape hair ever instead of behind them. An ear can be a lovely asset and in this season's struggle for something different in hairdressing I'd recommend letting the ear out for fresh air, if it proves a good fresh air weatherer. There's something awfully chic about that longish haired coiffure with the hair pulled back glibly behind a hearing organ, isn't there? On young girls it is adorable. On older ones, ears withstanding the test, smartly sophisticate.

The prescription for a good ear I cannot give, except that it be not large, be delicately rimmed, and be healthfully pinkish in color. A pale lobe may easily be treated to a tinting. The ear you love to see belongs usually to women of "genteel" hands and feet and bone structure generally.

WASHINGTON SOCIETY

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 26.—[Special.]—Mrs. Herbert Hoover Jr., who has been at the White House with her children, left today for Asheville, N. C., to join her husband. He is convalescing there. Allan Hoover was a guest tonight at the young people's dance, given by Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Meyer Jr., in the home of the late Henry White, which they have occupied for several seasons. The party was for the debutante daughter of Mr and Mrs. Meyer.

Representative Ruth Hanna McCormick, widow of Senator Medill McCormick of Illinois, will give a ball for her debutante daughter, Miss Katrina McCormick, tomorrow night. Miss McCormick made her debut in Washington society early this month at a brilliant tea with dancing given by her mother at the Carlton hotel. She will be entertained at dinner tomorrow evening, preceding the ball, by Mr. and Mrs. Edward B. Burling in their home in Cleveland Park.

Mrs. McCormick is giving the ball in the ballroom of the Thomas T. Gaff house, which was occupied during the last two seasons by Claudius Huston, former chairman of the Republican national committee, and his daughters, but is now unoccupied. The ball room is conveniently located on the first floor of the Gaff house and is well adapted for such a party in every particular. Mrs. McCormick's first plan was to have the ball in her own home, but recently she changed the arrangements.

Mrs. Joseph Leiter will entertain a company of young people at luncheon tomorrow in honor of Miss Katherine Burrage, debutante daughter of Mr and Mrs. Russell Burrage of Boston.

Holiday Frocks Like Accordion Plaitings

BY BETTINA BEDWELL.

PARIS.—[Special Correspondence.]—Accordion plaitings continue to be one of the most charming features of smart Paris fashions. Patou's prettiest new evening ensemble has an accordion plaited skirt and a slip-on tunic bodice with a draped panel back—sort of a glorified Greek jumper. Long continues his graceful fans of accordion plaiting in different ways.

Regny has a fan plaited evening frock in old rose georgette that is a delicious debutante's dream—no less. Worth Maggy Rouff and a number of other couturiers are also doing diverting things for evening with accordion plaits.

The Lucille, Ltd., accordion plaited evening ensemble, sketched above, is just the thing for the girl who wants to choose holiday frocks that are due to stay in style next spring. M. Rossi makes it of palest rose-ivory satin-velvet—a color which is the only serious rival to white for evening in Paris now. The instep length skirt is all accordion plaited and so is the Grecian peplum. The bodice is plain except for an accordion plaited inset outlining the round décolleté. The girdle is of strasse and crystal.

The cape will be an ideal wrap for Palm Beach and Riviera wear, and capes are indorsed by Lelong and Worth among others. This one is accordion plaited in velvet to match the frock. Its ruff collar is made of pale pink velvet flowers.

Food Talk.

Our requests for recipes indicate that candied sweet potatoes are a popular holiday food. Two of these requests interested me very much, since they are particularly for a recipe that will help the cook to obtain a product with only a glaze or candy effect on the outside without any soaking of butter and sugar through the potato. And isn't this the ideal candied sweet potato? Too many times they are soggy, simply logged with sugar and butter. The potato, as a result, is actually cloying, and besides the natural sweet flavor of the potato is completely masked.

Recently we have tried eight different ways of preparing candied sweet potatoes. Both granulated and brown sugar were used. The butter and sugar was added to raw potatoes, to half boiled potatoes, to fully cooked potatoes, and to parboiled potatoes with some water. In every instance brown sugar gave just as good flavor, but a glaze not so attractive in color. The color was too dark.

Our best appearing candied potatoes resulted when we used raw potatoes. The potato, medium size, was cut in half—we used little stem Jerseys and Nancy Hall varieties—and placed in a buttered baking dish. Eight teaspoonfuls of white sugar were sprinkled over potato and then 4 teaspoonfuls butter were put over the top in bits and a few grains of salt were added. The potato was baked in a 350 degree Fahrenheit oven (medium) for 45 minutes and about every 10 minutes was basted with the butter and sugar that was in the bottom of the pan. This produced a most attractive glaze. The potato was good, but the candy had soaked into the potato pretty well.

The most satisfactory results for flavor and texture were obtained when the preparation was as follows. The potato was parboiled in the skin 10 minutes. It was removed from the water, peeled, cut in half, and put into a buttered baking dish. Eight teaspoons sugar, 2 tablespoons water, and 1 teaspoon butter were sprinkled on. The potato was baked 30 minutes in a medium oven (350 degrees Fahrenheit). The result was a fairly good glaze, not quite so attractive as the one described above, but with excellent flavor and no soaking.

Orange juice may be used for basting, instead of water. It will produce just as fine a glaze and a flavor that is pleasing.

COCOANUT PUDDING.

3 cups milk. 1 tsp. vanilla or other flavoring.
5 tbsp. cornstarch. ½ cup cocoanut.
¼ cup sugar.
Pinch salt.

Scald 2½ cups of milk. Mix cornstarch, sugar, and salt and moisten with the remaining milk. Add to the hot liquid and cook in a double boiler for 15 minutes, stirring constantly until thickened, afterwards occasionally. Add vanilla and cocoanut and turn into molds which have been rinsed in cold water. Serve with cream, custard sauce, or crushed fruit.

This blanc mange may be enriched by omitting one tablespoon of cornstarch and adding a beaten egg two or three minutes before taking from the stove. Stir constantly after the egg is added. To make a more fluffy pudding, fold in two stiffly beaten egg whites after taking from the stove.

Yield: Six servings.

Different Things Provide Thrills for Different Ages

By GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS

A Mother's Christmas Litany, signed by Mrs. Bevans, will be sent as her greeting of the season on receipt of a stamped, self addressed envelope.

To learn to walk successfully—
To jump down two steps without falling—
To see the moon for the first time—
To be able to push a kiddie car—
To have your first baby doll—
To go down a slide—
To be allowed to snap on all the lights as evening comes on—
To cut out the cookies for Mother—
To iron with a little electric iron—
What thrills in all these things!

Smelling something new—hearing and tasting and touching something new—learning to use new muscles and exercising new powers—that is, discovering the world as very little boys and girls do, provides enough excitement and color for them.

They don't need entertainment and parties and external interest planned for them. In fact, the freer they are from such things, the better. The quiet routine is best for them in every way. They are not conscious of any surface monotony if the deeper satisfactions are theirs.

But with the older children it is different. They look more to the outside world and external variety has its place. The holidays, with school closed and festivity in the air, is a good season in which to plan special things for boys and girls. It is fun to continue the Christmassy feeling after Christmas day is passed.

Many grown-ups go to party after party, to theaters and do other festive things but sometimes neglect to plan for their girls and boys who are old enough to enjoy entertainment. There are a number of jolly, yet simple pleasures you can arrange that will give color to these days: a trip to the country on a mild day, marionette shows, or special plays or movies for children, informal parties, trips to museums or zoos, or friends to lunch or dinner.

It is nice, not only for Christmas to be a red letter day for the children, but for the holiday season to be a red letter season, too.

WIDE OPEN GUN SALES BARED BY POLICE BUREAU

Report Shows Need for More Drastic Law.

pistol in hand when the policeman grabbed me. Then I discovered I was in the wrong place."

Donnelly is now in Joliet prison. His story, Sergt. Newman said, is typical of the absurd excuses offered by many gun toters. In most cases, however, the truth is finally established and the gun is discovered to have been purchased through a mail order house or in a sporting dealer's shop in Cicero, Gary, Hammond, St. Joseph, or some other town nearby.

Alcock Urges Drastic Law.

Discussing the present statute regulating gun sales, Acting Commissioner Alcock pointed out that the law merely prohibits sale of small arms to those intending to use the weapon for illegal purposes.

"What we need is a statute prohibiting the sale of small arms to all persons, excepting peace and special officers," Alcock declared. "I don't expect we could get anything so drastic as this through the legislature, but I am working on a substitute which will help curb the present evil of promiscuous sale of pistols."

The statute to be proposed, Alcock said, will be modeled on the present Chicago city ordinance which forbids gun dealers to sell to any one except the customer producing a permit from the superintendent of police.

"The real remedy would be a federal law prohibiting the manufacture of small arms except to supply the needs of the war department and police," Alcock said. "But the opposition of the manufacturers and retailers is too powerful to get this law passed."

63 OUTLAWS KILLED

Sixty-three outlaws have been killed by policemen or citizens during the year 1930. In the warfare against crime, policemen killed 27 robbers and seven burglars, while citizens killed 16 robbers and 13 burglars, according to the figures made public by Acting Commissioner John H. Alcock.

LYLE JAILS SALTIS' BODYGUARD; FINDS GANGSTER ON BOND

Patrick [Paddy] Sullivan, former policemen and reported bodyguard to Joe Saltis, public enemy, was ordered to jail yesterday by Judge John H. Lyle in the Felony court when it was discovered that the bond on which he was at liberty was signed by Saltis. He is charged with vagrancy, as is Saltis, and the case is scheduled for hearing Dec. 30. The bond on which Sullivan was at liberty gives as surety the Saltis home, 5654 South Albany avenue, valued at $10,000.

"This is the same Joe Saltis who is a public enemy, is it not?" Judge Lyle asked as he looked over the bond as Sullivan was leaving the courtroom.

"It's Joe Saltis, but I don't know about his being a public enemy," Attorney George Crane for the defense replied.

"No man with a record is going to be a bondsman in my court," said the judge. "He will not be recognized and the bond in this case is hereby revoked."

Frank Foster, who is under indictment in connection with the Alfred Lingle murder, was discharged before Judge Leon Edelman in the Chicago Avenue court when the police admitted to Attorney Harld Levy that Foster was picked up Saturday night on general principles and not because he had violated any law.

FARMER SLAIN; SEIZE HIS SISTER AND HER SON, 23

Offered Him Auto to Kill, Hired Assassin Says.

Antigo, Wis., Dec. 26.—Taken into custody on first degree murder warrants, Mrs. Rose Nickelson, 56, and her son, Lawrence, 23, tonight were faced with the accusation that they plotted the death of the woman's brother, John Murphy, 65, a Deerbrook farmer.

Their self confessed hireling, Cortis Cockerham, 39, farm laborer, was in the county jail awaiting sentence at the next term of Circuit court. He pleaded guilty when arraigned on a first degree murder charge before Judge A. N. Whiting.

Promised Auto to Kill Him.

The two relatives of Murphy, who was ruthlessly shot and killed Monday in a woodlot adjoining his farm buildings, were implicated in a confession made by Cockerham to Sheriff Thomas Ford and District Attorney James R. Durfee. Cockerham said he was promised an automobile in payment for the slaying.

In his confession Cockerham said he borrowed a shotgun and went to the Murphy farm last Sunday on the pretext of hunting rabbits. When he met his intended victim, however, he lost his courage.

Shoots Victim in Back.

The next day he again went to the Murphy farm, Cockerham said, and encountered the farmer while he was sawing wood. After a conversation in which Murphy ordered him to stop hunting on his property, the farmer walked toward the farmhouse. Cockerham told officials he then shot Murphy. The slugs entered his back and neck. Cockerham was arrested last night at a farm near Kent. Suspicion was fastened upon him when it was learned he borrowed a shotgun Saturday and had failed to return it to the owner until late Monday.

Once Employed by Murphy.

Cockerham told authorities he returned to the Murphy farm the day after the shooting to arrange for getting the automobile which the woman and son had promised him.

"They told me they were sorry John was dead and were frightened because I had returned," the slayer said. "They finally got me to leave the place and I went to the farm at Kent."

Cockerham had worked in this vicinity for the last 14 years and occasionally found temporary employment at the Murphy farm.

Plan Census of 80,000,000 in China to Keep Tab on Reds

BY JOHN POWELL.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SHANGHAI, Dec. 26.—Gen. Chiang Kai-shek returned to Nanking yesterday from central China, where he has spent the last three weeks organizing the war against the communist bandits. He said he expected an early windup of the campaign, particularly since the capture of the Red Commander, Chu-teh, and his headquarters at Tungku in Kiangsi province. The towns of Ningtu and Nanfeng were also taken by government troops last week.

As a means to preventing communists renewing activities Gen. Chiang announced the inauguration of a gigantic registration scheme for the entire populations in the Kiangsi, Hunan and Hupeh provinces, which have a total of approximately 80,000,000 people.

Would Check Travelers.

The plans call for a careful census. After it magistrates will be held responsible for the residents in all counties, cities and villages, and they must keep a check of all arrivals and departures as a means of preventing outside agitators or professional propagandists from renewing their activities.

Gen. Chiang hopes that in this manner he will entirely root out the Red influence which began in 1927, when the soviet Russian propagandists had a free hand in this area and where Red doctrines have been kept alive since by trained Chinese communist agitators who have been educated and financed in Moscow.

Release 14 Missionaries.

SHANGHAI, Dec. 26.—(AP)—Fourteen Catholic Lazarist missionaries, captured Oct. 6 by Reds who massacred 2,000 Chinese at Kian, Kiangsi province, have been released, the Lazarist vicar at Nanchang reported today.

Two Chinese priests were killed at Kian. No other missionary was known to have died, and all were thought to be en route to Nanchang.

Those captured were one Filipino, one Italian, and three French nuns, one French and three Italian priests, also five Chinese Catholic missionaries of both sexes.

The seizure was the largest made of foreigners in recent years. Lazarist missionaries said no ransom was paid. They believed the release was voluntary.

Acting Police Commissioner Alcock yesterday ordered 130 men who head the list of those eligible to become policemen to report on Monday at the office of the secretary of the department in the police building at 11th and State streets to be sworn in as policemen. The recruits then will be taken to the Fillmore street station, where they will be given a course of instruction by Capt. Charles Larkin. The men will fill vacancies in the department that were not filled previously owing to a lack of funds.

OUR BIG BOXER

Makes Boys Forge Ethics, if Any.

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Dec. 26.—My illusio do hard, but I am beginning to a not that the heavyweight prize fig we have no other interest in t ness than a selfish desire to ma money. There are several match available among the more promine ers, such as Sharkey, Schmelin Stribling, Carnera, and Griffith, and seems to me that if these person who pretend to be sportsmen, we really animated by sporting motiv they would all get into one and t same ring. In Paris, some evenin and run off a tournament as the am pers do, to isolate an authent heavyweight champion.

It is a serious thing to impugn man's sportsmanship, I know, but th is a case for plain speaking, and an now with the interests of the gam at heart must have noticed that th game has been degenerating into money making scheme.

Maybe They Can't See Selves.

It may be that the boys and the respective managers have been a blind to the situation themselves tha they have not been able to see them selves as they appear to others, an thus do not realize that they are mak ing a very bad impression. But frankly, I am not inclined to mak excuses for any of them, as avaric seems to have claimed them all.

Among pleasure fighters the sports manship is of a much better quality
I see gentleman, for some reason o other for no reason whatever, suggest that he can lick another gentleman the match is as good as made and after a brief time devoted to such remarks as "You are a liar" and " am, am I?" the fight is on. But amon the professional heavyweights, wh have a responsibility to exemplify the best sportsmanship in the game, and every reason to resent reflections o their ability, the process of producing a fight is very gradual and in some cases interminable.

Doesn't Believe Them.

Each of the five most prominent boys frankly insists that he can lick the other four, but very little fighting takes place, and when the excuse is offered that they are waiting for the public demand I do not believe them.
On the contrary, they are only waiting until the public decides to meet their prices, which are very high, and, to mince no words, the whole situation smacks of commercialism.

It is not to embarrass or annoy the boys that I point these matters out, but to save the game from the viper which is hovering over the escutcheon of a clean, chivalrous sport and gradually undermining the foundations.
The boys are still sportsmen at heart,
I am confident, and if they could be given to see the effect of their conduct they would be relied upon to do the right thing. But if they do not do so, then one of these days it will become necessary to abolish the game completely entirely in order to redeem boxing and restore it to its original purpose.

May Harm Other Sports.

I make this suggestion realizing that prize fighting really pays the way for a number of other activities which are not self-supporting, such as sitting down, standing around the cigar store and arguing as to whether John L. Sullivan fought better than William T. Tilden II. would play shuffleboard, if he played shuffleboard, as well as he plays tennis.

But these sports, while desirable, playing an admittedly important part in the development of clean, healthy manhood, need not be followed as vocations, and it is not at all necessary that men should devote all their time to them. In a well proportioned routine, sitting down, hanging around the cigar store and arguing the one about Sullivan and Tilden should be a spare time diversion and the participants would engage in useful toil.

The present winter would be an excellent time for the boys to manifest

50,000 EXPECTED TO ATTEND EAST, WEST TILT TODAY

Coast Fans Make Invaders Favorites.

San Francisco, Cal., Dec. 26.—(AP)—Strong legs will run so the weak may some day walk when football stars from many parts of the country clash here tomorrow in the annual east-west charity game. Proceeds of the contest, one of the oldest charitable gridiron enterprises, will go to the Shriners' Crippled Children's hospital.

Upwards of 50,000 are expected to turn out at Kezar stadium for the classic that will bring together players whose individual feats were recorded throughout the nation this season. It will be the sixth game of the series inaugurated here in 1925.

Eastern Team Heavier.

Western teams won the first three contests, while in 1928 and 1929 the east claimed victories. This year the eastern squad will line up as the favorite. It will have an eight pound weight advantage per man.

Andy Kerr of Colgate and Dick Hanley of Northwestern, coaches of the eastern team, have assembled such luminaries as Len Macaluso of Colgate, full back and high scoring ace of the eastern sector; Tony Siano, Fordham, center; Hank Bruder, half back, of Northwestern; George Van Bibber, Purdue, tackle, and many others.

Passes, Hope of West.

The eastern squad has been drilled in the wing back formation, a style of play made famous by Coach Glenn Warner of Stanford.

The western eleven, coached by Dana X. Bible of Nebraska and Percy Locey of the San Francisco Olympic club, is expected to resort almost entirely to a passing attack. This type of offense has featured the west's practice sessions, although considerable emphasis also has been placed on the line crashing capabilities of Big Jim Bausch, University of Kansas full back.

Starting lineups:

EAST.

L. E., F. Baker, Northwestern; L. T., Lubratovich, Wisconsin; L. G., Doyle, Colgate; C. Siano, Fordham; R. G. Woodworth, Northwestern; R. T., Van Bibber, Purdue; R. E., Gantenbein, Wisconsin; Q. B., E. Baker, Pittsburgh; L. H., Bruder, Northwestern; R. H., Hart, Colgate; F. B., Malcaluso, Colgate.

WEST.

L. E., McKallip, Oregon State; L. T., Broadstone, Nebraska; L. G., Beckett, California; C., Atkins, Texas Christian.; R. G., Koch, Baylor; R. T., Speidel, Olympic club; R. E., F. Wilson, Olympic club; Q. B., J. Wilson, Baylor; L. H., Shelley, Texas university; R. H., Mills, Oklahoma; F. B., Bausch, Kansas.

IRISH TEAM FAVORITE

Los Angeles, Cal., Dec. 26.—(AP)—With a week of intensive training behind them a squad of all Notre Dame football stars and another team made up of middlewestern, southern and western players rested today, primed for tomorrow's contest to be staged for charity.

The all-Rockne aggregation, made up almost entirely of members of the two undefeated elevens of 1929 and 1930, reigned favorites over their opponents, despite last minute additions to the all star squad.

Anderson Is Confident.

Coach Hunk Anderson, pinch hitting for Knute Rockne and in charge of the ex-Ramblers, expressed the belief his team bolstered by Frank Carideo, all-American quarter back, and Joe Savoldi, full back, would have little difficulty coping with the opposition.

Coach Jimmy Phelan of Washington, former Notre Dame player, had a different opinion. In spite of the short time allowed for practice he expressed the belief his players would be able to handle the situation nicely.

He expected Pest Welch, Purdue; Russ Saunders of Southern California, and Don Moses, also a former Trojan back field ace, to cause the men of Notre Dame trouble.

The lineups:

NOTRE DAME.		ALL STARS.
O'Brien	L. E.	Caraway, Purdue
Twomey	L. T.	Mares, Georgia T.
Kasis	L. G.	Shaw, S. Calif.
Moynihan	C.	Wentworth, Wash.
Metzgar	R. G.	Steele, Florida
McManmon	R. T.	Richard, Alabama
Vik	R. E.	Maffett, Georgia

Grimm and Hartnett Among National League Leaders

New York, Dec. 26.—(AP)—Record breaking in the National league last season was not confined to batting, the official fielding averages which were released today reveal. Two new marks were ground out in the mill of the players' daily toil in the field.

Chuck Klein of the Phillies, who won renown as a hitter, also stepped into the limelight as a defensive worker when he made a total of 44 assists for right field during the season. The former record was 39, made by Michael F. Mitchell of Cincinnati in 1907.

Set New Double Play Mark.

The league as a whole compiled a new mark of 1,318 double plays for the season. The former record, set in 1928, was 1,227.

Two other outstanding features shown in the records were that for the first time since 1908 the National league got through the season without having any games left unplayed at the finish and the feat of Pitcher Ken Ash of Cincinnati in winning a game on one pitched ball. Ash, a relief hurler, made one pitch to Grimm of Chicago when two men were on base. Grimm grounded into a triple play and Cincinnati came through with four runs in its half of the inning and won the game. Ray Kolp finished the game, but Ash was credited with the victory.

The outstanding players in each position, according to the records, were Charley Grimm, Chicago, first base; Hughey Critz, Cincinnati and New York, second base; Sparky Adams, St. Louis, third base; Rabbit Maranville, Boston, shortstop; Wally Roettger, New York, outfield, and Gabby Hartnett, Chicago, catcher.

Grimm Has .994 Average.

Several other players in each position had higher averages than these six, but they were recognized as leaders through having the highest marks of any who played in 100 or more games.

Grimm had an average of .9946 and Critz's mark was .9742, beating out Frank Frisch of St. Louis, who had .9639. Adams fielded at a .960 clip in 104 games at third and had .9735 for 25 games at second. Maranville also played two positions, having .965 in 138 games at shortstop and a perfect record for four games at third base. Roettger's .992 average enabled him to beat out the second-best regular outfielder, Johnny Frederick of Brooklyn, by 2 points. Kiki Cuyler of Chicago came in third on the list with .980. Hartnett made a .989 average, although his record of ten passed balls was the highest in the league.

Phelps Leads Pitchers.

Twenty-two pitchers had perfect fielding averages, but Babe Phelps of Brooklyn was placed at the top of this list. He handled 53 chances without an error.

The New York Giants, who set a new league batting record of .319, also led in club fielding with a mark of .974.

Cincinnati and Chicago were close behind, with averages of .9733 and .9728. St. Louis made the most double plays of the record breaking season, 176. There were four triple plays during the season, Cincinnati contributing two, Brooklyn and Philadelphia one each.

Boys! Only Five Days Left to Enter Tribune Ski Meet

BY WILFRID SMITH.

Five days remain in which entries will be received for THE TRIBUNE'S ski meet at Riis park. This tournament, for boys under 18 years of age, is intended to supplement the winter promotional program of THE TRIBUNE.

The fifteenth annual Silver Skates Derbies will be held Jan. 24 and 25 at Garfield park. The ski meet is complementary to it in winter sports competitions. When the first Silver Skates races were held 15 years ago the entry list totaled approximately 200, and in recent years has been more than 4,000.

Ski jumping is a new sport for Chicago's boys. Last season Riis park conducted a meet with about 70 entries. This year's list of contestants may be 100, but in future years the ski tournament probably will become as important as the skating competitions.

Ski Club Enters 20.

James Meleski, secretary of the Czecho-Slovak Ski club, has sent in a list of 20 boys who will compete Jan. 4 at Riis park. And individual entries continue at a pace which predicts a total of 100 competitors.

Travel on skis is not a necessity to Chicagoans. Snow shoes and skis, the latter being a more rapid means of progress, were devised in northern countries where deep snowfall made such invention necessary. However, the thrill of the sport is not confined to those countries but has been appropriated by more moderate climates.

Frank Kalteux, of the northwest park district in which Riis park is located, announced yesterday that by Sunday the 70 foot slide, on which THE TRIBUNE'S tournament will be held, will be open to the public. While snowfall has been below normal, there has been sufficient for the slide.

Novices will find the Riis park slide suitable for practice, and some of these boys may develop into stars who later will compete on the more difficult slides at Cary, Ill., and Ogden Dunes, Ind.

Competition Jan. 4 will be divided into two classes. Boys between the ages of 14 and 17, inclusive, will compete in the senior division. Boys under 14 years of age will jump in a junior class. While distance is important, form is equally so. Indeed, the winners may not have the longest leap, but may taffe first honors on their ability to take off and land perfectly.

Entries Close Dec. 31.

Medals will be awarded to first, second and third places in each class. Riis park is located at Fullerton and Mead avenues. The nearness of the location to the city insures that a large number of spectators will watch the events.

Entries close at midnight Dec. 31. Clip out the accompanying blank and mail it, with your name, club and age, to the Ski Editor of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.

Brooklyn Pro Cagers Whip Bruins, 26-22

New York, Dec. 26.—(AP)—The Brooklyn Visitations defeated the Chicago Bruins, 26 to 22, tonight in an American league basketball game. Brooklyn had a slight margin most of the way but not until the middle of the second half could the Visitations make it as much as five points.

After a 10 to 10 tie at the half time, Brooklyn got the jump in the second frame and Chicago's efforts to overcome the lead fell short.

Utica, N. Y., Dec. 26.—(AP)—The Rochester Centrals nosed out the Toledo Redman quintet, 38 to 36, in an American league contest here tonight. Lapchick and Pete Barry starred for the losers, who closed with a stirring rally. Marty Barry and Rabin proved the mainstays for the winners.

GREEN RIVER FIVE SETS TWO NEW BOWLING MARKS

The Green Rivers set a new season record for the Randolph bowling league last night when they shot one 1,173 game and a 3,233 three game series. Despite this, however, they lost their middle game to the Mineralites.

Jake Lenzen, who is leading the league individually with a 216 average, topped off the night with a total of 716. Louie Levine bowled a 290 game, opening with a spare and then tossing in 11 straight strikes.

The Kankakee Steamers went into second place, defeating the Wagners in three straight games while the Bowler's Journals were dropping two to the Quaker Oats who bowled a 3,136 series. The Steamers shot 3,161.

The high individual series follow:

Jake Lenzen, 716; Phil O'Keefe, 698; Eddie Krema, 696; Billy Goldammer, 684; William Brennan, 680; Erwin Wuerffel, 657; Art Hein, 654; Louie Levine, 653; Jim Frown, 651; Ed Hesley, 650; Herman De Vries, 649; Joe Wilman, 649; Adolph Carlson, 647.

ALL-STAR GAMES.

TWO games between all-star elevens will be played on the Pacific coast this afternoon, at San Francisco and Los Angeles respectively. They are between picked performers from the east and picked performers from the far west. The net proceeds go to charity.

These affairs are for worthy causes. Spectators presumably will view a spectacle worth the price of admission. They bring together boys who have acquired reputations on the gridiron at various schools in composite teams whose efficiency depends upon how well they blend various systems of attack and defense which they previously learned. It's a sort of holiday lark for the boys, most of whom played as seniors this fall or within the last year or so.

That about tells the story. That the results mean anything, as showing the relative strength between eastern football and far western football, is not in the picture. Sponsors of the elevens get the best lineups possible, of course, but the personnel of the squads, the time devoted to practice, and other outside considerations certainly cut more figure than the question of sectional supremacy. This statement is not made in criticism of the purposes of the games, charity, but as mere presentation of fact.

What's Wrong with This Picture?

Whazza matter, whazza matter? Is the whole world turned upside down? Jim Bausch, Kansas star, gone to sunny California to play in one of the charity games today, may not be able to compete because of a cold contracted there. He must have contracted some of the chill left over after the Notre Dame-Southern California tilt.

With You.

Outside I hear the raindrops' dismal fall,
Inside I hear the song the kettle sings.
And I am glad my hearth is safe and warm,
None can know the peace and joy it brings.

But could I wish for one more precious gift
To keep my hearth forever warm and bright,
I'd ask to share its rosy glow with you
And sit with you before its wavering light.

Another Mystery.

Among our Christmas mail was a verse from James Francis Burke of Washington. Just what "Our Pat" told "Our Herb" is a mystery to us. Possibly it was why that marvel of equine speed and stamina, Dick O'Hara, started in the Kentucky Derby. Anyway, if you care to guess for yourself, here is the verse:

OUR HERB AND OUR PAT.

Does Herbert Hoover ever smile?
He's had no chance for quite a while.
'Twas not until the other day
Our friend, Pat Joyce, came down our way.
As soon as Herbert shook his hand
And told about the things he'd planned,
He asked our Pat to tell a few
Of useful things that he might do.
And both agreed what each one said
Came from a very level head.
In parting, Pat a story told.
He said, "I hope it isn't old."
And Herbert, as he shook with glee,
Said "That's a bird, it's new to me."
And when they parted, two great men
Said "Hope we soon will meet again."

TWO CHAMPIONS DRAG THROUGH 15 DULL ROUNDS

Battle Leaves Crown Still in Doubt.

New York, Dec. 26.—[Special.]—The world's flyweight championship in boxing still is without an undisputed owner, but it has two claimants.

In Madison Square Garden tonight before a crowd of about 7,000 fight fans who paid gross receipts of $20,260 to witness the spectacle, Frankie Genaro of New York, National Boxing association champion, who is unrecognized here, and Midget Wolgast of Philadelphia, the New York commissioners' champion, fought 15 rounds to a draw in what was to have been a contest to produce an undisputed leader for the division. The draw decision left the title situation just as it was before the bout started.

The vote of three officials was as divided as it could be. Referee Patsy Haley voted a draw. Tommy Sheridan, a referee pinch hitting as a judge, voted for Wolgast, but Harold Barnes voted for Genaro. Nobody in the crowd seemed to care particularly who won or how the decision was voted.

Wolgast Wins 10 Rounds.

Wolgast was entitled to the decision. He won ten rounds, Genaro four, and one was even. Wolgast won the first, second, and third, the seventh, the ninth, tenth, eleventh, twelfth and thirteenth, and the fifteenth. Genaro captured the fifth and sixth and the eighth rounds, and the fourteenth in a desperate rally which came too late. The fourth was even.

Wolgast landed the first punch of the bout, a left to the body. Another left, this time to the face, opened a cut over Genaro's right eye. Genaro was on the receiving end through most of the first round.

They exchanged blows rapidly in the second session, Wolgast having slightly the better of the mixing. Genaro sent one solid left hook to the body.

Genaro Closes Wolgast's Eye.

Wolgast showed ability to smother his opponent's attack in the clinches in the third round. Genaro landed several left hooks and jabs, but Wolgast landed frequently with his left also. They fought on even terms in the fourth. Genaro rushed Wolgast to the ropes at one stage, hooking his left to the head. Wolgast continued to work his left.

Genaro did his most impressive work in the fifth and his sharp shooting began to have an effect on Wolgast's left eye, which was swelling. The New Yorker started a rushing attack in the sixth, driving his right effectively to the ribs. His left jab was finding the mark and he rushed the Philadelphian to the ropes.

Wolgast spiked Genaro's attack with a rapid fire of lefts as the seventh opened. He also worked an uppercut to the face twice, once after he had been backed to the ropes. Genaro's punches proved more effective in the eighth. He continued his rushes and worked both hands to the body. He reached the head with a right and later shot a hard right to Wolgast's ribs.

Both drove many punches in the ninth, with Wolgast gaining the honors with his daring left hand and a ripping right uppercut. He drove for the body early in the tenth round after they had exchanged lefts to the face. Frankie rushed his opponent, stumbling once as he did so and on another occasion almost plunging through the ropes as he missed.

He drew a warning in the eleventh round for using a pivot punch, a backhand left as he turned around. Wolgast's blows frequently reached Genaro's body while the latter repeatedly sent stiff left jabs to his opponent's face. They exchanged blows frequently in the twelfth, Wolgast landing more often with lefts to the body and face.

In the thirteenth Wolgast put several light lefts to the face and Genaro hooked a left to the body. They exchanged several light lefts to the face.

Frankie rushed in with left hooks to the body and face in the 14th in a valiant attempt to overcome Wolgast's lead.

LEGION PLAYS ST. MARY'S

St. Mary's college of Winona, Minn., will play the Chicago American Legion hockey team at the Chicago Stadium tonight. In Tony Prelesnik, center, and Oscar Almquist, goalie, the Minnesota aggregation has two all-American candidates. Both players have received all-American mention the last three years.

With Lewis Prelesnik and Matt Lahti in the defense positions and Milton Boink, Eddie Prelesnik, Sandy Constantine, and Johnny Beinshik on the forward line, the northerners will present one of the strongest amateur hockey organizations that has visited Chicago in years.

After tonight's game St. Mary's will travel east and play Dartmouth, Yale and Princeton.

The Legion's lineup will have Hank Hawkins in front of the nets, Charlie Stewart, and Clayton Joseph on defense, and Wesley Munn, Frank Fetsel and Stan Evoy in the forward positions.

HAGEN BREAKS LEG PREPARING FOR MATCH HERE

Milo Steinborn instead of George Hagen will meet Dick Skihat in the windup of the five match mat show Monday night at the 202d Coast Artillery, Broadway and Thorndale.

The shift was made necessary yesterday when it was learned that Hagen had broken his leg during training for the match. The Illinois athletic commission sanctioned Steinborn as Dick's foeman.

This shift in the program matches two outstanding German grapplers. Steinborn, who uses his "bear hug" to put the finishing touches on his victims, recently gave Jim Londos, world's champion, a scare at St. Louis, losing only after a long battle.

Londos won the title by defeating Shikat several months ago, and thus holds verdicts over both the Teuton stars. Shikat is bounding back along the come back trail for a return match with Londos, but is confronted with a new menace in his countryman. If victorious Milo will outrank Shikat in consideration for a championship battle.

DUNDEE DEFEATS BOWEN IN DE KALB PREP MEET, 24-20

De Kalb, Ill., Dec. 26.—[Special.]—Bowen High of Chicago, favorite to win the third annual holiday tournament of the Northern Illinois State Teachers college, was defeated this afternoon by Dundee, 24 to 20.

Dundee led at the first quarter, 4 to 3, and at the half, 12 to 11. Bowen led at the third period, 20 to 18, and a clever bit of ball handling whiled away the minutes and it seemed the favorites would win.

Then Aniballi of Dundee tied the score with a basket. Harder's long shot then put Dundee ahead. Harder scored again on a sleeper shot to make the final score at 24 to 20. Lineup.

Londos threw his opponent in 57 minutes 44 seconds after a series of flying mares.

More than 10,000 jammed the arena and several thousand more were turned away.

That Old Devil Money Perils Our Big Boxers

an understanding of the principles of sport and woo the confidence of the public, which has begun to suspect the greed. I do not exaggerate when I say that people nowadays are not to be deceived by false pretenses, for I have heard several persons ask why, if Schmeling actually believes himself to be the best prize fighter in the world, he does not come back to this country, look up several of the other boys and whip them wherever he finds them, even though there would be no gate receipts.

Of course, the reason why Schmeling does not do this will be plain to any serious student of the situation. The simple ugly truth is that Schmeling is less interested in the honor of his high position and the pleasure of competition, which is the test of sportsmanship, than he is in the financial return. When his manager, Mr. Joe Jacobs, states that Schmeling is at the disposal of the public and is only waiting until the public voices a plain demand for a particular match, I flatly accuse him of dealing in a half truth.

Mr. Jacobs Awaits Summer.

The other half—and a humiliating truth it is, too, for all sport lovers—is that Mr. Jacobs is money mad and is temporizing until summer comes, shrewdly realizing that a match produced in the open air in an arena with 70,000 seats will give him more money than a match produced indoors this winter.

The financial interest is not entirely incompatible with sport and I would not favor an extreme proposal to abolish gate receipts entirely, if only because prize fighting, with gate receipts, makes many important contributions to charity. Only recently, in Chicago, Stribling fought Griffith and out of $34,000 the governor's fund for the relief of the unemployed received a check for $3,720. Another time, a few years ago, a fight in Chicago drew about $15,000 and charity received a check for $80.

They Can Be Relied On.

Services of this kind have endeared the prize fighters to the public, which realizes that always in an emergency the fighters can be relied on to leap in and fight vigorously for half an hour for the nominal sum of about $23,000 each and, by their sacrifice, raise $80 or $3,720 for charity.

Abolish gate receipts and charity would lose this source of revenue, but there should be some middle ground, lest the public lose its illusions entirely and come to regard prize fighting as nothing more nor less than a commercial activity, conducted for revenue only without regard for sport.

P. G. A. MAKES ITS PEACE WITH MEET SPONSORS

The Professional Golfers' association has made peace with various sponsors of open tournaments by agreeing to forget its demand for 10 per cent of tournament net proceeds.

The demand, which caused a storm of protests and threatened to disrupt the winter golf campaign, was withdrawn yesterday by Albert R. Gates, business administrator for the P. G. A., who said cash for upkeep of the organization's tournament committee would be obtained from some other source.

Administrator Gates also denied reports that the tournament bureau was to be abolished. He said Robert Harlow would continue to manage the bureau.

"Harlow has been working to good purpose while the gossips have been rumoring about him," the administrator said. "When you take into consideration the fact that prize money in the neighborhood of $105,000 has already been scheduled, along with two or three more open dates that should boost it to at least $130,000, it would not seem to indicate that the tournament bureau is falling in its purpose of providing more and better tournaments for the professionals."

Kansas City, Kas., Dec. 26.—(AP)—Jess Harper, Kansas oil magnate, who was football coach at Notre Dame in South Bend, Ind., in 1912, will visit Knute Rockne in Rochester, Minn., next Monday, it was learned here today. Harper originated the famous Gus Dorais-Rockne forward pass while at Notre Dame. Dorais now is coach at Detroit university.

2 GARY BANKS CLOSED; BLAME CASH DEMANDS

State Suspends One and Directors Another.

Doors of the People's State bank, 7th avenue and Broadway, and of the Glen Park State bank, Ridge road and Broadway, both of Gary, Ind., were closed yesterday. They were the fifth and sixth financial houses in Gary to close during the last three months.

The People's bank failed to open yesterday. This move was agreed upon Wednesday by the directors. Several hours later the Glen Park bank was shut by State Bank Examiner John Myers following heavy withdrawals, which, according to President M. D. Heiny, virtually depleted the bank's cash.

According to L. P. Swoverland, vice president of the People's bank, the institution is solvent and will pay dollar for dollar. The doors were shut, he said, because of withdrawals of $175,000 in the last three months. These withdrawals were prompted, he indicated, by the closing three months ago of four other banks. The People's bank has deposits of $355,000 and assets of $442,000. The Glen Park bank has assets of $300,000 and deposits of $230,000.

MISSISSIPPI BANKS SUSPEND.

Corinth, Miss., Dec. 26. — (AP) — The Corinth State bank and the First National bank closed here today. Officials said they hoped to reopen when the "panicky feeling of depositors subsides."

Three Kansas Banks Close.

Topeka, Kas., Dec. 26.—(AP)—Closing of three small banks in southeastern Kansas with deposits aggregating $714,000 was announced today by H. W. Koeneke, state bank commissioner. He attributed the closings to last summer's drought and inability of the institutions to realize on their farm paper.

The banks, all in Allen county, are: The Mildred State bank, Mildred; the People's State bank, Moran, and the State Bank of Elsmore, Elsmore.

Virginia Bank Suspends.

Richmond, Va., Dec. 26.—(AP)—M. E. Bristow, state commissioner of insurance and banking, announced today that the State Bank of Pamplin, in Appomattox county, had suspended business pending a meeting of its depositors tomorrow.

Ten Banks, 2 Branches Close.

Memphis, Tenn., Dec. 26.—(AP)—Ten banks and two branches in eleven northeast Mississippi towns were closed today.

All were within a radius of about 30 miles and the situation was described as a local one by S. J. High, president of the People's Bank and Trust company of Tupelo, the largest of the closed banks.

Others were its two branches, at Nettleton and Rienzi; the First National bank and the Corinth State bank, Corinth; the Ittawamba County bank, Fulton; the Bank of Sherman, Sherman; the Bank of Saltillo, Saltillo; the Bank of Guntown, Guntown; the Bank of Verona, Verona; the Bank of Shannon, Shannon, and the Booneville Banking company, Booneville. All except the First National were state institutions.

Banking officials of the section expressed the hope most of the institutions would reopen within 30 days.

Georgia Bank Closed.

Augusta, Ga., Dec. 26. — (AP) — The Union Savings bank here failed to open today. T. S. Gray, the president, said the closing was due to heavy withdrawals and the inability of the bank to collect loans rapidly enough to meet demands for cash. The bank on Nov. 26 had deposits of $873,061.

TRIO WILL FACE DANVILLE COURT FOR BANK HOLDUP

Glen Nichols, Austin Corray, and Harmon Corray, captured bank robbers, were taken back last night to Danville, Ill., to face charges of holding up the Allerton State bank of Allerton, in Vermilion county. They were accompanied by Gladys Robinson, alias La Rue, Nichols' sweetheart; Austin Corray's wife, and William Raebig.

Police failed to connect Genevieve Hoy, wife of Austin Corray, with any of the robberies. She remained in Chicago in police custody and probably will be charged with disorderly conduct today.

According to Chief of Detectives John Norton, the Corray brothers and Nichols confessed the robbery of five small Illinois banks. Early yesterday $14,500 in stolen Liberty bonds was recovered in the basement of Raebig's home at 6803 Aberdeen street, making a total of $99,500 loot recovered from the gang. Police are satisfied Raebig was not involved in the robberies, but ordered him sent to Danville as an alleged accessory.

The band was arrested Tuesday in a north side apartment by Lieut. Andy Barry and his squad, and $85,000 in stolen securities was recovered. The squad will receive rewards totaling at least $1,000, it is said.

AND NOW THEY ARE BRINGING ICE FROM TROPICS

Washington, D. C., Dec. 26.—(AP)—And now they're importing ice from the tropics.

It is a product of carbon dioxide gas found in wells of the Tampico, Mexico, oil fields, flowing to the surface at a pressure of 1,000 pounds to the square inch.

A New York concern has erected a factory which solidifies the gas into "subzero" ice. It has a capacity of 40,000 pounds a day. Vessels with insulated chambers of cork board a foot thick will bring the ice to the United States.

The bulletin of the navy department's bureau of engineering called attention to this new accomplishment of science and industry today, saying:

"This paradox of bringing 'ice' from the tropics to the north is without precedent."

Mrs. Louise Beidelman Is Dead in Naperville

Mrs. Louise Beidelman, 79 years old, died early yesterday at her home in Naperville. She was taken to Naperville by her parents at the age of one year and had lived there ever since. She is survived by a daughter, Mrs. Dora High, and four sons, Oliver J., Arthur R., Roy E., and Ray H. Beidelman, all of Naperville. Funeral services will be held at 2 p. m. tomorrow at the First Methodist church, with burial in Naperville cemetery.

EXPECTS GOVERNMENT TO BUY METHODIST 'VATICAN' AT CAPITAL

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 26.—[Special.]—Purchase by the government of the property adjacent to the capitol grounds occupied by the Methodist building was foreseen today by Senator Henry W. Keyes [Rep., N. H.], chairman of the senate public buildings and grounds committee. The property is needed, he said, to round out the federal building program on Capitol hill.

The Methodist building, sometimes called the Methodist "vatican," is located just east of the capitol, across the street from the new Supreme Court building, now under construction, and around the corner from the Senate office building. The site is ideal as the headquarters of the Methodist lobby and propaganda office.

Senator Keyes said the ground occupied by the Methodist building could be used partly for open park space and partly for some government building. Although no bill is pending in congress providing for its acquirement, Senator Keyes intimated that such legislation was in prospect.

The Methodist board of temperance, prohibition and public morals, which occupies the structure, recently was refused permission to build an annex to it by the District of Columbia zoning authorities. This ruling, however, did not molest the present building, which would be demolished if the property was condemned and purchased.

U. S. PROTESTANT BISHOP ANSWERS CATHOLIC ATTACK

New York, Dec. 26.—(AP)—An answer to the Christmas message of Archbishop Pascual Diaz of Mexico, urging Catholics to check the advance of Protestantism in that country, was issued today by Bishop Frank W. Creighton of the Episcopal church in Mexico through the New York headquarters of the Protestant Episcopal church. Bishop Creighton construed the archbishop's message as a charge that Americans had sought to implant Protestantism in Mexico "with a view to gradually absorbing that country."

"It is not enough merely to state that the archbishop's charge is unfounded, nor to reiterate that Mexican Protestants have always been loyal to the government," he said. "Facts speak for themselves. When the provisions of the constitution of Mexico became effective the Protestants were obedient and cooperative, while the [Catholic] church indulged in over a year of passive and in some cases of active resistance.

"No responsible person in the United States gives a serious thought to so childish an idea as absorbing Mexico. There is nothing in the United States but a universal desire to see Mexico a strong and prosperous neighbor, developing on her own lines under the inspiration of her own social and political philosophy."

DENVER WIDOW COMES TO AID OF MAJ. SHEPARD

Denver, Colo., Dec. 26.—(AP)—Expressing confidence Maj. Charles A. Shepard is innocent of the charge of fatally poisoning his wife, the crime for which he was convicted last week in Kansas City, Kas., Mrs. Alice W. Watt, a Denver widow, today said she had advanced the money used as the premium on his bond of $20,000.

Posting of the bond enabled the army medical officer to return to Denver pending formal sentencing to life imprisonment and hearing on a motion for a new trial in federal court at Topeka, Kas., in February.

"I was glad to help a friend in need," said Mrs. Watt, "and we all know that the major will be vindicated in the long run."

Miss Ottilia Kurz, 24 years old, who was seriously burned Christmas night while playing Santa Claus for a group of children in the home of her sister at 10358 Avenue L, was reported to be recovering at the South Chicago hospital last night. Miss Kurz, dressed as Santa Claus, had just started the distribution of presents when a lighted candle fired her costume.

RESINOL DID WONDERS FOR Red Cracked Skin

"After suffering some time from a bad cold my nose became unusually red and sore. I tried various creams and salves without obtaining a bit of relief. I didn't have much confidence that Resinol Ointment would be any better but tried it anyway and all I can say is it worked wonders. My hands also were so chapped they cracked and almost bled. They were in such bad condition I could not hold anything. However, thanks to your Resinol Ointment they are now healed."

PAIR OF ESCAPED BANK BANDITS CAUGHT IN CAVE

Rushville, Neb., Dec. 26.—(AP)—Harold "Spike" Domnisse, 28, and Roest Cook, 23, confessed bank robbers, today were captured in a cave eight miles south of Chadron by a posse.

The two men battered their way out of jail at Alliance, Neb., yesterday while scores of persons participated in a Christmas program in front of the building.

After less than 19 hours' freedom Domnisse and Cook were in jail here awaiting transfer to the state penitentiary to begin serving twenty year sentences for robbing the First National bank of Hay Springs last Sept. 18 of $14,000.

Although Domnisse and Cook were armed with weapons stolen after their escape, the capture was effected without resistance after a posse of 20 men deployed about a cave in the sand hills near Chadron and fired about four rounds of ammunition toward the cave.

Muttering "It's a tough break," Domnisse and Cook walked from the cave, their hands in the air. They were asleep, they told Deputy Sheriff F. L. Green of Rushville, and were awakened by the shots.

VILLAGE BANK ROBBED; ALARM LITTLE HEEDED

Herscher, Ill., Dec. 26.—(AP)—Four robbers escaped with $2,500 in cash from the State Bank of Herscher today after the sounding of an alarm failed to thwart the robbery.

Fred Rogers, assistant cashier, who was alone in the bank at the time, pressed a button and the alarm registered in a store next door.

Nelson Bauer and a companion started to investigate. Bauer entered the bank and was covered by the bandits' guns. He was lined up against the wall with Rogers. His companion looked in a window, remarked to a passerby he could see nothing wrong, and then left.

A few seconds later the two robbers in the bank came out with the money, jumped in a car in which two confederates were waiting and drove rapidly away in the direction of Joliet.

Herscher is a town of 500 population 16 miles southwest of Kankakee.

YOUTH ADMITS EXTORTION PLOT; SENT TO PRISON

Kansas City, Mo., Dec. 26.—(AP)—Admitting an attempt to extort $25,000 from R. A. Long, wealthy lumberman, Charles L. Duncan, 23, was sentenced to two and a half years in the Missouri penitentiary in Criminal court today on a charge of third degree robbery.

Duncan became the second youth sentenced to prison by Judge Ralph S. Latshaw on charges resulting from attempts to extort money from Mr. Long. The first was Thaddeus S. Wilson, a school teacher, convicted in 1911 of attempting to extort $5,000.

Duncan was arrested Wednesday when he started to recover a decoy package placed by detectives at a place designated in letters received by Mr. Long demanding $25,000.

17 CLERGYMEN AMONG VICTIMS OF STOCK FRAUD

New York, Dec. 26.—[Special.]—Seventeen clergymen, scattered from New York state to the middle west, lost their savings in the Automotive Royalties corporation, Assistant United States Attorney Tompkins said today as he investigated further into the operations of the firm, which sold 1,250,000 worth of stock in a few years.

Clark W. Parker, inventor and church worker; his son, Wyman Parker, and fifteen stock salesmen were indicted six days ago by a federal grand jury on charges of using the mails to defraud. Parker was a trustee of the Church of the Strangers here.

Parker was highly recommended as an inventive genius by Dr. Eugene Christian, former newspaper columnist, Mr. Tompkins said today. Christian, he added, sold $250,000 worth of stock for the concern and as a result of a disagreement over commissions brought suit against the company. Tompkins said Christian, now dead, received a $50,000 settlement out of court.

Among the clergymen who lost money in the concern, according to Mr. Tompkins, were the Rev. Anthony Schaeffer, Clay Center, Kas., priest; the Rev. M. F. Cowle of Darby, Pa., and the Rev. E. Zapf, Lutheran clergyman of Chicago.

Father Schaeffer lost $17,000 and the Rev. Mr. Cowle $33,000.

CHICAGO STOCK PRICES WEAKEN; TRADING QUIET

Diggs Utility Issues Sell Lower.

BY THOMAS FURLONG.

A slow moving ticker tape repeated a trite story of listless holiday trading as enacted on the Chicago exchange yesterday. The demonstration was almost entirely professional, but relieved now and then by a bit of outside participation which was furnished largely by tax sellers. Prices closed a little lower.

The feeble action of the wheat market and the unimpressive exhibition on the New York exchange provided little incentive for the Chicago traders. It was apparent from the attendance on the floor of the exchange and in customers' rooms along the street that temporarily the market is not uppermost in the minds of many ordinarily market conscious persons. The fans who did turn up at the brokerage offices constituted an unresponsive audience for an unaspiring spectacle.

Down to $1 a Share.

The outstanding feature of the trading on the Chicago board was the acute weakness displayed by the Diggs utility issues. Inland Utility A was the hardest hit, falling to $1 a share on a meager turn-over of about 1,000 shares, representing a net loss of 2¼. Twin States Natural Gas also closed at $1 a share, off 1 for the day, while Midland Natural Gas finished fractionally lower at 1½.

Directors of both Inland Utilities and Twin States have voted to pass dividends on the stocks. Twin States A formerly paid 25 cents quarterly and the dividend is cumulative. The last quarterly dividend paid on Inland A was 42½ cents. The dividends are cumulative to the extent of $1.70 a year. No announcement has been made concerning the Midland Natural Gas dividend. The current annual rate is $1.20, as compared with its market price yesterday of $1.50 a share. Formal announcement of the passing of the dividend on the issue is expected soon.

All three of the companies were named in receivership applications filed early this week in Wilmington, Del. To date no statement has been made by officials of the companies, who are allowed twenty days in which to file a formal answer to the receivership petitioners.

Price Changes Narrow.

Elsewhere in the list the price changes were of little sagnificance. The utility stocks as a group were weak, but the declines were nominal, except in the case of the three issues mentioned abpve. The customary volume leaders in the group, Middle West, Cities Service, and Insull, were off fractionally when the trading ceased.

Leading industrials were dull and generally quoted slightly below Tuesday's final prices. Swift International, which was distinguished by its strength early in the week, maintained its position and added a fraction to its previous price. Marshall Field lost a fraction, which called for chalking up a new low quotation for the stock.

CORN PRODUCTS REFINING VOTES EXTRA DIVIDEND

Directors of Corn Products Refining company yesterday declared an extra dividend of 50 cents on the common stock, in addition to the regular quarterly dividend of 75 cents, bringing dividend declarations for 1930 to $4 a share.

W. R. Grace & Co. declared an extra dividend of $1 a share on the common in addition to the regular payment of a similar amount. A year ago an extra of a like amount was paid.

Sears, Roebuck & Co. directors declared the regular quarterly dividend of 62½ cents a share. The stock dividend of 1 per cent due at this time was declared previously.

Richard H. Whitehead, president of the New Haven Clock company, said the quarterly preferred dividend scheduled for payment Feb. 1 next will be declared at the coming January meeting. November shipments, he said, were larger than in any November for the last four years and the company considerably improved its current asset position during the month.

Dividends declared for Industrial policyholders of the Metropolitan Life Insurance company for the year 1931, subject to the approval of the superintendent of insurance of New York state, exceed $44,500,000, while dividends already declared for ordinary policyholders, plus those expected to be declared in January will approximate $50,000,000, for the year 1931 the total close to $94,500,000, an increase of more than $12,000,000 over the preceding year, and the greatest ever declared for any one year by any insurance company in the world.

SUGAR.

NEW YORK, Dec. 26.—(AP)—There was no change in raw sugar today in nearby supplies, which were quoted at 3.22c for spots, duty paid, but shipment Philippines were offered a little more freely and at prices fractionally below the last paid.

The issuance of 89 January notices and reports that one of the large Java producers was unwilling to co-operate with the proposed plans for the stabilization of sugar had an unsettling effect on raw futures. Approximate sales were 51,200 tons. Closing prices follow:

BIG BANKS WILL START YEAR IN FIRM POSITION

Brokers' Loans Now at Record Low.

BY O. A. MATHER.

In spite of numerous bank failures in the last few months, it is likely that the larger banks throughout the country will end this year in strong position. They are lending considerably less than a year ago in the stock market call money market, although their loans on customers' collateral may have increased, and commercial loans are low because of slack business conditions.

That the banks are preparing for issuance of their annual statements around New Year's was suggested in the federal reserve board's weekly report on brokers' loans yesterday. Within the last week interior banks have withdrawn $101,000,000 from the New York call money market, presumably for year-end and "window dressing." Nonbanking lenders, including corporations, also drew down $67,000,000, and much of this probably will be disbursed in dividend and interest payments. On the other hand the New York banks increased their own loans by $78,000,000.

Loans Drop $89,000,000.

The net result was that brokers' loans dropped $89,009,000 further to another new low record level at $1,919,-000,000. It was the thirteenth consecutive weekly decline and brought the aggregate recession during this period to $1,308,000,000. The current total also is $1,409,000,000 under a year ago.

As the result of present abnormally low money rates and following the action of the New York Federal Reserve bank in reducing its rediscount rate to 2 per cent, the New York clearing house yesterday cut interest rates to depositors to the lowest level in its history. While the rate on time deposits was left unchanged at 2 per cent, having been reduced to that basis from 3½ per cent a year ago, the rate on deposit balances of individuals was reduced from 1½ to 1 per cent and the rate on deposits of mutual savings banks was cut from 1 to 1½ per cent.

Some expansion in the demand for credit incident to the year-end commercial settlements was shown in the weekly statement of the reserve system, although most of the increase took place in the New York district. The member banks of the country increased their borrowings from the reserve banks by $117,028,000 in the last week, bringing the total up to $448,-000,000. The reserve banks bought $3,146,000 additional bankers' acceptances but offset this credit expansion by disposing of $50,758,000 of government securities. Deposits receded $48,888,000, but note circulation rose $139,729,000 as the result of the holiday demand for currency.

Reserves Decline.

Gold and total reserves declined $36,783,000 and $53,524,000, respectively. The ratio of reserves to liabilities edged to 73 per cent, compared with 73.4 per cent last week. The weekly gold statement showed imports of $18,026,000 and no exports, although gold earmarked for foreign account increased $7,026,000.

The report of the New York reserve bank showed an expansion of $63,746,-000 in member bank borrowings, bringing this item to $141,486,000. The reserve bank bought $21,344,000 of bankers' acceptances, but sold $50,800,-000 of government securities. Deposits dropped $50,426,000. Reserves declined $53,594,000 and the reserve ratio edged to 72.4 per cent, compared with 73 per cent a week ago.

The directors of the Chicago Federal Reserve bank made no change in its 2½ per cent rediscount rate yesterday, despite the reduction in New York. The bank's report showed an increase of $2,530,000 in member bank borrowings, which now stand at $31,674,000. The reserve bank made little change in its holdings of bankers' acceptances and government securities. Deposits receded $3,664,000. Reserves declined $38,452,000 and the reserve ratio edged to 75.6 per cent, compared with 76.4 per cent last week.

All Grains at Seasonal Lows on Board of Trade

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

Liquidation by scattered longs was resumed in the grain markets yesterday, with a lack of aggressive support an outstanding feature. July wheat, all deliveries of corn and the March, May and July futures of oats and rye dropped to a new low for the season, with July wheat breaking 3c to 62¾c, the lowest figure of that delivery since 1896, when it was down to 54¾c.

December corn was off 2¼c to 61⅞c, or only 1c above the previous low for that month since July, 1923, when it was 60⅞c. May oats at 32½c sold the lowest since March, 1913, when the inside figure was 31⅞c.

Stop loss orders were uncovered in all grains on the way down, and the old crop deliveries of wheat, which sold at the best figures since November 3 on Wednesday, lost the advance which had been made of late and reacted to around the prices at which the stabilization corporation has been supporting the market. Old crop wheat months finished ⅞@1⅛c lower in Chicago, with December 76½c, March 79⅛@79⅝c, and May 81@81½c.

Pressure on July Wheat.

July wheat was a fraction higher at the start due to a little scattered buying, but started to ease almost immediately. The market held within narrow limits until near the close, when pressure developed in the way of selling here against purchases at Winnipeg by spreaders, and disclosed a lack of support.

As the result of the day's operations the Chicago-Winnipeg July wheat spread narrowed to 8⅜c, against 10⅛c on Wednesday, with the finish at 62⅞c to 63c. There was also some selling of the new crop month attributed to houses with foreign connections. Winnipeg closed 1⅛@1⅛c lower, with the December touching 50½c at the inside, equaling the previous low for the season, with the close at 50⅝c.

Readjustment between American and Canadian wheat markets has brought the Kansas City July delivery down to 57¼c, or 3¼c under Wednesday's finish, and at the last the price there was only 2⅝c over Winnipeg. This was taken as the first encouraging sign that prices in the United States were getting close to a world's basis. Based on the Kansas City price level it is estimated that the farmer in the southwest would not receive over 45c for the new crop, although it is a long time between now and harvest.

Owing to a continuation of the Christmas holidays abroad there was little interest taken in Manitoba wheat, and no export sales were reported. A decline of ⅞c in the exchange rate was largely responsible for a break of 2⅞@3⅛c in futures in Buenos Aires, with the February selling down to 47⅝c, and the March to 48¼c, a new low for the season, the latter delivery being 31⅛c under the same future in Chicago.

Longs Sell Corn Futures.

Long corn came out freely yesterday, and the pit had an impression that a leading local professional was going out of a line of grain bought at higher prices. The finish was at the bottom, with net losses of 2¼@2⅝c, with old December 67pc, March 64⅞@65c, May 66⅞@67c, and July 68¼@68⅜c.

Corn futures at the finish yesterday were about 4c lower than when the promise was for a 3,000,000,000 bu crop, although the harvest this season was only 2,080,000,000 bu, with a decline of 36⅜@37⅝c from the high in August. Based on the price of futures Illinois farmers could not be paid as high as 50c at loading stations for No 4 yellow, and the price in Iowa was still lower, and the low figure is expected to materially check sales by the country and cut down the movement to terminal markets.

Trade in oats was not large and local operators were on the selling side in sympathy with the break in corn. Commission houses were fair buyers on the way down, with the close at net losses of ⅞@1c, December being 30½c, and May, 32⅜c.

Weakness in corn was the main factor in depressing the rye market, but the December again acted a little tight and gained fractionally on the May. Final trades were 1¼@2c lower, with December 40¼c, and May, 41⅝c.

OIL MEN TACKLE PROBLEM OF 30,000 MARKETLESS WELLS

Tulsa, Okla., Dec. 26.—(AP)—The problem of preserving more than 30,000 small oil wells in northeastern Oklahoma and southeastern Kansas, whose chief market outlet will be withdrawn Jan. 1 when the Prairie Oil and Gas company ceases to be a purchaser, was tackled in earnest by the petroleum industry today.

At the call of E. B. Reeser, president of the American Petroleum institute, representatives of a dozen of the larger pipe line and purchasing companies met here to perfect arrangements for taking production from the affected wells. Definite action was deferred until a second conference tomorrow.

Reports of an agreement among the represented companies to divide among themselves the "distress" oil, approximately 40,000 barrels daily, could not be confirmed. The conference was held behind closed doors and word of its steps was withheld pending tomorrow's meeting.

The institute head expressed confidence the conferees would arrive at a satisfactory solution of the problem.

"To permit these thousands of old wells in settled fields to be shut down and their crude oil yield drowned out by salt water, never again to be recovered, would constitute an appalling economic loss," he said.

Withdrawal of the Prairie Oil and Gas company as a general purchaser of oil was announced Dec. 5, and followed curtailment of the company's purchases in many areas. The action was made necessary, company officials explained, by accumulating stocks totaling approximately 60,000,000 barrels and a reduced market demand.

The companies represented at the conference included the Standard Oil Company of Indiana, Stanolind Pipe Line company, Prairie Oil and Gas company, Texas company, Carter Oil company, Oklahoma Pipe Line company, Gypsy Oil company, Gulf Pipe Line company, Empire Companies, Inc., Dutch Shell Pipe Line company, Dixie Oil company, and Barnsdall corporation.

Sees Lack of Success in Gov't Price Regulation

BY SCRUTATOR.

Among the most familiar phenomena in American business are the recurring periodical attempts to regulate the large markets for foodstuffs in the interests usually of producers and, more rarely, for the supposed benefits of consumers.

Occasionally these efforts go farther and take the form of attempts to abolish rather than to exercise a measure of control over these markets. There seems to be a fairly direct relationship between downward swings of food commodity prices and regulatory attempts. Perhaps the added observation that the habit of trying to jerk prices up or to punish those suspected of aiding in holding them down has grown remarkably in the last ten years can be justifiably made.

Limiting the discussion to the grain markets, we find that there are three important laws passed for their definite control. The first is the grain standards act of 1916. The second is the grain futures act passed in 1922 and the third is the agricultural marketing act of 1929.

Many Investigations.

But there have been upwards of forty governmental investigations of the grain trade since 1890. From that year until the end of 1924 there were thirty-odd. There were thirteen up to 1920; there were twenty between 1920 and 1924, inclusive. The 1916 act was apparently thoroughly justified on the grounds of bettering business methods. The revolutionary features in law and social thought are those that have been passed in the last nine years.

That of 1922, a substitute for another that on technical grounds was declared unconstitutional only a few months earlier, places the organized grain exchanges under the superintendence of the department of agriculture. It requires the exchange to keep records on all its transactions, to be open to government employés; to prevent the dissemination of false information to sway grain prices, to prevent manipulation or corners and to allow coöperative associations to become members of the exchanges. The more recent act creating the federal farm board permits the use of government funds in operations usually considered speculative.

In the historical background may be seen the growing tendency to surrender private initiative to legal bindings. The period from 1890 to 1895 was marked by a fall in wheat prices from about 84 cents to 50 cents, on the farm. Several bills to abolish future trading were offered during this period and defeated. Wheat prices at the farm were raised in 1896 and 1897; they began another downward course in 1898.

Range of Prices.

From then until 1903 prices were fairly stationary and low. Without being technical, the Dec. 1 average at the farm ranged over these years between 62 and 70 cents. The United States industrial commission between 1898 and 1901 gathered 17,000 pages of investigatory matter of which more than a third bore on agriculture.

Considerable fluctuations occurred in the ensuing years until 1913, when wheat prices were uncomfortably low. From 1914 to 1916 they were generally upward and the years 1917 to 1920 were the bonanza period of government set minimum prices. The war brought that in. Since that time there has been a long term down swing in wheat's return to the grower. The wartime price was not far from three times as much as that of late 1930.

It may be unwise to generalize so freely, but it is plain that the measures that have been taken so far by government to stabilize the long swings have not been successful. Prices bound and rebound with just as much vigor as they ever did. They get too high and go down; they get too low and go up. It cannot be said that the jumpiness of prices has been in any considerable degree mitigated since 1920 by the passage of the sort of laws we used to talk about and resist.

CURB MARKET DECLINES UNDER LATE PRESSURE

New York, Dec. 26.—(AP)—The curb market began the day uncertainly, firmed up a little in the utility and oil divisions during the late morning, but yielded to selling pressure late in the day, along with the "big board" and the grain markets.

Trading was extremely sluggish during the early hours of trading, but quickened a little during the late selling. The day's total transactions, however, aggregated only 449,900 shares, or 37,300 shares less than Wednesday's turnover.

Electric Bond and Share was traded in fairly large volume, and sold up about a point early in the day, only to slide off 3 points from the top before the close. United Light "A" and American and Foreign Power warrants lost about a point, and Middle West Utilities and American Gas and Electric yielded fractionally. General Gas 6 per cent convertible preferred "B" dropped 9 points.

In the oils, Gulf sold up a point, then reacted to close fractionally lower. Standard of Indiana and Cities Service also ended off slightly. Humble advanced to 62, only to fall back to 58¼, where it was off 2 points and in new low ground.

Industrials were very dull and irregularly lower. Detroit Gasket, which is inactive most of the time, sold up a point in a fair turnover. Swift International was again a firm spot, moving up nearly a point, but was not very active. A sizeable block of Carrier corporation was sold, carrying down 5½ points to a new low. Columbia Pictures declined 2 points to fresh low territory. Deere rose 3, then lost its gain.

Although coppers were mostly sluggish, Mayflower associates, an investment trust interested in this group, rallied 3½ in fair demand. Goldman Sachs and United Founders eased fractionally to duplicate their old lows, and American Founders slipped off ¼ to a new minimum at 3¼.

LOOKING AHEAD WITH BUSINESS

Officials of the Willys-Overland company said they expect a 50 per cent increase in employment in their factory next month, dependent largely on the impetus given the industry as a whole by the winter automotive shows. The company, which has produced 3,000 cars to date this month, plans to announce new models at the New York Auto show Jan 3. The factory has 3,500 employés now working five days a week.

Construction is expected to start soon on a yeast manufacturing plant for Anheuser-Busch, Inc., of St. Louis, at Old Bridge, N. J. The plant will have an ultimate productive capacity of 100,000 pounds of yeast daily and the estimated cost is $2,000,000.

A compilation of the disbursements to be made during next month throughout the country, starting from Jan. 1 on interest and dividend payments, makes the total about $1,100,000,000 This compares with $1,127,000,000 during January last year. It includes $520,000,000 in dividends, against $570,-000,000 last year, and about $600,000,000 in interest payments against $560,000,-000 last year.

Directors of the New York Telephone company authorized expenditure of $11,167,590 for new construction throughout the state at their meeting Dec. 23, an announcement said. This brings the total such appropriations this year to $97,660,195.

The Chicago & North Western railway has placed orders with west coast shippers for 5,000,000 feet of Douglas fir bridge material. The order, which is one of the largest that have been awarded in the Chicago district recently, comprises the road's 1931 bridge building requirements.

The Federal Rubber company, a subsidiary of the Fisk Rubber company, expects to employ an additional 700 to 800 men shortly after the first of the year.

The power machinery industry has been more active during the present year than indicated by the general conditions of business, B. B. Williams, president of the Cooper-Bessemer corporation, said in a year-end review.

Official New York Stock exchange bond sales yesterday were $7,173,000. From Jan. 1 to date sales total $2,735,-191,000.

NEW SUPPORTERS FOR THE CLASS SYSTEM OF RY. PASSENGER FARES

Washington, D. C., Dec. 26.—(AP)—The class passenger fare system widely used on European railroads is finding new advocates among carriers in the western states.

Two lines—the St. Louis-San Francisco and the Santa Fe—have received permission from the interstate commerce commission to use second class tickets, and G. J. McGuire, secretary of the Western Passenger association, indicated today in Chicago a possibility that other southwestern companies might seek to meet the two-cent a mile rate authorized on the Frisco.

Under the commission's order, the Frisco is permitted to sell the second class tickets for use only on day coaches. It is expected to put the plan into effect early next year.

The Santa Fe, operating from Chicago through the southwest to California, has received permission to sell after Jan. 1 second class tickets between points in Arizona, California and New Mexico. It also may cut rates for round trip tickets between Kansas City and Lawrence and Topeka, Kas.

The Southeastern Passenger association through George S. Shepard, its secretary, today was authorized by the commission to use joint low rates from southeastern points to the Pacific coast. The rate is based on the regular fares to New Orleans, Memphis, St. Louis and Chicago with a two cent rate from those gateways to the coast. The tickets west of the Mississippi are to be good on tourist sleepers.

BY FRED HARVEY.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Dec. 26.—The Christmas holidays and all the good cheer of yesterday didn't do the stock market much good. There was an almost total lack of buying, and prices sank fairly consistently throughout the day, to be carried to their lowest levels in the final hour. Net losses among active stocks ranged from one to four points, while some of the more volatile shares reacted as much as six or seven points.

Those interested in an advance drew courage principally from the lightness of trading. Transactions totaled only 1,800,660 shares, one of the lightest days in weeks.

Favors Short Interest.

News today was of minor caliber, but such as it was, it favored the short interest. The financial district was seemingly impressed by the advance of call money from 2 to 2½ per cent, a seasonal movement to be expected at this time of the year. Banks withdrew about $30,000,000 in loans for "window dressing," and this action had the effect of bringing about the higher rate on loans across bank counters.

Railroad stocks were unsettled by the adverse reports of several roads. Chicago, Milwaukee, St. Paul and Pacific, Erie and Missouri Pacific were among the roads which showed decreased net income for November, 1930, compared with the same month of 1929.

Practically all leading railroads were off two points or more for the day. Baltimore and Ohio, Santa Fe, Union Pacific, Chicago, Rock Island and Pacific, and New York Central were included in this class.

Hit by Late Selling.

Merchandise shares also were hard hit by late selling. Sears, Roebuck and Montgomery Ward both slid to new lows, and R. H. Macy was slashed 6½ points, also closing at a new low level. These group declines were only isolated instances of the general slipping of prices which carried along utilities, industrials and specialties. Metal shares, aside from American Smelting, worked fairly well against the trend of trading. Anaconda held its own and Kennecott was down only a fraction.

The market traveled an irregular road before it definitely headed for the cellar late in the afternoon. The opening was irregular, and while soft spots were occasionally uncovered, the principal character of trading was unwillingness of either side to cut loose with major operations. Leading shares such as United States Steel, American Can, Westinghouse and American Telephone and Telegraph lost a point or so, but there was no general selling. Toward noon support was found for United States Steel, and it was swung to 140, its best price of the day. Other leading stocks rallied briefly behind steel, but the advance died a-borning. Pressure was exerted against the merchandise clan early in the afternoon and soon the ticker was clicking off a story of steadily declining prices.

Patterson Agency Sales Show Gain Over 1929

The Alexander E. Patterson agency of the Penn Mutual Life Insurance company in Chicago reports that its sales for the eleven months of 1930 exceed its total sales for the twelve months of 1929. The 1930 paid business through November was $14,864,-325, compared with $14,601,198 for all of 1929. November was the twenty-first consecutive million dollar month in paid for business for this agency.

California Operators Move to Cut Oil Output

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Dec. 26.—California oil operators were showing greater willingness today to coöperate with the movement to curtail production from the state's wells in order to relieve the market from its overhanging stores of unsold crude. In the Midway-Sunset, the Elwood and the Santa Fe Springs fields, they moved to reduce their daily taking of oil for the state as a whole to 500,000 barrels, the fixed allowable under the California conservation program.

HOSPITAL GETS ENTIRE BLOCK FOR BUILDING

BY AL CHASE.

Another important step in the carrying out of a proposed $6,000,000 development program for the Presbyterian hospital has been taken with the purchase of enough property to give that institution ownership of the entire block bounded by Harrison street, Hermitage avenue, Congress street, and the elevated right of way. Completion of the necessary purchases was made by Edward J. Scott who acted as broker in assembling this property. Gardner & Carton were attorneys for the Presbyterian hospital.

MRS. ELIZABETH S. McELWEE. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

According to Alfred T. Carton, president of the hospital, no immediate building improvements are contemplated by the institution. It is understood, however, that probably in 1932 the $500,000 gift of Mrs. Elizabeth S. McElwee, in memory of her husband, the late R. Harvey McElwee, formerly president of the Menominee Lumber company, will be utilized to start construction on a surgical pavilion.

Part of Development Program

The surgical unit would be a part of the proposed program of building and endowing four principal departments, general medicine, general surgery, maternity cases, and the care of children.

In addition, the proposed program of development would include medical and surgical specialties, a school of nursing and a clinic. The entire cost, $3,000,000, as estimated, would provide for endowment as well as construction. Work on the surgical pavilion, however, awaits other endowment and construction gifts, it is understood.

Must Care for Poor Patients.

Mrs. McElwee stipulated that provision be made in the surgical pavilion to care for charity cases, persons of limited means and wealthy patients. She also stipulated that the proposed pavilion be devoted not only to the care of patients but to medical research and medical education.

The assembling of the property in the block bounded by Harrison, Hermitage, Congress, and the "L," by Mr. Scott, consisted of a total of fifteen separate parcels with all improvements thereon, and having a frontage of 272 feet on Hermitage, 132 feet on Harrison, and 126 feet on Congress. It is situated directly east of the present hospital property.

The extreme top and general average values were 35c apart at $8.50 and $8.15 respectively. The spread a week ago was like and less than three weeks ago the two prices were only 15c apart.

...Good outside demand was the principal support of the market again, but buyers taking 13,000 head and were unable to fill all the orders because of the shortage in the supply of hogs averaging less than 200 lbs. Only 4,000 hogs were left at the close.

WORLD'S GRAIN MARKET NEWS

Low prices for grain seem to be no ...ect on the average speculator, who ...s credited with selling freely at the ...ut of the season. The scarcity ...f buyers is the main feature in July ...heat and the coarse grains, while ...ers predominate. December wheat ...d corn sold at the close in the ...ckly bids with good profits last ...ade, with traders predicting still ...wer levels.

Traders who are inclined to the ...ling side of wheat favor purchases ...f Winnipeg, particularly of the July, ...hich was down to 54½c, with a fin... ...ce above that level, a net loss ...7½c.

...Harry L. Reno of Logan & Bryan, ...ho has been in Winnipeg for six ...eeks, has returned to Chicago and ...ys that the grain situation in west... ...Canada will gradually improve ...d he believes that under the man... ...ment of John I. MacFarland the ...rop will be greatly reduced, if not ...ltogether eliminated by the end of the ...ason.

...An embargo on Canadian wheat ...ing the United States, as pro... ...ed by Chairman Legge, in case of ...me slump in world prices would not ...ect Canada in any way," says John ...I. MacFarland, head of the Canadian ...heat selling agency. "It is unlikely ...hat prices will drop the 12 or 15c ...ecessary to place wheat o.. an import ...asis as related to the present United ...States price. No Canadian wheat is ...oming to the United States except in ...bond for milling and an embargo would ...not prevent milling in bond."
